EXPLORERS ON WAY HOME

Kanchenjunga Expedition Left Darjeeling April 6—Five Nations Are Represented.

In the following dispatch, delayed in transmission from Darjeeling, Frank S. Smythe completes the story of how he and his companions made the first ascent of Jonsong Peak, 24,340 feet, the highest mountain summit ever reached. In the dispatch published in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Saturday, Mr. Smythe told of seeing E. Schneider and Hoerlin on the summit, and finding Wood Johnson unconscious on the glacier at 23,000 feet, after having lain more than an hour in the snow. Today he continues the narrative of the hazardous descent with Johnson to the camp.

JONSONG BASE CAMP, June 11, by runner to Darjeeling, June 20 (Delayed).—Slowly, rope length by rope length, we progressed. The declining sun flamed and died around us, a vivid furnace with bars of scarlet spread behind Mount Everest, and the tropic night dashed upon us. Once there was a beautiful Brocken spectre to lend weirdness to what to Wood Johnson must have been a nightmare, while to add to his discomfort the wind arose again, numbing his hands and feet.

A myriad of stars looked down on the scene of intense effort as I took in the rope for the last time. On the easy ridge our servants rushed forth to meet us. Not until then did Johnson collapse. His effort had been one of which any mountaineer might be proud.

Schneider and Hoerlin came in very late. Hoerlin said the ascent had been mostly easy climbing but that loose rocks required care. They had climbed unroped although a slip would have been fatal in many places.

The following day we descended to Camp No. 1. Johnson was very weak and fainted once. It appeared subsequently he was suffering from a severe stomach disorder, no doubt accelerated by his untiring efforts and worries on behalf of the transport of the expedition.

Others Arrive for Climb.

At Camp No. 1 we met Professor Dyhrenfurth, Marcel Kurz and Ulrich Wieland who intended climbing Jonsong Peak. Although tired, I decided to carry on and attempt the peak again. Meanwhile Hoerlin and Schneider descended to the base camp for rest and a subsequent investigation of Chorten Nema Pass and Dodang Nema Ridge. The next day we ascended to the ridge camp but made our camp on a more sheltered spot below. This ascent of 3,000 feet was a hard day for our porters.

The same day Kurz and I prospected for a route down the steel-hard ice slope to the glacier. Our party carried oxygen for use in the camp but I didn't use it. However, its temporary good effect on climbers at great altitudes cannot be denied but the reaction is considerable and its value intermittently used is doubtful.

June 6 was so windy that a general advance was impossible, but Professor Dyhrenfurth and Wieland further prospected the route down the ice slope to the glacier and cut many steps in the hard ice. The next day in good weather Wieland and I completed the work of cutting a staircase to the glacier, taking turns in this laborious work.

While completing it by cutting over the bergschrund at the foot of the slope a step collapsed, and I saved myself from falling into the bergschrund by clinging to my ice axe with my left hand at the expense of a sprained wrist.

Once more our porters behaved splendidly amid the snow and ice, and the descent of our caravan to

Irate Wife Ends Poker Game; Man Hurt Leaping Out Window

A wife, indignant at her husband's all-night card playing, broke up a seven-handed poker game in the first floor apartment of Leo Jasky at 2,066 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, at 9 o'clock yesterday morning with unhappy results to one of the players.

The seven were in the midst of an exciting hand when the doorbell rang. Jasky opened the door and was faced with an excited woman, who demanded: "Where is my husband?" The other players overheard the query and without hesitation David Tarvin, 37 years old, of 844 Home Street, the Bronx, and another player grabbed their hats and jumped through an open window to the sidewalk. Tarvin fractured his left arm. He was taken to Morrisania Hospital. The other man escaped injury. The woman was not Tarvin's wife.

SCORES RESCUED IN SURF

Season's Record Crowds Jam the Resorts—Traffic Clogged on Land and Water.

Summer temperatures, combined with brilliant sunshine during most of the day, and tempered by a cool northwesterly breeze, lured hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers from the city yesterday to near-by resorts.

Excursion boats, buses, subways, trains, surface cars and highways were jammed with holiday crowds, and attendance at nearly every beach along the Long Island and New Jersey coast from Montauk Point to Cape May was reported as the largest this year.

Visitors to Coney Island were estimated at more than 800,000; the Rockaways had more than 350,000; Long Beach 100,000; and at Long Branch, Asbury Park and other North Jersey resorts throngs of visitors poured in by train and automobile throughout the day to swell the unusually large week-end crowds already there.

Bathing accommodations were taxed to the utmost, and at many places visitors who arrived after noon found every bath house taken. The water was moderately warm and thousands went in swimming. Five drownings and scores of rescues were reported.

Packed Highways Clog Traffic.

The exodus from the city began soon after daybreak. Long lines of automobiles streamed through the Holland tubes headed for Jersey resorts or poured over the bridges to Brooklyn and Queens bound for Coney Island, the Rockaways, and other points further out on Long Island. Soon roads were jammed with cars.

In some instances along Ocean Parkway, Sunrise Highway, Cross Bay Boulevard, Merrick Road, and other main arteries of traffic, cars were packed so closely that they were unable to proceed faster than fifteen miles an hour. Extra squads

Graf Zeppelin Breaks Loose at Hamburg; Subordinate Officer Lands Craft at Berlin

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 22.—The Graf Zeppelin broke away from a holding crew at Hamburg today, leaving her commander, Captain Lehmann; a dozen passengers and several members of the crew behind.

The commander and some of the passengers had just left the airship when her stern rose suddenly and was almost perpendicular in the air before Captain von Schiller shouted a command to the forward ground crew to release her. Then he ordered the motors started and soon after succeeded in bringing the big craft to an even keel, thus preventing what threatened to be a serious accident.

But he did not take the risk of attempting to land the airship again at Hamburg, where the high temperature is believed to have caused a sudden expansion of the Zeppelin's lifting gas forcing the craft to rise. Instead he flew on to Berlin to the Staaken airdrome, and Captain Lehmann followed in a specially chartered airplane.

Several passengers had narrow escapes when they were caught on the runway from the gondola when the airship began to rise. They managed, however, to scramble to the ground safely.

Captain von Schiller, after sighting the Zeppelin over Hamburg, sent a wireless message saying he thought it inadvisable to try to land again under the same conditions, and so he headed for Berlin.

The airship had reached Hamburg after cruising yesterday and today over Northwestern Germany and Copenhagen, Denmark, and the largest crowd of the day, 25,000 persons, was at Hamburg to greet the ship. They had an unexpected share of excitement.

On its earlier trips during the last twenty-four hours the Graf Zeppelin was commanded by Dr. Hugo Eckener, who left it as Berlin this morning, in command of Captain Lehman, to attend the World Power Conference.

Members of the congress will be Dr. Eckener's guests tomorrow on short flights over Berlin.

A new Junkers four-motored plane, the G-38, which Professor Hugo Junkers will bring here from Dessau, will carry officials of the power congress on short flights over the city.

MAYOR RUFFU KILLED WITH THREE OTHERS AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

Pennsylvania Railroad Express Strikes Sedan, Killing All the Occupants Outright.

WOMEN ARE UNIDENTIFIED

Mayor Ruffu Was Acquitted Recently of 4 of 14 Charges of Illegally Placing City Insurance.

ABSECON, N. J., Monday, June 23 (AP)—Mayor Anthony M. Ruffu Jr., Mayor of Atlantic City, two unidentified women, and a man believed to have been Assemblyman Anthony J. Siracusa, were killed when a train struck an automobile here early today.

Ruffu was identified by papers in his pocket and by shreds of his clothing. Papers in the pockets of the other dead man indicated he was Siracusa. There was no means of establishing the identity of the women. The bodies were badly mangled.

The automobile, the Mayor's own sedan, was struck in the centre by a south bound Pennsylvania Railroad express at the Mill Road crossing here. Wreckage was strewn for more than 100 yards.

Mayor Ruffu had just finished the short rest he took after he was acquitted by the Atlantic County Grand Jury recently on charges of illegal practices in connection with the placing of municipal insurance. Siracusa was a close friend of the Mayor's, and often went on trips with him.

Ruffu Started as Newsboy.

Anthony M. Ruffu Jr., was born in Philadelphia Sept. 17, 1875, and moved to Atlantic City while a boy. He began life as a newsboy and when he grew up went into the real estate and construction business. He had been mayor of Atlantic City since 1927.

When the recent anti-vice crusade started in Atlantic City Mayor Ruffu was attacked by various civic and religious organizations which charged him with protecting racketeers and demanded his resignation. He refused to resign, however, declaring that the people of the city had elected him and that only the people could remove him.

On March 13 last Mayor Ruffu was arrested on fourteen indictments charging him with violating Section 32 of the Criminal Code by awarding insurance and other city contracts to companies in which he was financially interested. Of these fourteen indictments ten were for his actions as "broker and agent" in the placing of insurance, two for the placing of insurance with companies in which he was a stockholder, and two others for the placing of city insurance with companies in which he was both a stockholder and director. The total amount of all the policies involved was $313,300.

The mayor was tried at May's Landing on the last four indictments and the jury, less than three weeks ago, returned a verdict of not guilty. He was still to be tried for the first ten indictments.

"I feel very happy over the results," Mayor Ruffu declared when the trial ended. "I never received a penny in additional dividends from any of the companies. In placing the insurance with those companies fol-

Son Born to Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh On the 24th Birthday of the Mother

Arrival of Seven-and-a-Half-Pound Infant at the Morrow Home at Englewood Announced at 3 P. M. Yesterday —Messages of Congratulation Pouring In

A son was born yesterday afternoon to Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh at the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's father, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, in Englewood, N. J., the event occurring on the mother's twenty-fourth birthday.

The child's arrival was announced soon after 3 P. M. and later word was sent out that the infant weighed between seven and one-half and seven and three-quarters pounds and that the baby and the mother were doing well, both resting comfortably.

Soon after an attaché of the Morrow household had announced the birth, newspaper bulletins and radio broadcasting stations were sending the message to every corner of the nation and the cables were carrying it abroad.

Ambassador Morrow, his wife and other members of the family were at home when the baby arrived. Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, the flier's mother, was expected to come from her home in Grosse Pointe, Detroit, but had not arrived last evening.

Within an hour after the news of the child's arrival had been sent out by the Morrows congratulatory messages began to pour in. Messenger boys, carrying envelopes, hurried up the long road and the procession was still under way late last night.

A few friends drove in to offer their congratulations, but only those known to the guards were admitted through the gate. There was a steady stream of outsiders who had heard the news and were anxious to tell the Lindberghs how glad they were, but guards turned them away.

Many residents of Englewood went to the Morrow estate in the afternoon. They drove up to the gate, looked through the heavy trees toward where the Morrow house is hidden and drove away.

While the world outside immediately showed an intense interest in the arrival of the Lindbergh baby, the Morrow estate itself was unusually calm.

The name of the physician who attended Mrs. Lindbergh was not included in the announcement of the child's arrival. It was understood that a physician and two nurses from New York were on duty in the house.

In the village of Englewood the Lindbergh romance was recounted by the residents who are proud of their famous neighbors. They re-

SHOOT HIS FLEEING FRIEND

Escape in Auto After Crime Laid to Rivalry Over Profitable Illegal Business.

Two members were playing billiards in the Italian-American Tammany Club, at 1,340 Sixtieth Street, yesterday afternoon and the Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn was steeped in the quiet of a hot Sunday, when an automobile pulled up to the curb before the club.

Two men got out of the car, ignored the sign in the window, "For Members Only," and pushing open the door disappeared in the room beyond. A short time later firemen of Engine Company 247, near by, heard shots and saw the two men dash from the clubhouse, climb into their car and speed toward Fourteenth Avenue. Behind them, lying near the billiard table, was John Sciametta, 22 years old, a former convict, with two fatal shots in his head Near the door Frank Luccarrelli, 30, a bookmaker, was lying with two bullet wounds in his chest and one in his left leg. Police sirens screamed as detectives from the Fourth Avenue station in Brooklyn and from the homicide squad and policemen of the Sixty-eighth Precinct converged on the scene in speeding automobiles, and there were excited cries from a jostling crowd.

Slot Machine Feud Revived.

While waiting for an ambulance to take the wounded men to the United Israel Zion Hospital detectives found in the pockets of the dying Sciametta some numbered slot machine cards. Police Captain Ryan and his men quickly decided that a resumption of Brooklyn's slot machine warfare was responsible for the shootings, and acting on this theory raided last night a reputed real estate office, the Star Mint Company, at 3,025 Fort Hamilton Parkway, and seized about seventy-five slot machines there. Two young men, who said they were office boys, were picked up for questioning, and police said they expected momentarily to arrest the gunmen or their accomplices.

After questioning John Fiori, the executive member of the club, and other witnesses, the police learned that the shootings occurred about 2:15 o'clock and that Sciametta and Luccarrelli were the only members in the small clubroom when the gunmen entered. From his hospital bed Luccarrelli told detectives that he did not know his assailants.

"I was playing billiards with John when these two men came in," he said. "They talked in whispers to him for a long time, almost half an hour, I guess, when suddenly one of them pulled out a gun and shot John at point-blank range. They didn't pay any attention to me until I started to run for the door, when they let me have it."

The club occupies only the lower floor of a three-story structure. On the second floor Amato Infante and his wife and nine children were eating dinner when the fusillade of shot was fired. On the street the

ACCUSED BROKER IN COURT

He Wins Delay on Grand Larceny Charge as Hunt Goes On for Assets of Woody & Co.

Harold Russell Ryder, partner in the bankrupt brokerage house of Woody & Co., who was arrested on Saturday, appeared in Tombs Court yesterday morning before Magistrate Ford. The specific charge was that of suspicion of grand larceny, contained in an affidavit sworn out by John Vanneck, that Ryder had taken $95,670 to buy stocks for him, and had never delivered them.

Ryder's well-tailored blue suit was not pressed, he was unshaved, and apparently suffered from lack of sleep when he entered the court room. He looked little like the dapper figure who in a short time made a name for spectacular plunging in Wall Street, and who had gained along Broadway the reputation of being a more than liberal spender.

He greeted Detective Thomas A. Smith, who had arrested him the night before, with "Hello, Tom," and then listened quietly and with interest as Detective Smith asked Magistrate Ford to adjourn the case until tomorrow morning. Magistrate Ford granted the request without objections from Ryder or DuBois Gillette, attorney for some of the creditors of Woody & Co.

$2,500 Check to Harvey.

Investigators found yesterday among Ryder's cancelled checks one for $2,500 that had been made out and cashed by George U. Harvey, Borough President of Queens. Mr. Harvey acknowledged last night the receipt of the check and explained that it was to aid his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor, the formal announcement of which, however, he had hoped to defer.

He said that the check had been given him for his Governorship campaign expenses with the explanation by Ryder that "he thought it was the duty of rich men like himself who were interested in better government to help the candidacies of honest officeholders and public servants who had no opportunity to make money for themselves."

His acquaintanceship with Ryder had been wholly social, Mr. Harvey said, and he denied that Ryder had asked any favors in return for the contribution.

"There was no possible thing I could do for him," he said. "Mr. Ryder is not even a resident in Queens."

Mr. Harvey said that the check was sent to him four months ago.

Questioned concerning his announcement that he intended to seek the Republican nomination for Governor, Mr. Harvey said that "that was the only embarrassing part of this affair."

"I didn't intend to make the announcement yet," he explained. "I would naturally have preferred to await some more suitable time. But there it is and I'll have to make the best of it."

Tomorrow, in addition to appearing in court, Ryder will go before

BYRD AT WINCHESTER GETS HOME WELCOME AND A SILVER BOWL

Schoolboy Chums and Neighbors Pay Homage to "Dick" in School Amphitheatre.

PRAYER FOR SAFE RETURN

MEETS LINDBERGH TODAY

Colonel to Chat Here With Polar Flier, Who Will Be Guest at Chamber of Commerce Luncheon.

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

WINCHESTER, Va., June 22.—A home folks welcome, combined with a religious service of thanksgiving for his safe return from the conquest of the South Pole, was given Rear Admiral Byrd when he came to his birthplace and the home of his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Bolling Byrd, today.

Without official furbelows or escort and after a four-hour drive from Richmond, "Dick" Byrd rejoined his childhood friends after a two years' absence.

From 6,000 persons massed in the great amphitheatre of the Handley High School, where the picturesque apple blossom festival is held, he received a resounding tribute. By order of the City Council, as the official gift of this city of 12,000 persons, he received an engraved silver bowl some fourteen inches in diameter.

The Rev. R. B. Nelson, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, of which the Admiral is a communicant and where prayers for his safety have been made each Sunday during his absence, delivered today a prayer of gratitude for his safety and for the inspiration that has made possible his conquest of the Arctic and Antarctic.

P. Gray Williams, former President of the State Bar Association, delivered the address of welcome. Visibly affected, Admiral Byrd, standing on a high terrace overlooking the amphitheatre where the speakers' platform was perched, voiced his thanks without formality. Referring to many of his old chums by name, he said:

"It's good to be 'Dick' Byrd again. This Admiral Byrd business sometimes hangs very heavy on the shoulders."

The welcoming ceremonies were held at 4 P. M. in a beauty spot that is one of the most notable of the Shenandoah Valley. Atop a high hill is the spreading bulk of the Handley High School, built and partly supported through a bequest from Judge John Handley of Scranton. Two high terraces lead down to the pit of the amphitheatre, which is flanked by similar walls.

On the middle level before a microphone that carried his voice to amplifiers, looking down upon the persons standing in the foreground of the great level space, stood Admiral Byrd.

Behind him were grouped his brother, former Governor Byrd, other members of his family and about thirty other persons. Many of the audience sprawled informally on the grass. Many were in their shirt sleeves, and woven into the white background of the linen suits worn by the men were the colorful Summer costumes of the women. Bright sunlight played on the scene.

On the highest level behind Admiral Byrd was the high school band, which alternately played stirring marches and religious or patriotic airs.

The explorer was at ease. During the last week he has been showered

City Total of 6,746,563, a Gain of 1,126,515, Set by Census Expert on Incomplete Figures

New York City will probably show an increase in population of about 1,126,515 persons when the final census figures are completed, according to an estimate issued yesterday by Dr. Walter Laidlaw, executive secretary of the Cities Census Committee, Inc., 200 Fifth Avenue. The prediction was based on the official figures already announced for all boroughs of the city except the Bronx, where five out of eight Assembly districts are incomplete.

The total already made public is 6,011,863 for fifty-seven out of the sixty-two Assembly districts. To this the committee has added the total in 1925, or 602,485, and an additional item for an increase of the last five years of 132,215, the gain of the now uncompleted territory from 1920 to 1925.

On the basis of thirty-eight completed districts out of the total of sixty-two, Dr. Laidlaw made an estimate on June 3 of an increase in the city of 775,015 over the census of 1920. His new estimate fixes the population of New York at 6,746,563, as against 5,149,778 in 1920.

This contemplates an estimated total in the Bronx of about 1,055,128. Predictions as to the growth of this borough during the past decade have varied from a total of 1,000,000 to 1,400,000, the latter figure being the one which the Bronx Chamber of Commerce believes the final official count will show.

The committee's estimate cites the gains in New York according to former census totals, but says that the 1900-1910 rate will never again occur.

"The population gain 1900-1910 was at a rate of 1,346,512 per exact decade; that of 1910-1920 at the rate of 878,797 per decade," Dr. Laidlaw asserted. The 1900-1910 rate, it is safe to say, will never occur again. Over half of it was due to the increase during that period of New York's foreign-born. Even from 1910 to 1920 the city continued to grow from immigration. If the present census, when tabulated, does not reveal a smaller foreign-born population than in 1920, students of the subject will be greatly surprised.

"Whence then has come an apparently new million of population since 1920? My answer would be: 700,000 from persons born in New York State, 100,000 from other areas of the country, and 200,000 more due to the superior supervision of the present census compared to that exercised in 1920."

Priest Gives Life to Save Two Girls in St. Lawrence

By The Associated Press.

MONTREAL, June 22.—Father Raymond Cloran, S. J., prefect of discipline at Loyola College here, was drowned in the St. Lawrence River this afternoon after the heroic rescue of two young girls who got beyond their depth while bathing.

Father Cloran, who was 46 years old, was bathing with friends at Varennes when he noticed that the two girls were in difficulty. The priest swam to their assistance, while two girls put out in a rowboat.

Father Cloran reached Cecilia McGee, the girl who was in the greater danger, and supported her until the boat reached them and he managed to get her into it. He then helped the other girl, who had been able to swim a little, into the boat, but was too exhausted to save himself.

The girls were unable to aid him and by the time further assistance had reached the scene Father Cloran had disappeared.

Moscow and American Agents Said to Have Set Program at Secret Meeting in Danzig.

FUND IS PUT AT $500,000

Convention Arranged for Chicago, With Talk of Marching With Appeal to Hoover.

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 22.—Russian monarchists circles in Berlin today alleged that in secret meetings at Danzig last week American Communists and agents from Moscow had laid plans for intensive Communist action in the United States next September.

The emigrés, hostile to the Communist régime in Russia, asserted that on June 17 the executive of the Communist International at Moscow had resolved to allocate 1,000,000 gold rubles (about $500,000) for the dissemination of Communist propaganda in the United States.

This fund was said to be especially designed for use in Chicago, Philadelphia and Baltimore. At Chicago, the monarchists further report, a secret Communist meeting has been planned for July 3 to organize a movement in which South American Communists also will participate.

The alleged movement includes the appointment of about forty "instructors" to spread the "Red gospel" throughout the United States. To carry it into effect several American Communists were said to have received orders from Moscow to return immediately to the United States.

The monarchists assert that the following American Communists met Moscow agents at Danzig: William Hood, Philadelphia; George Holbrook, Boston; Harold Talbott, Baltimore, and a man named Ruegert of Chicago. William Fowler, Harry Upton and a man named Wieghardt, all of New York, were said to have come from Moscow to Danzig by airplane.

It is understood that Hood and Holbrook left Danzig on Thursday for

SUBSTITUTE IS PREPARED

Reed Proposal Reported to Have Been Approved at White House.

PRESIDENT QUOTES MELLON

Higher Taxes Inevitable, Since Deficit Is Faced Now, Says the Secretary.

HINES DENOUNCES GRANTS

Bureau Director Tells Hoover Nation Would Be Setting Up a Pension System.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—President Hoover warned Congress today that enactment of the World War veterans relief bill not only would compel repeal of this year's 1 per cent reduction in income and corporation taxes but force a levy of additional taxation next year.

The President's warning was contained in a letter to Senator James E. Watson, Republican floor leader, accompanied by a prediction of a deficit and higher taxes by Secretary Mellon, and a condemnation of the legislation as unsound by General Frank T. Hines, Director of the Veterans' Bureau.

Before the President's letter was issued, there was a White House conference at which a substitute veterans' measure, which the President is said to have favored, was discussed. The substitute is being drafted and will be offered in the Senate at noon tomorrow by Senator David A. Reed, Senator Watson stated.

The substitute will be along lines of the plan suggested in General Hines's letter to the President, and it is estimated that it will cost about $35,000,000 in the first year of its operation.

It will be based on disability or disease incurred during service in the World War.

Those Present at Conference.

Those present at the White House conference this morning were the President, Secretary Mellon, Secretary of War Hurley, General Hines, Senator Reed, Senator Watson and Walter Newton and George Akerson, secretaries to the President.

Senator Reed, who had been away from Washington since Friday morning, flew here from Philadelphia to attend the conference and flew back to that city afterward.

Two substitutes for the pending bill have been under consideration during the last week, one sponsored by the American Legion, and the other sponsored by General Hines. Each would cost the government about $35,000,000 in the first year.

General Hines in his letter urged the enactment of such a bill as he had submitted to Congress. Senator Watson expressed the opinion that the President would not object to an enactment along the lines suggested by the General.

For the purpose of deciding on steps to be taken on the veterans legislation, particularly as they may effect adjournment of Congress and the fortunes of the party, Republican leaders of the House have called a party caucus for Tuesday night.

Some House members are displeased over the President's attitude, saying they cannot understand why he waited until now to fight the proposed legislation. Many Representatives were of the opinion that enough votes can be obtained in the House to override a veto.

Measure Up in Senate Today.

The information contained in the President's letter was sought by Senator Watson for presentation to the Senate tomorrow when it considers the veterans bill which, it is estimated, will involve an additional expenditure for the care of the veterans of $102,000,000 next year, and eventually, $225,000,000 annually.

Expenditures already authorized by Congress have been so great, Secretary Mellon said in the letter forwarded by the President, that a deficit of over $100,000,000, irrespective of the veterans legislation appears probable at the close of the fiscal year 1931. He said that if the reduced income tax rate is retained and made applicable to 1930 incomes, the present estimates are for a deficit next year of about $180,000,000.

"If expenditures are further increased now, taxes must be in December," the Secretary wrote.

President Hoover, facing a situation similar to that confronting President Coolidge in the soldiers' bonus bill, declared in his warning to Congress that the proposed legislation was unsound as well as unwise due to the present condition of the treasury and suggested to Congress that the proposal should be abandoned until a more equable system could be worked out to aid the soldiers who did not come under present laws and to whom relief should be afforded.

Leaders Predict a Veto.

According to Republican leaders, the President intends to veto any bill that carries an appropriation that will cause additional taxation and increase the estimated deficit next year. He is reported as hopeful that the Senate will strangle the legislation which, officials say, would make the annual expenditure for war veterans $1,000,000,000 within a few years.

President Hoover is represented as being greatly concerned over the fiscal outlook and feels that sound business policy demands the defeat of the veterans' legislation. He gave up his week-end Virginia fishing trip to confer with officials of the government and leaders of Congress on the question.

Senator Watson and Speaker Longworth, who were in the conferences held late last week, told the President that sentiment in Congress strongly favored the legislation to which he objects.

The House has passed a veterans' bill, calling for an expenditure of $181,000,000 annually, with a possible final annual expenditure of $400,000,000.

It passed that body with little opposition. The Senate Finance Committee, by a vote of 10 to 2, reported the bill, now pending in the Senate, to appropriate $102,000,000 for veterans' relief in the first year.

The President indicated his opposition to the bill in forcible terms. The bill did not represent the real views of the various veterans' organizations, he said, and goes far beyond immediate necessities, and, "of even more importance, it creates grave inequalities, injustices and discriminations among veterans, resulting from the methods adopted or extended in these bills."

Such legislation should be based on a sound basis, he wrote, or there should be more time "for determination of a national policy upon established principles in dealing with these questions for the future."

Secretary Mellon's assertion that the passage of proposed legislation, the President says, "implies positive increase of taxation at the next session of Congress" and he intimates that a deficit may possibly develop irrespective of veterans' legislation.

"We have stretched government expenditures in the budget beginning July 1 to the utmost limit of our possible receipts," the President wrote, "and have even incurred a probable deficit principally for the relief of unemployment through expansion of public construction. Every additional dollar of expenditure means an additional dollar in taxes."

Refers Hopefully to Business.

In his letter to the President, Secretary Mellon dealt bluntly with the financial situation. Saying the government faces a deficit of over $100,000,000 at the close of the fiscal year 1931 without veterans' legislation, the secretary says the estimates of expenditures are furnished by the Budget Bureau and "are predicated on a not unhopeful attitude in respect of future business developments."

Explaining that the government desired to use payments by debtor nations to reduce the national debt, Secretary Mellon concluded that an additional expenditure of $100,000,000 or more for the veterans will necessitate elimination of the present income tax rate reduction, adding that it is probable that "such increased expenditures may call for even higher tax rates in order to maintain a balanced budget."

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER.

Mr. Hoover's letter to Senator Watson read:

The White House,
Washington, June 21, 1930.
Honorable James E. Watson,
United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Senator:

In accordance with our discussion, I am sending herewith communications from Secretary Mellon and General Hines, Director of the Veterans Bureau, on the subject of the World War Veterans' legislation now before the Congress, showing the result of their investigation into the effect of the bill reported this week to the Senate.

These memorandums confirm the views which I have expressed during the past few weeks, and I believe the Congress and the public should be informed thereon.

General Hines states that the bill which has been passed by the House of Representatives will add directly to our present expenditure for World War veterans (at present $511,000,000 per annum) by $181,000,000 for the first year, increasing annually until it reaches a possible additional sum of $400,000,000 a year.

This bill, as amended by Senate committee, will add directly $102,000,000 the first year, ultimately rising to the addition of a sum of $225,000,000 per annum.

Even these estimates are far from including the whole of the potential obligations created by the principles embraced in this legislation and the uncertain added expense by certain amendments to previous legislation.

Mr. Mellon states that the passage of this legislation implies positive increase of taxation at the next session of Congress.

Doubts Veterans Want the Bills.

It does not appear that these bills even represent the real views of the various veterans organizations. The American Legion, after careful study as to what they considered the needs of their fellow veterans, proposed legislation which would require an additional annual expenditure of $35,000,000 per annum. Thus these measures which are before Congress represent an implied increase in expenditure of from three to ten times what these veterans themselves consider would be just. The Veterans of Foreign Wars and other organizations have contended for measures differing entirely from these now proposed.

General Hines has pointed out that this legislation goes far beyond immediate necessities, and that, of even more importance, it creates grave inequalities, injustices and discriminations among veterans resulting from the methods adopted or extended in these bills, and creates future dangers to both the public and the veterans.

The very fact that the committees of Congress and the various veterans' associations have themselves been, during the past six months, of many minds upon these questions indicates their extreme difficulty. There certainly comes from it all the conclusions that we should either have a sound plan now or should have more time for determination of national policy upon established principles in dealing with these questions for the future. We must arrive at such a basis as will discharge our manifest national obligation with equity among veterans and to the public.

I do not wish to be misunderstood. There are cases of veterans who are in need of help today who are suffering and to whom I earnestly wish to see generous treatment given. But these situations do not reach anything like the dimensions of these measures.

We have stretched government expenditures in the budget beginning July 1 to the utmost limit of our possible receipts, and have even incurred a probable deficit, principally for the relief of unemployment through expansion of public construction.

Every additional dollar of expenditure means an additional dollar in taxes. This is no time to increase the tax burden of the country. I recognize that such considerations would carry but little weight with our people were the needs of our veterans the issue, and were we dealing with sound measures; but, as General Hines presents, there are conclusive reasons for opposing an unsound measure which is against the best interests of the veterans themselves, and places an unjustified load upon the taxpayers at a time when every effort should be made to lighten it.

I do not believe that just criticism or opposition should arise to such suggestions upon full understanding of the situation, for I know that the great body of patriotic men who served in the World War themselves recognize that there are limits to expenditure, and there are principles that should be adhered to if we are not to prejudice their interest both as veterans and citizens.

Yours faithfully,
HERBERT HOOVER.

SECRETARY MELLON'S LETTER.

Mr. Mellon's letter read as follows:

The Secretary of the Treasury,

My dear Mr. President:

I have your memorandum stating that the Director of the Veterans' Bureau estimates the cost in the fiscal year 1931 of H. R. 10381, as amended and reported by the Senate Finance Committee, to be $102,000,000 and the ultimate cost to be $225,000,000 annually. You ask me to give you my best judgment as to whether receipts for the fiscal year 1931 will be adequate to support this additional burden. I regret to say that they will not.

You appreciate, of course, the very great difficulty of estimating revenue twelve months in advance, particularly when as under our system the government depends so largely on one form of tax, income tax, which is directly susceptible to fluctuations in business conditions. An absolutely accurate estimate would presuppose our ability to forecast general business conditions over the period of the next twelve months, and this is obviously impossible.

Based on estimates of expenditures furnished by the Director of the Budget and on this department's estimates of receipts, which, I may add, are predicated on a not unhopeful attitude in respect of future business developments, the present indications are that the government will close the fiscal year 1931 with a deficit of over $100,000,000. If the reduced income tax rate is to be retained and made applicable to 1930 incomes, present estimates forecast a deficit of approximately $180,000,000. These figures are, of course, exclusive of any additional burdens to be imposed by new legislation.

Notes Danger of Deficit.

I think I should call your attention to the fact that these figures are based on the assumption that interest payments to be made by foreign governments in accordance with existing debt settlement agreements will be paid in United States Government securities, as they have almost universally been paid in the past, rather than in cash, thus constituting an automatic reduction of our national debt, but not making these payments available for current expenditures.

Even when foreign interest payments have been made in cash the treasury up to the present time has been in a position to apply them to the reduction of our national debt. This policy has been so well established over the course of years and is manifestly so sound that foreign repayments, both principal and interest, have come to be looked upon as definitely earmarked for the reduction of our war debt. Moreover, whether these interest payments are to be made in securities or cash is dependent on conditions wholly without our control.

We are not justified, therefore, in budgeting upon the assumption that they will be made in cash. But assuming that they are and assuming that our government is willing to set aside its well-considered and established program of debt reduction, even then I cannot give you any assurance at the present time and without taking into consideration new burdens that we can retain the 1 per cent reduction and not incur the danger of a deficit.

National Income Reduced.

But if $100,000,000 or more is to be added to the expenditures already in sight it is perfectly apparent that the 1928 income tax rates must be restored, and I should not be quite fair to the members of both houses and to the taxpayers of the United States if I did not point out at this time that this increased burden may necessitate even higher rates than provided for in the 1928 revenue act.

In the present state of business, accompanied as it must be by an inevitable reduction in the national income, the Treasury Department is vitally interested in not definitely closing the door to the possibility of retaining the reduced tax rates now in existence. In spite of the figures above quoted, I am still hopeful that conditions may have shown such improvement by December as to justify my recommending to you and to the Congress a renewal of the action taken last December. The present estimates do not indicate that this is possible, but this does not mean that we should put ourselves in such a position as to preclude the possibility should events take a favorable course.

In this connection, I think it is appropriate to remind you of what this 1 per cent reduction means to the income-tax payer, and particularly to the income-tax payer with a moderate income.

Warns of Tax Increase.

If the 1 per cent reduction is not retained, approximately 2,059,000 taxpayers with net income of $10,000 or less will pay during the calendar year 1931 approximately $28,000,000 more than they would otherwise pay, thus losing the benefit of a 56 per cent reduction. If we take taxpayers with net incomes of $7,000 or less they will lose the benefit of a 66 per cent reduction in taxes. It will be remembered that about two-thirds of the tax reduction benefit to individuals was accorded to taxpayers with net incomes of $25,000 or less.

In so far as corporations are concerned, if the rate is restored to 12 per cent they will lose the benefit of approximately a $90,000,000 reduction in their income taxes—at a time when the government should endeavor to relieve rather than to increase the burdens on industry.

In conclusion I can answer your question by stating that legislation increasing the expenditures for 1931 by $100,000,000 and more over and above expenditures as now estimated by the Budget Director, will necessitate the restoration of rates applicable to 1931 income to the rates provided for in the revenue act of 1928, and it is probable that such increased expenditures may call for even higher taxes in order to maintain a balanced budget.

In fairness to the country, I feel that the Congress should be informed that if expenditures are further increased now, taxes must be in December.

Faithfully yours,
A. W. MELLON.

The President,
The White House.

GENERAL HINES'S LETTER.

United States Veterans' Bureau,
Washington.
Office of the Director.
June 21, 1930.

My Dear Mr. President:

I wish to call your attention to the very grave situation that has arisen in the matter of veterans' legislation, both as to the proposed principles being considered and their ultimate effect, if adopted, upon the veterans and upon the policy and expenditures of the government, and the very large immediate burden which this legislation calls for.

I recently advised the Senate Committee on Finance that the bill passed by the House of Representatives and then being considered by them would cost approximately $181,040,650 per annum, and a possible final annual expenditure of over $400,000,000.

The Senate Finance Committee made various amendments to this bill, and I have now made a reexamination of the cost implied under the bill as reported to the Senate. This bill requires an estimated immediate annual expenditure of $102,553,250, with a growing maximum cost reaching a potential amount in five years of approximately $225,000,000 per annum.

Of the deepest concern to the nation should be the principles being incorporated into these forms of legislation. The principles in both of these bills depart absolutely from the original conception of assistance to World War veterans based upon inability to earn their living because of injury or disease arising out of the World War.

Expending $511,000,000 Yearly Now.

No one questions the obligation of the nation to its disabled veterans, and under the present law some 374,500 veterans or their dependents, out of the total of 4,500,000, are now being compensated at annual expense approximating $206,000,000. These veterans also participate with all other veterans in the benefits of the War Risk insurance legislation, and the so-called bonus legislation, which bring up the total annual sum of expenditures of this bureau at the present time to approximately $511,000,000.

One of the results of this legislation would be that men suffering with those diseases now presumed to have been acquired in the service if developed prior to Jan. 1, 1925, would have such diseases presumed to have been acquired in the service if they developed prior to Jan. 1, 1930, and other men suffering with diseases which have not, heretofore, been afforded the benefit of any presumption by law, would be presumed to have acquired their diseases in the service if the same arose prior to Jan. 1, 1930. It is estimated that this provision alone would probably affect approximately 100,000 veterans not now in receipt of compensation benefits for these disabilities.

The medical council of the Veterans' Bureau, comprising some of the ablest physicians and surgeons of our country, has reported to me that the inclusion of the diseases contemplated by this provision is unsound medically, and it cannot be presumed that the diseases involved are the result of service during the World War. Therefore the theory upon which these benefits are extended is false.

If we are to depart from the sound principles of the payment of compensation for injury and disease resulting from war service, then it would appear to me that the real problem before us is whether the nation is going to assume responsibility for disabilities among the 4,500,000 veterans which originate as ordinary incidents of life.

The policy of our government, almost from its inception, has been to take care of our veterans when they have reached that period in life when they are overcome by permanent disabilities or age, so that they are unable to earn a support.

At this date, thirteen years after the World War, the veterans of that war average about 38 years of age. If it is claimed that the time has been reached when it is necessary to give consideration to the matter of a pension of this group of veterans along the same lines that we have cared for veterans of other wars, then the policy should be based upon the fundamental principles of pension legislation adapted to what the nation can afford to do for the entire group of veterans who will eventually have to be cared for.

Most certainly we should distinguish between those veterans whose injuries and disabilities were incurred in service, and those whose disabilities have been brought about by other causes after service.

To approve a measure which will simply take care of 100,000 of these men under a presumption which we know is unsound, where their disabilities are not due to service, without extending to their comrades in the larger group the same measure of relief, is manifestly inequitable. In other words, we are opening the door to a general pension system at the same rates of compensation given to men who actually suffered in the war. Its potential cost to the government may quite well run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

Suggests More Power for Bureau.

I have no doubt that the Congress has in mind, by suggesting the further broadening of the presumptive clause of the present World War veterans act, taking care of a number of cases which they feel are meritorious, and which at this time the law does not cover.

If it was only the intention of the Congress to take in border-line cases, it might well be accomplished by so amending the present act to permit the bureau to give due regard to lay and other evidence not of a medical nature in connection with the adjudication of claims. Such a provision would be interpreted by the Veterans' Bureau as sufficiently broad to permit liberal adjudicatio of border-line cases.

Another radical departure in the proposed legislation from the existing law is the provision to give a cash allowance to men in hospitals not suffering from a service-contracted disability, and while in hospital to also pay an allowance for their families and dependents.

Under the present law, where there are vacant beds available, opportunity is afforded to a veteran for medical care in hospitals when he is in need of treatment without regard to the character or origin of his disability. The hospital facilities of the government are at this time inadequate to provide for all veterans of non-compensable disability who need medical attention, and consequently there is before the bureau at all times a waiting list of men seeking treatment.

We are faced with the proposed policy of paying the veteran fortunate enough to secure a hospital bed an allowance for himself and his dependents. For the veteran who is equally in need of treatment, but for whom a hospital bed is not available, it is not proposed that any payment be made, either to himself or to his dependents.

Inequity immediately arises, and to the extent the government is not able to furnish hospital beds does this inequity increase. The Congress has not signified definitely its purpose to construct permanent hospital beds for all veterans who need hospital treatment. Certainly, with the passage of the proposed provision, there would result a definite and increasing demand for hospital beds, and in all equity such a demand cannot but be recognized.

Millions Needed for Hospitals.

It is conservatively estimated the total number of veterans who will need hospitalization is 69,000. If the government is to provide sufficient hospitalization so that all men suffering from disabilities irrespective of service origin can be hospitalized, it would necessitate providing within the next three years 13,000 new beds in addition to those existing or authorized.

The cost of construction of such facilities would approximate $45,500,000, and the annual maintenance cost, after completion, would approximate $19,500,000.

Further, if the government is to eliminate all question of inequality, even to the point where the bureau's peak of hospital load is expected, current estimates indicate an ultimate need of 39,400 additional beds. The cost of construction of these would approximate $137,900,000, with an annual cost of $59,100,000.

Even with all these provisions, we would not have taken care of old age and many other fatalities that may happen to our World War veterans.

My plea at the moment is that we are proceeding on wrong principles, that we are driving toward such a stupendous expenditure by the government, the extent of which cannot be estimated, as will eventually react against the interest of the disabled veterans themselves.

We are creating a prospective burden for the taxpayer, before we have adopted any sound national policy of dealing with the whole problem, which will have committed ourselves directly and inferentially to a total annual expenditure on account of World War veterans of upward of a billion dollars per annum, even before we have given consideration to the granting of pensions.

My plea is directed to the fact that this legislation should not be passed, and that there should be substituted an entire consideration of the principles upon which the nation will discharge its obligations, not by creating injustices and inequalities, but by some method of general application to the entire group.

Pending such study, I earnestly urge that the bill which I submitted for the consideration of Congress, which will be beneficial to many veterans, be adopted.

Very sincerely yours,
FRANK T. HINES, Director.

Five New York Scouts in Covered Wagon Started Off by Governor to Wyoming Fete

Special to The New York Times.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 22.—Five Boy Scouts, representing the five boroughs of New York City, were started on their trip to Independence Rock, Wyo., by Governor Roosevelt at 11 o'clock this morning. When they left the Governor's home they bore a letter written by him to the Governor of Wyoming.

"I wish I were going with you," said Governor Roosevelt. "You are going to take a wonderful trip over a historic trail. Give my regards to the Governor of Wyoming. You can be sure the Boy Scouts of New York State wish you well. I hope you have a wonderful trip."

His letter to the Governor of Wyoming read, in part:

"As president of the Boy Scout Foundation of the five associated Scout Councils, I send you greetings via the New York City Scouts' Patrol as they go to participate in the Independence Day celebration and memorial service at Independence Rock, Wyo."

The trip of the Scouts is being made in connection with the Covered Wagon Centennial and they are traveling in the covered wagon in which Ezra Meeker made the same trip two years before his death. The prairie schooner was loaned to the New York Scouts by Henry Ford.

The scouts, upon their arrival in Wyoming, will participate in the four-day celebration during the Fourth of July week-end.

The trip will take about ten days, and the boys will "rough it" on the journey, cooking their own meals and sleeping in tents. Hundreds of other scouts will join them at Independence Rock.

The five making the trip are Eagle Scout Leo Schoppmeyer, 614 West 172d Street, Troop 717, Manhattan; First Class Scout Warren Ceblula, 3,503 Wayne Avenue, Troop 193, the Bronx; Edmund Becker, 33-51 165th Street, Flushing, Troop 1, Queens; Eagle Scout Ambrose Bennet, 5,363 Arthur Kill Road, Tottenville, Troop 26, Staten Island; Life Scout Thomas E. Clancy, 654 Seventy-fifth Street, Brooklyn, Troop 53, Brooklyn.

Their itinerary is: June 23, Owego, N. Y., to Erie, Pa.; June 24, Erie to Toledo; June 25, Toledo to Chicago; June 26, morning in Chicago, luncheon with New York delegation of Rotary Club, then to Clinton, Iowa; June 27, Clinton to Des Moines; June 28, Des Moines to Omaha, Neb.; June 29, Omaha to Kearney, Neb.; June 30, Kearney to Ogallala, Neb.; July 1, Ogallala to Scotts Bluff, Neb.; July 2, Scotts Bluff to Casper, Wyo.; July 3, Independence Rock.

GOV. LONG DEFIED BY LEGISLATURE

Door Slammed in His Face as He Peeps Through It at Proceedings.

LOUISIANA IN A FUROR

Executive Unable to Get Through Bill Providing for $60,000,000 Highway Bond Issue.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 22 (AP).—The recent move of Governor Long for a constitutional convention to open the way for the passage of his proposed $60,000,000 highway bond issue has thrown Louisiana into a political furore.

The Governor controls a majority in the Legislature, but has been unable to muster the necessary two-thirds vote to amend the Constitution so as to provide for the issue.

Opponents of his program have organized under the leadership of virtually the entire daily press of the State to block the calling of a convention and road legislation. Admission has been made that a filibuster would be adopted as a weapon to prevent legislative action if other tactics failed.

Uneasy because the constitutional convention bill is trailing behind 102 other measures, House leaders supporting the Governor yesterday sought to advance it on the calendar by having Speaker Fournet rule that the measure could be advanced by a majority instead of a two-thirds vote.

This ruling brought a storm of protests from opposition leaders, who leaped to their feet with shouts of "Steam roller!" At the pitch of the clamor some of the Governor's followers announced they would not sanction the ruling and the motion to advance the bill was withdrawn.

During the debate Governor Long went on the floor to direct his forces personally, but a member raised a point of order against his presence and he departed before action was taken.

He stood in the hall and peeped through the door until a sergeant-at-arms was ordered to close it. It was slammed in the Governor's face.

The House also ordered the galleries cleared and finally went so far as to demand the removal of newspaper men. Reporters, however, were allowed to remain.

The scene in the Legislature followed a week of tense feeling at the Capitol, growing out of rival mass meetings held simultaneously at Baton Rouge. Speakers, including the Governor and Mayor T. Jemmes Walsley of New Orleans, hurled defiance at each other.

The constitutional convention bill has resumed its place near the bottom of the legislative list. Anti-Long leaders hope to prevent its being called up for final action before the Legislature adjourns by law on July 12.

WILL OPEN BIDS FOR FEDERAL PRISON

Bureau to Get Proposals for 1,000-Acre Tract in New York or Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP).—The Federal Government will take the first step toward carrying out its $7,000,000 prison expansion program tomorrow when proposals submitting sites for a new penitentiary in the Northeast will be opened in the Prison Bureau of the Department of Justice.

The site, which will be located in either Northeast Pennsylvania or Southeast New York, will comprise 1,000 acres. The contracts for construction of the $3,821,000 prison are expected to be awarded within another month. Sanford Bates, Superintendent of Federal Prisons, expects that the new institution will be completed and ready for occupancy a year from next October.

The prison will be located within a circle the centre of which is near Erie, Pa., and which touches New York City on the east and Detroit on the west. This locality was decided upon, Mr. Bates said, because it was the centre of prison population in the East, which has never had a Federal penitentiary.

The exact use of the prison has not been definitely decided, the superintendent recently told the House Appropriations Committee. He said it might be used for the more reformable and trainable class of prisoners, while the more hardened and long-term prisoners would be sent to another institution. However, he added, this was not definite and it might be used to house all prisoners from the northeast section.

Melville D. Post Gravely Ill.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., June 22 (AP).—The condition of Melville Davisson Post, author, ill for two weeks in Clarksburg Hospital, was described as "very grave" tonight by the writer's brother, Dr. Sydney H. Post, one of the attending physicians. Chances of his recovery were considered doubtful.

lowing a survey, and to obtain a uniform rate on city property, I did it for the best interests of the city. I do think it was quite an injustice to me to have indictments against me on policies where if there was any profit it was not more than a few cents."

Siracusa Former Speaker.

Anthony J. Siracusa, former Speaker of the New Jersey House of Assembly and Republican floor leader there, was both personally and politically intimate with Mayor Ruffu. He was one of a small group who accompanied the Mayor when, on last March 13, Mr. Ruffu went to the chambers of Judge Smathers to receive formal notification of his indictment on fourteen graft charges.

Siracusa was an attorney and a member of the board of several financial institutions. He was first elected to the Legislature in 1923. He was appointed Speaker of the Assembly after re-election to that body in November, 1926.

He was born of American parents in Messina, Italy, in 1894.

GUARDSMEN PROTECT MOB VICTIM'S BURIAL

Troops Who Reached Union, S. C., Too Late to Save Negro Leave Town After Funeral.

UNION, S. C., June 22 (AP).—Guarded by the same National Guard unit that arrived 30 minutes too late to save him from death at the hands of an angry mob, the bullet-laden body of Dan Jenkins, Beaufort, N. C., Negro, was buried in a pauper's grave at the county poorfarm here today.

Jenkins, was shot to death after he had been identified by two young white women of the Santuce Community, near here, as their attacker. They were Mrs. O. L. Shipman, 23, and her 16-year-old sister-in-law, Miss Mary Eleazer Shipman.

Mrs. Shipman, under the care of physicians, was reported today to be suffering from a severe case of shock but her general condition was not considered serious. Miss Shipman, who said she escaped from Jenkins's grasp by jerking away and leaving part of her clothing in the Negro's hands, had recovered from her fright.

The feeling that reached its height when 50 to 100 men emptied volley after volley from pistols and shotguns into Jenkins's body had died down today.

It was feared last night that an effort would be made to burn the body and a cordon of uniformed guardsmen was thrown around the undertaking establishment. The National Guard was withdrawn after the Negro had been buried today.

The inquest, which was opened last night on orders from Governor John Richards of Columbia, who denounced what he termed the "reprehensible conduct" of Sheriff J. C. Greer of Union, brought from the Sheriff the statement that he did not recognize any member of the mob.

The National Guard, ordered out by Governor Richards, arrived thirty minutes after the Negro had been lynched.

Jenkins was the second Negro to be lynched in South Carolina within two months. Allen Green, 50, was killed by a mob at Walhalla, S. C., April 23. He, too, was accused of attacking a white woman. Seventeen men are under indictment in this case.

Prior to that time there had not been a lynching in the State since 1926.

THE EMPRESS OF JAPAN IS DOCKED AT QUEBEC

New Liner, Destined for Pacific Service, One of Most Luxurious Vessels Afloat.

Special to the New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., June 22.—The largest vessel that ever reached Quebec, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan, destined for transpacific service, is in dock at that port.

In addition to being the largest ship that ever traversed the St. Lawrence route, the 26,000-ton liner ranks as one of the world's most luxurious vessels. It is 970 feet long, 83½ feet wide and 41 feet in depth.

The Empress of Japan embodies the latest in passenger-ship design, and is destined to carry travelers between Vancouver and Japan, China, Hongkong, Hawaii and the Philippines. Its equipment includes every accessory to comfort.

Lounges, smoking rooms, drawing room, ballroom and the long gallery all show the influence of the East.

A stage in the lounge provides a scene for amateur theatricals or motion pictures, a verandah cafe lends a cool touch to the surroundings, and there is a marble swimming pool with showers, dressing rooms and electric baths.

The palm court first catches the attention on boarding the ship. It is ceilinged with ground glass, through which filters golden light. At the forward end is the dining salon, the full width of the ship.

A promenade of futuristic design leads to the oak ballroom. Above it is the garden, a glass enclosed promenade, where there are many colorful blooms.

The swimming pool is sunk in a marble setting, at the upper end of which a golden dolphin sprays the centre of the pool. The pool is surrounded by a promenade and at the lower end is a buffet in modernistic design.

All lighting is from concealed fixtures. In each room the woods, furnishings and fixtures are artistically blended. Two suites have tiny gardens with cool-looking Summer furniture.

The Empress of Japan will leave Quebec in a few days for the Pacific, there to take her place in the Canadian Pacific service.

BERENGARIA'S CABINS JAMMED ON SAILING

Carries Largest Number in First-Class of Any Liner This Year —Delayed by the Tide.

The Cunarder Berengaria, scheduled to sail last midnight, was held at her pier to await the turn of the tide and officials of the line said she would not get away until nearly dawn this morning. She will carry 1,830 passengers, of whom 617 are in the first class. This is the largest number of first-class passengers to leave New York on one liner this year.

Among the passengers were Robert H. Blaker, general manager of the Cunard Line, and Harold P. Borer, general passenger agent. They are on their way to London to confer with other officials regarding plans for the new thirty-knot 70,000-ton liner the Cunard Company will build to compete with the new North German Lloyd express liners Bremen and Europa.

P. M. Shelton, Royal Commissioner of Immigration, was another passenger. He traveled second class, as do all members of the British Labor Government. In the second class also were twenty-two members of the Glasgow Rangers football team, which has just completed a tour of the United States. About 500 Scots living in New York were at the pier to see them off. The Berengaria will make the trip home with three propellers, giving her a speed of about 19 knots because of trouble which developed in one of her turbines on the trip over.

In the tourist third cabin was a large group of members of the Student Travel Club who arrived last night from Newcomb College, New Orleans, in special cars, and another large party of students and teachers from the University of Omaha, Neb., in charge of Professor Albert Kuhn, bound for Oberammergau, Bavaria, to see the Passion Play.

NAMED TO COMBAT GOVERNMENT WASTE

Eight Authorities on Business and Government Appointed by State Economic Council.

WILL AID PRENDERGAST

Special Committee Will Seek Reduction of State and Local Government Expenses.

RESULTS EXPECTED SOON

Council Chairman Says Suggestions May Be Ready for Next Legislature.

ALBANY, June 22 (AP).—The appointment of eight authorities on business, economics and government administration to a committee which will make a survey "to combat the enormous waste in both State and local governments" was announced here tonight by the New York State Economic Council, formerly known as the Committee of Twenty-five, New York Statewide Economic Congress.

The eight appointees will serve with William A. Prendergast, former chairman of the Public Service Commission, whose appointment as chairman of the special committee on public expenditures was announced by the council recently. They are:

Dr. GEORGE BARTON CUTTEN, president of Colgate University.
GEORGE McANENY, former president of the Borough of Manhattan and former chairman of the New York Transit Commission.
WESLEY ANGLE, secretary of the Stromberg-Carlson Company, Rochester.
JOHN L. TRAIN, secretary-treasurer and general manager of the Utica Mutual Insurance Company.
NORMAN P. CLEMENT, president of the Genesee Properties Company of Buffalo.
CHARLES I. DAY, president of W. & L. E. Gurley, Troy.
HENRY BRUERE, vice-president of the Bowery Savings Bank, New York.
MAURICE HOOPES, president of Finch, Pruyn & Co., Inc., Glens Falls.

ALBANY, June 22.—Discussing the purposes of the New York State Economic Council in appointing a committee to make a survey for the combating of waste in State and local governments, Merwin K. Hart of Utica, chairman of the council, said:

"A report taking into account the broad social, political and economic considerations involved in the annual expenditures within the State, which considerably exceed $1,000,000,000, is to be placed before the public and the governmental leadership," said a statement issued by Merwin K. Hart of Utica, chairman of the council.

"It is hoped that it will be helpful in checking the soaring cost of government, with its concomitant hardships for the State's industry and commerce and the people generally.

"At the last session of the Legislature some mention was made of rapidly mounting public expenditures. Action was taken with reference to a general tax revision, but no action was taken regarding public expenditures. It is believed that the committee on public expenditures which we are now appointing will be able to offer suggestions that may be of value to the next Legislature and to local governments."

Council to Assist Committee.

The committee, which is serving without compensation, will have the further assistance of the council, made up of economists, educators, industrialists, merchants and financiers, organized in June by Mr. Hart and James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, to place at the disposal of the State the leadership of its represented fields. Economical administration of government to protect the waning dominance of the State's industry and commerce is one of its principal objects. Additional members are:

CHARLES E. ADAMS, New York.
MAGNUS W. ALEXANDER, New York.
GEORGE F. BAYLE, Glens Falls.
EDGAR H. BETTS, Albany.
ROBERT S. BINKERD, New York.
Chancellor ELMER BROWN of New York University.
JOHN N. CARLISLE, Watertown.
H. T. DYETT, Rome.
ALEXANDER D. FALCK, Corning.

20,000 FOSSILS PUT ON VIEW IN BOLIVIA

Paleontological Collection Being Shown at La Paz Contains Some Unrecorded Specimens.

Special Correspondence, THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, June 10.—The exhibition of a great paleontological collection, comprising more than 20,000 fossil remains of fauna of the Pliocene terrain in the Department of Tarija, Southern Bolivia, which opened here June 6 at Tiahuanaco Palace, is attracting widespread interest among scientists and the public.

The beds in which these fossils were found stretch from the Chijmuri Cordillera on the west as far as Aguairenda and are formed by argyl strata, sand and other materials that have been washed down from the neighboring ranges and accumulated on a bed rock of Silurian formation. They have an average thickness of about 260 feet.

The most remarkable specimens of the collection, which filled 310 cases when it was packed, are craniums, mandibles, and other parts of megatherium, glossotherium, solitherium, mylodon, glyptodon, and other edentata which have not been recorded by scientists up to the present day. It also contains a variety of equidae (horse family), including andium, rectidens, curvidens and others; and numerous parts of mastodon which, if pieced together, would complete several skeletons. The latter include the tusks and cranium of a mastodon of unknown dimensions, which are remarkably well preserved.

Also included in the collection is the carapace of a glyptodon with abdominal plastrons, which is said to be a genus unknown in the world of science; and a human fossilized femur found at the base of the Pliocene formation at Tarija. From the shortness of the femur, scientists believe that it belonged to a human being of short stature. They place great importance upon its discovery and believe it may serve to establish the existence of man during the Tertiary era, a view not held by scientists now.

A study of the fossil fauna of Tarija was made at the beginning of the present century by a French scientific expedition headed by Count Crequi de Montfort de La Grange, and the results recorded by the well known paleontologist, M. Boule. But the material obtained by the expedition was fragmentary, unfortunately, and no thorough study has as yet been undertaken.

CONNECTICUT CENSUS SHOWS 222,182 GAIN

Total Reaches 1,602,813, With Hartford Displacing New Haven as Largest City.

NEW HAVEN, June 22 (AP).—The 1930 population of Connecticut, based on preliminary figures, is 1,602,813, as compared with 1,308,631 in 1920, a gain of 222,182, or 16.1 per cent.

Hartford, the capital city, became the State's largest city today, when a recount of its population showed 163,849 inhabitants, as compared with 138,036 a decade ago. It surpassed by 1,199 New Haven, which had hitherto led the State. New Haven's present population of 162,650 represents a gain of only 113 in ten years.

Waterbury, brass manufacturing centre, went into the 100,000 class today, when a preliminary report disclosed a population of 101,107, as compared with 91,715 in 1920.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 22 (AP).—An unofficial tabulation today of census returns from all Georgia counties gave the State's population as 2,887,280. Most of them are at work.

This, compared with a population of 2,842,665 in 1920, is an increase of 44,725.

Virtually all the figures are preliminary and subject to revision.

The number of unemployed in the State was estimated at 2 per cent.

Most Georgia cities and all those with populations of more than 25,000 had good gains, but there were losses in most of the rural sections.

The Associated Press gave out the following additional census figures:

Duluth, Minn.—101,231. Increase 2,314, or 2.5 per cent.

OL' VIRGINNY HONORS A HEROIC SON.
Governor John G. Pollard presenting to Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd a sword, the gift of the people of Virginia, at the celebration in the explorer's honor in Richmond Saturday.

HOME FOLKS GREET BYRD AT WINCHESTER

with ticker tape and has received the tributes of New York, Washington and Richmond, but none of these celebrations had the atmosphere of that of today. For long intervals, between the lines of his informal talk, Admiral Byrd remained silent. The crowd, instead of applauding wildly, remained silent, waiting for "Dick" to tell them more of the wonders he had seen.

This he did, anecdotes and episodes as would a wanderer seated again at the family hearth. Within an hour of his arrival he had changed from the white civilian clothes he had worn from Richmond into the white uniform of his naval rank.

In the leading one of four automobiles he rode to the amphitheatre from his mother's home, escorted by the Handley band and motorcycle policemen. With him were Mrs. Byrd, former Governor and Mrs. Harry Byrd and Captain Thomas Byrd, completing the famous "Tom, Dick and Harry" trio, and W. Nelson Page, chairman of the reception committee, and Philip Williams, a lifelong friend.

The cavalcade proceeded through a street flanking the amphitheatre, lined with friends and spectators from many parts of the State, to the high school entrance, while the crowd hurried down into the pit. Admiral Byrd, with his wife and mother, followed by the reception committee, walked from a school exit to the eminence overlooking the pit while the cheers of the assembly echoed from the walls.

The Rev. Dr. F. T. McFaden, pastor of the Loudoun Street Presbyterian Church, who presided, first told Admiral Byrd of the city's pleasure in his safe return, after which the Rev. Mr. Wilson delivered his prayer of gratitude. Then the Rev. E. T. Clark of the First Baptist Church read the verses of thanksgiving in Psalm 95, 1-8.

Welcomed as "Dick" Byrd.

Mr. Williams dwelt on the accomplishments of Admiral Byrd's predecessors in Virginia, saying:

"Out of this civilization there issued a group of political and military leaders unsurpassed in the history of the English-speaking race. And now we have Admiral Byrd, the most famous polar explorer in all history, the man who has recaptured in an age of materialism the zest and flavor of romantic adventure."

There were two Richard Byrds, he stated, one, Admiral Byrd of worldwide fame, the other, "Dick" Byrd, who belonged only to Winchester, and to whom he said:

"We are here as home folks to welcome you, 'Dick' Byrd, as a citizen of Winchester."

Referring to the Admiral's brother, one of the State's most popular Governors, Dr. Williams voiced a hope, also expressed in Richmond last evening, when he said:

"It is not impossible that when "Dick Byrd" returns from his next great conquest to be honored in Washington by the National Geographic Society, he will be introduced to that audience by a President who also is his own brother."

Admiral Byrd's Response.

"I am entirely unable to express myself except to say again, 'it's great to be back again'," Admiral Byrd said in response. "It was good to be brought into town by Phil Williams and Nelson Page and to land in the house on Amherst Street where first I saw the light of day. And it was good to get some good Virginia fried chicken.

"You know," he added, "I've eaten fried chicken all over the world, but none of it tasted just right except that cooked in Virginia."

One of the few hints of the loneliness of his vigil on the Ross ice shelf was voiced by the explorer after he again, as always, credited his companions with enabling him to succeed.

"For many months my thoughts have turned continually to my arrival home again," he said. "Once it looked like that would be delayed a year because of the ice conditions, and then I was most homesick of all. It is great to be back."

Turning to the lighter side of his trip, he again recounted the anecdotes which have entertained his previous audiences.

Receives a Silver Bowl.

The silver bowl, another trophy to be added to the Geographic Society Medal and the Richmond sword, was tendered by Mayor F. A. Shryock. On one side, above the coat of arms of the Byrd family, is the inscription:

"To Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, whose loyalty to his native city has not been diminished by world fame and whose virtues are equal to his achievements."

The reverse side bears the following words:

"Presented by the City Council, Winchester, Va., 1930."

Beneath is the city's coat of arms.

Following the exercises, the explorer shook the hands of hundreds of admirers and returned to his mother's home. He stood in the open car, the bowl tucked under his left arm while he waved his right to the cheering crowd.

The Trip From Richmond.

His trip from Richmond to Winchester was as speedy as it was informal. After a full eight hours' sleep, the weary lines about his mouth and eyes caused by the strenuous reception program of three cities had been erased.

After the taking of photographs on the lawn the Byrd family got into two cars which had come from Winchester. Mr. Bryan, the Admiral's host, escorted him to a point outside Richmond, and a fifth car, containing two friends, brought up the rear. The cars followed a road that led through the Shenandoah Valley and the Blue Ridge Mountains, 160 miles by the route traveled.

Soon after leaving the city limits Mr. Bryan's car drew to the side of the road and the other cars halted. At the spot were assembled about twenty children, accompanied by three gray-robed nuns and a priest, the residents of St. Joseph's Catholic Orphanage, with whom Mr. Bryan had arranged to surprise the Admiral.

Ann Galbrath, 3 years old, the youngest of the group, presented a huge bouquet of roses to the explorer.

Another surprise awaited Admiral Byrd at Warrenton, a town of 1,400 population, where celebrated horse shows are held. As the cars approached, a waiting automobile swung in front of them and led the procession. When it passed the town limits a bell in the tower of the ancient court house began to toll.

The streets seemed to be deserted, but as the party reached the court house square a large portion of the population of the town suddenly appeared and gave rousing cheers. The cars were stopped and Admiral Byrd was escorted to the court house steps, where Mayor T. E. Frank awaited him. The audience stood silent.

The homecomer moistened his lips, looked at the sky, at the crowd, at those nearest him, some of whom reached out to shake hands, and then said:

"Now I know I really have come home."

There was another cheer as he was escorted through the crowd back to his car and the fast pace resumed.

A reception car and a motorcycle escort met the party at the boundary of Winchester, and other cars that had been waiting fell in behind for an impromptu parade through a street of fine old houses, decorated with flags and bunting.

This evening was spent by Admiral Byrd with his mother in the first privacy they have enjoyed since his return. The visit was of brief duration, however, as he started from Martinsburg at midnight. He will arrive on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad early tomorrow.

REQUIRES NEW LICENSES.

Commerce Department Lays Down Rules for Parachute Handling.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Any person who packs, repairs or is charged with the inspection and maintenance of parachutes, approved as to airworthiness by the Department of Commerce, will be required, beginning July 1, to obtain from the department a "parachute rigger's license," under new regulations announced today by Major Clarence M. Young, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics.

"Only those who successfully pass examinations designed to test their capability of inspecting, repairing, packing and otherwise properly caring for parachutes will be granted the parachute rigger's licenses," Mr. Young said.

"The applicant must be at least 18 years of age and, in addition to passing the required examination, he must have available all necessary equipment for repair work or repacking, and must show that he has packed twenty or more parachutes which have been satisfactorily jumped or drop-tested."

The license will remain in effect for two years, but may be revoked or suspended upon any demonstration of incompetency. It may be renewed for an additional two years on proof that the holder has rendered service under his license for at last one-half of the term.

BYRD AND LINDBERGH TO CHAT HERE TODAY

Colonel Will Call on Explorer to Congratulate Him on Antarctic Exploit.

LUNCHEON FOR ADMIRAL

Chamber of Commerce to Honor Him This Noon—One Ship to Be Sold, Other May Be Museum.

Two men whose courageous accomplishments in the air have given them world-wide fame are scheduled to meet at the Biltmore today to chat about their common interests. They are Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

Colonel Lindbergh will call on Admiral Byrd at 11 o'clock this morning in the Admiral's rooms at the Biltmore to congratulate him on the Antarctic explorations from which he has just returned.

Admiral Byrd, who spent yesterday resting at his home in Virginia, will arrive at the Pennsylvania Station in New York at 7:30 o'clock this morning, accompanied by Mrs. Byrd and their son, Richard E. Jr., and immediately plunge into a strenuous day. His time will be divided, with every moment accounted for until late in the evening, between receptions and the work of disbanding the expedition which has been in existence almost two years.

Ships to Be Reconditioned.

Two ships which served him so well, the bark City of New York and the supply ship Eleanor Bolling, will be towed from the foot of Fiftieth Street and the North River, where they are now moored, to the Todd shipyards in Brooklyn. There they will be unloaded and reconditioned.

The Eleanor Bolling, it was announced yesterday by Captain H. H. Railey, Admiral Byrd's personal representative here, will be sold. The ship, 170 feet long, with a cargo capacity of 800 tons and a maximum speed of fourteen knots, was purchased for the expedition in August, 1928, for $34,000. It formerly was named the Chelsea. The money obtained for the Eleanor Bolling will be used to reduce the deficit of the expedition, understood to be about $100,000.

The City of New York probably will be made into a floating exhibit of the expedition.

The two ships are now tied up at Pier 90 under a guard of marines. A carnival for the benefit of a Summer camp for poor children of the west side was going on yesterday at the foot of Fiftieth Street, and some of the visitors paid the carnival management 10 cents each to go on the pier and see the ships at close range. No one was allowed aboard them, however, for they still contain much of the expedition's equipment.

Messages Pouring In.

Hundreds of messages are pouring into the headquarters of the expedition in the Biltmore in such a flood that the staff has not even classified them yet. They are from practically every State in the Union and from Mayors of the principal cities. They include congratulations on his successful work and invitations to visit them.

In this connection Captain Railey said yesterday that the Admiral's schedule had been completed through July 12 and could not be added to. On that day he will go to St. Louis to be the guest of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. After that he will go into retirement to complete his book, which he has already begun, work with Dr. Lawrence M. Gould, Captain Ashley C. McKinley, William C. Haines and other members of the expedition on the scientific data gathered, and prepare the lectures which he will begin delivering late in September. These lectures will be illustrated with about 7,000 feet of moving picture film, to be selected from the twenty-five miles of film which were exposed on the expedition. This picture, said Captain Railey, will consist of entirely different material from that now being shown in motion picture houses. The rest of the film, it is expected, will be given by the Paramount company and Admiral Byrd to scientific institutions which aided the expedition.

Plans have been completed for Admiral Byrd's trip to Boston, where he maintains a residence, for that city's reception next Friday. The Admiral will call on Governor Frank G. Allen at the State House and a reception will be held for him on Boston Common. Admiral Byrd's visit to Boston will be a part of the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the founding of the city.

The public events to be attended by Admiral Byrd today will be the luncheon in his honor to be given at 12 o'clock by the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York at its headquarters, 65 Liberty Street, and the dinner to Bernt Balchen, chief pilot of the expedition, to be given by Norsemen's Lodge 878, F. and A. M., at the Hotel St. George in Brooklyn.

A notable reception is being planned for Harold I. June, co-pilot, with Balchen, in the flight over the South Pole, by the city of Stamford, Conn., where he was born. Mayor Graves and an official committee came to New York last Thursday to welcome Mr. June on the arrival of the expedition. A police escort from Stamford will take Mr. June to that city on Thursday for the reception.

BYRD REALLY HAD ICEBOXES

Food Would Have Frozen if Exposed to Weather, It Is Explained.

Taking iceboxes to the Antarctic seems a little like carrying the proverbial coal to Newcastle, yet the Byrd expedition had at least two of them. Members of the expedition told a party from Abraham & Straus, Inc., collecting souvenirs for a display, that the iceboxes had been used in the southernmost latitudes. Food, they explained, would have been frozen stiff if exposed to the weather. The cabins, on the other hand, were too warm. So the iceboxes had been used to strike the happy medium.

The display at Abraham & Straus will open today and continue for a week. One item of considerable interest will be a sled carried by Byrd and his three companions on the flight over the Pole. Because the flight was successful, there was no occasion to use the sled, but had the plane been forced down it would have been used to carry food on the trek back to the base.

Three other sleds used by the geological expedition under Professor Lawrence M. Gould in the Queen Maud Mountains also will be on exhibition.

YANCEY DESCRIBES PERU-CHILE FLIGHT

Forced Down by Darkness and Broken Oil Line in 3 Days of Flying to Santiago.

LANDED IN COW PASTURE

Flier, Radioing Progress Direct to The Times, Attempts Perilous Trans-Andean Hop Next.

By Captain LEWIS A. YANCEY,
Pilot of the Airplane Pilot-Radio.

ON BOARD THE AIRPLANE PILOT-RADIO, at Santiago, Chile, via Radio Direct to THE NEW YORK TIMES, June 22.—After five very pleasant days in Lima we took to the air at 2 o'clock Saturday morning, June 14, bound for Arica, Chile. From the very moment of the take-off we encountered headwinds and thick clouds. To avoid the mountains it was necessary to fly along the coast over the water at very low altitudes.

As time passed it became evident we were not to get into Arica before dark, and as the landing field was not equipped for night flying, an emergency landing would be necessary. About 5 P. M. a long beach and a small village came into view and we landed without trouble about 120 miles short of our destination.

We spent a very uncomfortable night in the mud hut that passed for a hotel and were up and ready to go a few minutes after daylight. This is one town none of us desire to visit again in the near future.

Arriving at Arica about 8:20 Sunday morning, June 15, we learned the papers had reports of us as lost. As we landed we were greeted by the Pan-American Grace representative, who had assembled all his pilots and flying equipment and was about to launch an aerial search for us.

After taking on gas and oil and a little breakfast we took off at about 11 A. M. for Antofagosta, arriving there at 5:50 P. M. After a good night's rest we got away next morning for Santiago at 9:30. We had been on the field since 7 o'clock, as the fog held us.

Low clouds and headwinds were again much in evidence all day long. We followed the coast line a mile or two off shore and only a few feet above the water. At about 4:30 P. M. we cut for the southeast and headed for Santiago.

Suddenly the oil pressure dropped from sixty pounds to forty, and then gradually down to ten pounds and at the same time the oil temperature climbed from 140 degrees to 210. That meant but one thing, and that was to land immediately. Land we did, in a cow pasture, and after an inspection we discovered a broken oil line which had drained practically all the oil.

Five minutes after landing I was much surprised to see a party of men aproaching across the field. They later proved to be Chilean naval fliers who had witnessed our landing.

Early Tuesday evening (June 17), after effecting temporary repairs and obtaining a supply of oil from the Chilean naval base, we took off without difficulty and landed at Santiago at exactly noon.

We are going to stay here a day or two more and rest up and then take the short but dangerous hop over the Andes to Mendoza in Argentina. This is considered one of the most hazardous and difficult hops in existence. Well, we will try it and let you know just how bad it really is.

WRECK FATAL TO TWO.

Fireman Dies of Burns, Engineer Killed, in Derailing in West Virginia

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 22 (AP).—Cause of the derailment of a Chesapeake & Ohio passenger train last night at Hawks Nest, sixty miles east of here, which resulted fatally for the engineer and fireman, remained unreported or undetermined tonight.

E. L. Boch, general superintendent of the Western general division of the railroad, after spending the day at the scene of the wreck of The Sportsman, which was en route from Newport News to Detroit, started for Huntington, W. Va., without announcing the result of his investigation.

Homer Haskell of Huntington, engineer, was killed and H. C. Anderson of Huntington, fireman, was so badly scalded by steam which burst from the cracked boiler of the locomotive that he died soon after the wreck. The engine, two combination coaches and a passenger coach left the tracks and overturned. Two of the train crew and a passenger were hurt.

FIRE ROUTS 28 IN HOTEL.

Incendiary Suspected In Morning Blaze at Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 22.—Twenty-eight guests were routed from the Royal Palace Hotel here shortly after 11 A. M. today by a fire of suspicious origin, and hundreds lined the Boardwalk to view the spectacle. An investigation is under way, but firemen are sure that the Chelsea incendiary was not to blame, as they declared the man who started the twenty or more fires in the Chelsea district was caught last week and placed in an asylum. This was not confirmed officially, but firemen said the man was caught and found mentally unbalanced. His name is being withheld, but they declared he is a college graduate and a civil engineer.

The fire in the hotel was kept from sweeping the whole of the huge frame structure. The flames started in a storeroom in the basement directly under the dining room. They were discovered by a bellboy. An alarm was given and the guests had time to remove their baggage. Fire Chief Johnson put the damage at less than $6,000.

SAYS MAN FEELS GOD'S AID.

Rabbi Lichtenstein Declares We Know by Instinct He Will Help.

Man does not need to cogitate and analyze in order to realize divine goodness, for "he feels instinctively the goodness of God," declared Rabbi Morris Lichtenstein in his sermon yesterday at the Jewish Science Services in the auditorium, 150 West Eighty-fifth Street.

"Even when man's mind is filled with doubts and questionings, his heart—the medium of intuitive knowledge—feels God's goodness and appeals to it for help and protection," said Rabbi Lichenstein. "When oppressed with failure, when stricken with suffering, when bereavement visits him, man forgets his doubts and his wavering beliefs and instinctively turns to God for rescue. In a crucial moment man does not pause to think—he does not need to; he feels the resence of God, and he feels that He is good."

DR. KLEIN HAILS 'SCIENTIFIC TARIFF'

Flexible Provision Brings Treatment in Step With Changing Business Age, He Says.

'LOG-ROLLING' ELIMINATED

Inequities Will Be Adjusted by "Fair-Minded" Commission, Radio Audience Is Told.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The new flexible provision of the Hawley-Smoot act is a "forward-looking" measure that conforms to the spirit of the modern business age, Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, declared in a radio talk, broadcast tonight over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

President Hoover has felt, Dr. Klein declared, that excesses of log-rolling, lobbying and rate swapping must be replaced by a new era, and as a medium for this the President had "developed with Congress one of the most vital provisions" of the new tariff law in the clauses that provide for a reorganized Tariff Commission and new flexibility in the tariff.

The primary purpose of the flexible provision, Dr. Klein asserted, is to correct the inequalities, incongruities and mistakes "admittedly present" in the text of the new law. The new Tariff Commission will be composed of men of "outstanding ability, fair-mindedness and high repute," he said, "imbued with the sincere desire and purpose of the President to revitalize the flexible provision and make it genuinely helpful" to consumers as well as producers.

The United States, he continued, was about the only major commercial nation that had persistently adhered to the idea of a "rigid" tariff, but in these days of sudden economic change elasticity of trade strategy was of paramount importance.

An important innovation in the new flexible set-up, Dr. Klein declared, is the chance it offers, under President Hoover's interpretation of it, for foreign countries to present their cases for consideration by the Tariff Commission under the flexible provision.

Growth of Business Complexities.

Dr. Klein's address, in part, follows:

"No tariff law has ever met universal commendation, even among the members of the party chiefly responsible for its passage.

"The truth is that modern business has become so enormously complex that a legislative body is bound to find the proper adjustment of the rates on the thousands, the tens of thousands, of commodities in contemporary commerce an inconceivably difficult and formidable task. Add to this the necessity for each Congressman to get recognition for the interests of his section or district by combining with others to promote their needs, and you have log-rolling.

"Moreover, when a tariff bill—or any bill—is under discussion for eighteen months, the halls of Washington are filled with lobbyists fomenting drives and propaganda; inevitably, therefore, the admitted zeal and high purposes of the leaders on both sides have been largely obscured.

"We Americans are strong for efficiency in our methods of doing things. We multiply labor-saving devices in our industries. Is it not possible for us to bring a new economy into the "tariff-factory" where duties are made presumably in the interests of these very industries, and of the public as a whole?

"The President has felt that these excesses of log-rolling, lobbying and rate-swapping must be replaced by a new era. As a medium for this he has developed with Congress one of the most vital provisions of the new tariff law. I believe that we have here a most helpful instrument to be wielded for the public good—one which, in the field of tariff-building, is capable of substituting reason for rancour, precision for prejudice, and calm, well-planned decision for endless confusing debate.

"I mean, of course, the clauses that provide for a reorganized Tariff Commission and a new flexibility in this tariff of ours. In substance, the flexible provision means simply that an expert tariff commission is given authority to determine the right rate and to recommend it to the President. If he approves, it goes into effect, replacing the rate named by Congress. The authority of the commission is, of course, by no means unlimited. No rate may be increased or decreased by more than 50 per cent.

"In view of the extreme complexity of modern economic conditions and of the pressure of special interests and of sectional viewpoints upon the members of the Congress during the framing of a tariff act, it would be truly surprising if there issued from such a struggle a measure devoid of inequities, incongruities and mistakes. Such unsatisfactory phases are admittedly present in the text of the new law. The primary purpose of the flexible provision is to permit the new Tariff Commission to correct them.

Swift Changes in Commerce.

"Moreover, the flexible provision conforms to the spirit of the modern business age. In any broad view of our present-day business life we find ourselves confronted with a rather startling paradox—namely, the indisputable fact that about the only enduring element in contemporary commerce is its rapidity of change. We are witnessing positively kaleidoscopic shifts in industry and trade.

"Under conditions such as these no fiscal policy, no tariff policy, can prove widely, permanently satisfactory if it is afflicted with undue rigidity.

"And, incidentally, we are about the only major commercial nation which has adhered most persistently to the idea of a rigid tariff. Over the past fifty years we have had only eight new tariffs, or an average of one for about every six years. In contrast with that, every one of our trade rivals has been very sensibly shifting at frequent intervals this or that portion of its tariff structure to suit the new circumstances of consumers and of the interested trades.

"But here is an important innovation in our new flexible set-up. The President's interpretation of the new clause gives to it a generous and human aspect in our relations with other countries that has not elsewhere been attained. In fact, not another government on earth has invited other nations to avail themselves of a specially constituted body to pass upon their complaints regarding alleged tariff obstacles to trade, short-cutting the time-consuming diplomatic circumlocutions customary in dealings between governments. Let us hope that the benefit of this example will not go unnoticed beyond our borders, for we certainly have had on our part an abundance of just complaint against the inequities of foreign tariffs long antedating the retaliatory furor of recent months.

"A permanent scientific body working continuously and exclusively on this subject, in somewhat the way the Interstate Commerce Commission works at our railway rate structure, can, in collaboration with the President, make adjustments on individual commodities, as conditions change or need is proven—without introducng uncertainty into the entire business fabric.

"The new Tariff Commission which the President is directed by the new act to designate within ninety days, replacing any or all of the present incumbents, will be composed of men of outstanding ability, fair-mindedness and high repute before the American public—imbued with the sincere desire and purpose of the President to revitalize the flexibility provision and make it genuinely helpful to consumers as well as producers.

"The President has declared his intention to make it an effective means of removing any serious inequities or inadequacies that may be incorporated in the present bill—accomplishing that result through a prompt and scientific adjustment of the duties in the light of differences in production cost here and abroad.

Predicts Success for Clause.

"Here is a chance, offered in the fairest, friendliest spirit, for our foreign friends to present their cases for consideration in a manner devoid of all partisan bitterness and of the exaggerations of political expediency which are more or less universal in tariff discussions.

"Possibly at this point I hear some critic muttering to himself: 'Haven't we already had a flexible tariff arrangement for nearly nine years, and what has it accomplished? It has raised a few rates and lowered one or two.'

"There are a variety of reasons why, I believe, we may reasonably hope that the new Tariff Commission will accomplish a great deal more in changing rates in both directions under this clause than was done under the old plan. In the first place, there has been an entire revolution in powers. Instead of a very limited and circumscribed authority for the President, we now have a rate-making commission of large powers. Second, the American people are now for the first time fully ripe for real use of a Tariff Commission.

"I spoke a moment ago about the powers given to the Tariff Commission. Here is a point that should be stressed: The one big lesson learned from the experimental operation of the first flexible tariff was that it was extremely difficult to adjust duties simply on the basis of a direct comparison of domestic and foreign production costs. Production costs are difficult to ascertain even in this country, and investigations abroad by American representatives into the offices and factories of foreign producers have often been keenly resented.

"In many cases, no reports or decisions could be made under the old flexible provision because of the absence of reliable or representative data on production costs. Bear in mind, too, that one of the technical difficulties in fixing proper rates hitherto has been the question of transportation costs—whether they should be included in a comparison of production costs and, if so, transportation to what point. Should it be the point of entry into the country? Should it be the principal markets? Should it be the main consuming centre? There was vagueness and uncertainty under the old law—but the new law gives definite instructions on that point. Here we see a vital element of superiority in the legislation now in force.

"Now, if actual production costs are not readily ascertainable—or if the commission desires to act on data supplementary to such costs—it may take into account evidence of costs in the form of average invoice prices or values of both foreign and domestic goods for a representative period, as well as 'other levant factors that constitute an advantage or disadvantage in competition.'"

WOMAN, 103, HAILED AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

21 Relatives Attend Festivities at Dover, N. J.—Atlantic City Man Celebrates at 100.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, N. J., June 22.—In honor of her 103d birthday today, a party was given last night for Mrs. Jane Thorne at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stevens J. Palmer, 3 Sanford Street, with whom she lives.

Mrs. Thorne joined in the merry-making and seemed to get as much pleasure out of the gathering of twenty-one relatives as any of the younger persons.

Mrs. Thorne was born in Somersetshire, England, in 1827, and came to this country in 1852. Her mind is active and she takes a keen interest in current events. She was especially interested in Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's transatlantic flight and compared the short time it required him to span the ocean with the thirty-three days it took the vessel on which she was a passenger.

Mrs. Thorne's chief entertainment and source of information is the radio. A loud speaker has been installed in her room, where she has spent most of her time since she injured her hip in a fall several years ago. She is especially fond of jazz music.

Besides her daughter she has four grandsons, Montague Romaine of San Francisco, Arthur, Charles and Harry Romaine of Dover, and eleven great grandchildren.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 22.—Captain James A. Rider of 21 North Florida Avenue celebrated his 100th birthday at his home today. He had two large cakes, bearing 100 candles each, immense baskets of fruit, a dozen vases of flowers and a whole tray full of letters and cards of congratulation.

This morning dozens of old friends and acquaintances called to congratulate him and this afternoon more continued to come. "They've got me a little nervous," the captain said. "I never expected any attention to be paid to my birthday."

Captain Rider had no children of his own, but his wife, who died twenty-nine years ago, had several children by a previous marriage. One daughter died thirty years ago and it is with her son, Ellis Williams, that Captain Rider now lives. The captain gave up the sea in 1864 and settled in Atlantic City. He conducted a grocery store and restaurant here, later entering the real estate business.

SEES MANIPULATION IN TARIFF ATTACKS

Representative Wood Wants Inquiry as to Relation of Stock Market Slump.

OKLAHOMAN IS SARCASTIC

Senator Thomas Says Mellon and Watson Overdo Defense of "a Bad Law."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Spokesmen for the two political camps continued their battle over the new tariff law today. Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Oklahoma, aimed ridicule at the administration because of the series of defensive statements which have been made by Secretary Mellon, Senator Watson and others, and Representative Wood of Indiana of the Republican Congressional Committee charged that "Wall Street gamblers" had misrepresented the legislation in a campaign to depress the stock market and injure small investors. Mr. Wood also criticized Henry Ford for a statement he made in opposition to the bill before it was written into law.

"To my mind," said Mr. Wood, "the strongest recommendation that can be had for our new protective tariff is to be found in the opposition of the Wall Street gamblers. There is every reason to believe that recent manipulations in the New York stock market, which have cost scores of thousands of small investors hundreds of millions of dollars, have been of political inspiration and intended to discredit the National Administration.

"The recent bear movement on the stock market was preceded by a barrage of mendacious assaults on the new tariff, first intended to frighten the President into vetoing it and afterward to punish him for signing it.

Sees History Repeated.

"The same prophecies were made with respect to the new tariff law as were made by the same politicians and journalists regarding the Fordney-McCumber tariff law, passed eight years ago, that it would increase the cost of living, destroy our foreign trade, cause unemployment and reduce wages. Every one of the 1922 prophecies has since been given the lie by events, just as those of 1930 will be given the lie hereafter.

"The publicity in metropolitan newspapers inspired by importers, foreign governments and international industrialists and financiers was intended to and did create a public psychology which made it easy for the powerful interests which have been fighting tariff revision to so manipulate the market as to rob the public of billions in reduced prices of securities.

"No increase in protective duties causing the purchase of more commodities at home and less abroad has ever caused an industrial depression in this country or robbed a wage-earner of employment. There is no justification whatever in existing or prospective conditions for a gloomy outlook on the future of American business, which indeed has been greatly brightened by the passage of a tariff law which will increase the demand for the products of the American farm, mine and factory.

"A fair sample of the value of the gloomy predictions about the effect on the new tariff law is the statement of Henry Ford, before the law was passed, that it would create depression and cause unemployment in the United States, and his announcement since the law was passed that he had authorized $16,000,000 of expenditures in additional construction this year, and that plans for $40,000,000 more were in the hands of his designers. Before the law was passed he was speaking to please his foreign customers, and after the law was passed he was expressing his sound business judgment.

"I am strongly in favor of a Congressional investigation into the dumping and short selling of stocks on the New York Stock Exchange last year and this year for the deliberate purpose of disorganizing the securities market and making political capital by the most ruthless, destructive and unpatriotic methods. Such an investigation will reveal the names of those big business men who are in politics for profit and are willing to sacrifice their country and their countrymen to satisfy their own malice and greed."

Thomas Recites Protests.

Senator Thomas said that the passage of the "Grundy bill" has caused a wave of resentment to sweep the world, and that the major issue today is relief from the tariff. More than forty protesting nations, he said, had become retaliating nations, adding that Canada, on the north, the best customer of the United States, was "matching our high rates with similar rates," while Mexico, on the south, was raising her tariff walls against American goods. South American countries, he said, were bitter against what they term "the American selfish and imperialistic tariff policy."

"In France the sentiment against the bill is so bitter," said Senator Thomas, "that Ambassador Edge has just issued a note 'to calm the French.' In many countries the new tariff is alleged to be an 'embargo' and a 'boycott' against foreign goods. The foreign protests, heretofore considered as mere 'bluffs,' are taking on serious aspects. The administration is evidently alarmed at developments.

"The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, issued a statement containing a veiled threat to the protesting nations. A few hours later the Senate leader, Mr. Watson, made his biennial campaign tariff speech over the radio.

"All interviews, statements, notes and addresses, admit the bill is bad. Secretary Mellon promises 'a more business-like revision in the future.' Before the measure was signed bills and resolutions were introduced in the Congress proposing amendments to its provisions.

"All apologists of the bill 'pass the buck' to President Hoover with the promise that, under the flexible provisions, he will correct the mistakes contained in the act. But before the President can act, the Tariff Commission must investigate and recommend and, under a similar provision in force some eight years, rates have been reduced on only such items as live quail, paintbrush handles, mill feed and disinfectants. The tariff on disinfectants was reduced at the close of the Harding Administration."

Fascist Party Secretary Charges Desire to Make Italians "Slaves."

BOLOGNA, Italy, June 22 (AP).—Speaking on the present economic situation in Italy, Augusto Turati, secretary of the Fascist party, today made the first public reference by any responsible Italian official to the new Hawley-Smoot tariff.

"If we are suffering something today," he said, "it is because other peoples, forgetful of what we gave open-handedly during the sal, laborious hours of the war, have become exigent creditors for us.

"Not content with having made us pay our debts to the last centesimo, they would now pretend to take us by the throat economically in order to make us slaves."

Previously, Turati had pointed out that "though our lot is hard, people abroad are not smiling. They are not smiling in America, where the richest banking market is crumbling. They are not smiling in the streets of London, where innumerable columns of unemployed pass by.

"They are not smiling in rich France, where they are tormented with trying to rescue the small savings of French rural economy."

SEES EMPIRE TRADE GAIN.

Australian Minister Optimistic on Return From England.

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 22 (Canadian Press).—"I predict a great increase in the volume of trade between the different parts of the Empire in the near future," said J. M. Fenton, Federal Minister of Trade and Customs, on his return from a trip to England.

"Free trade within the Empire, however, is a long way ahead," Mr. Fenton said. "My investigations have led me to believe that such a policy is impracticable and this view was confirmed by many persons whom I met abroad."

It is understood that while in England Mr. Fenton saw Sir Otto Niemeyer of the Bank of England. Sir Otto has been prevailed upon to make a thorough survey of Australia's financial condition for the Commonwealth Government. The Minister of Trade and Customs also explained to members of the British Government the situation which led the Australian Government to put into force the provisions of its emergency tariff.

CRITICIZES HOOVER ON ECONOMIC POLICY

German Editor Says He Called on "Prosperity Reserves" Too Soon, Without Firm Basis.

SLUMP AND TARIFF FEARED

Berlin Paper Contrasts Latter as a "Declaration of War" With Hoover Greetings to Power Parley.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 22.—The performances of the American stock market and the economic depression continue to engage the attention of German financial writers, who concur in the belief that the outcome is destined to have an immediate bearing upon German economy.

That President Hoover has prematurely called his "prosperity reserves" to the colors is the conclusion reached by the financial editor of the Germania, who designates this as the fundamental error of the President's prosperity program and one which constitutes an instructive experiment.

"Apparently President Hoover was determined to prevent the prosperity curve from sagging," says this writer. "Therefore he attempted even before a healthy basis for improvement had been established to force the curve upward. If we may be permitted to make a comparison with a well-known situation in the World War, he failed to retreat into the so-called Siegfried position, which, although it might have resulted in a temporary tactical disadvantage, would have afforded him a more secure point from which he might then have advanced with the full strength of his reserves."

Sees Grave Situation.

To the economic expert of the Kreuzzeitung the situation in the United States suggests a graver depression than has been heretofore admitted, in view of the further drop in the prices of raw products and other key commodities. He questions whether the hoped-for recovery by the end of the year will be achieved.

"Granting that there are numerous interlocking relations between American and German financial interests, it must be remembered that conditions in Germany reveal a different orientation than those in the United States," observes this writer, who stresses that, contrasted to the United States, Germany finds herself not at the beginning but at the end of an economic slump.

What is now going on in Germany, he states, has the effect of liberating German economy from its previous state of rigidity or inflexibility, which is being reflected in an upward tendency for Germany's exports, as witnessed in the surplus registered during the first five months of the current year. A lessening of the cost of production and a continued cheapening of the prices of raw products suggest to this observer that Germany could readily re-establish her equality in world export markets even in the face of enforced activities on the part of the United States.

That Germany's interest in the events going on in the United States is self-evident is the conclusion reached by the Lokalanzeiger in view of the new American tariff and accelerated American export activities.

"German credits in the United States may be called in and numerous production plants erected by Americans in Germany may be closed down under the influence of the situation in the United States, in addition to which there is danger that the heavy volume of German stocks and securities in American possession may now be sold under pressure, thereby producing a strain on our Boerse," says this newspaper.

Of deeper significance, however, according to this authority, is the circumstance that with the recession of American prosperity renewed efforts will now set in to capture export markets, thereby exacerbating a situation which has already been highly aggravated by falling prices.

The editor of the German Economist predicts that the heightening of the American tariff walls will everywhere provoke clamorous demands for reprisals which the various governments will find it difficult to repel. Such retaliatory duties as France and Italy now threaten would naturally also hit German products as long as the existing system of most-favored nation treatment continues to operate, according to this editor, who significantly adds that the substitution of a European economic federation, as proposed by France, for the most-favored nation thesis suggests a retaliatory measure whose benefits to Germany would not outweigh its costs.

"A Declaration of War."

To the Democratic Morgenpost President Hoover's signature of the Hawley-Smoot bill suggests "a declaration of war," which cannot be reconciled with the sentiments expressed by the President in his greetings to the World Power Congress meeting here.

"The President's message of peace, in which he lauded the achievements of science and technique, was plainly preceded by a declaration of war, for by rearing still more stones on its existing tariff wall the United States is merely proclaiming war on the world at large and Europe in particular," says the Morgenpost. "Our generation has apparently forgotten that there are other methods of warfare than those demanding rifles, cannon and airplanes, whose results are almost equally disastrous.

"If such a mighty country as the United States heightens its customs barriers still more such a procedure means unemployment and economic misery for countries dependent on their exports. It is not exactly sanguinary warfare, but it is cruel nevertheless."

SURVEYS STATE'S FORESTS.

Syracuse College to Learn Best Adapted Tree Species.

SYRACUSE, June 22.—A survey has been started to find out more exactly the proper trees to plant in the soils of New York State for the purpose of growing the forests of the future. The project is being promoted by the State College of Forestry at Syracuse University.

An appropriation available this year is the first specific one for a survey of forest plantations in New York State. Professor Svend Heiberg of the Department of Silviculture at the college has been assigned to the undertaking. The Conservation Department is cooperating. Records as to the age of plantations in the State and such growth data as they have will be used as a guide in the survey.

Soil and climatic conditions, together with the method of planting, the mixture of tree species and spacing, will be studied. Soils will be analyzed in the laboratory and the results obtained therefrom together with the field tests when correlated will form a basis for future guidance of the planters of forest trees in New York State.

Professor Heiberg will be assisted by J. W. Zehnder, a graduate from the University of Zürich, Switzerland, and R. I. Carpenter, who graduated from the New York State College of Forestry this year.

FIERRO PAYS HONOR TO FELLOW-FLIERS

Decorates Graves of Carranza, Sidar and Rovirosa Before Calling on Ortiz Rubio.

DESCRIBES HOP FROM HERE

Had Only Half Hour's Gas When He Landed in Mexico City—Weather Bad, Motor Ran Irregularly.

MEXICO CITY, June 22 (AP).—Rested from the long grind of piloting his airplane on the first non-stop flight from New York to Mexico City, Colonel Roberto Fierro today went to Dolores Cemetery here to place wreaths on the graves of three fliers who died pioneering air trails.

After paying this tribute to Colonel Pablo Sidar, posthumously made a Brigadier General, and his companion, Lieutenant Carlos Rovirosa; killed in an attempted non-stop flight from here to Buenos Aires on May 11, and to Captain Emilio Carranza, killed while attempting the flight Colonel Fierro made yesterday, he called on President Ortiz Rubio at Chapultepec Castle. Reports say the President was greatly thrilled by Fierro's exploit.

The flier granted newspaper men a short interview, in which he said he was tired and glad to get away from the roar of his plane's motor. Examination of the plane today showed that there was only fifteen gallons of gasoline left, enough for about half an hour's flight, when Colonel Fierro landed.

"From my departure from New York I encountered bad weather," said Colonel Fierro in his interview. "Throughout the flight I was up against adverse winds and heavy rains, and constantly ran into banks of clouds. I expended more gasoline than I had foreseen, and a slight deviation from the direct route I had planned would have caused failure of the flight.

"The motor ran irregularly most of the way, and repairs evidently failed to reduce the gasoline consumption. I hope to make further alterations here that will reduce gasoline consumption."

Colonel Fierro estimated that he had flown 2,152 miles at an average speed of 140 miles an hour. He said he had expected a gas consumption of twenty-two gallons hourly, but headwinds forced him to increase his altitude and his fuel consumption mounted to thirty gallons, which explained the scant reserve at the end of the flight.

While no offical consent has yet been given for the continuance of his flight to Central and South America and then to Europe, it is believed that the success of the first leg of his journey will prompt a quick sanction.

Newspapers here this morning devoted almost their entire first and many inside pages to stories and pictures of the flight, although the flier's personal account of the feat only required a couple of paragraphs.

Colonel Fierro and his mechanic, Arnulfo Cortes, modestly attributed to each other the greater share of the triumph.

"Cortes is as much entitled to the homage of the public as I," said Colonel Fierro.

Cortes, who learned to fly with the American Army overseas during the World War, protested that his chief deserved all the credit. Both said there had been moments when they thought they would have to land on account of storms, particularly once near Brownsville, Texas, but by passing around the storm area and losing a little time they managed to escape.

"I had to fly at a great height because I continually encountered cloudbanks and after passing Brownsville it was a struggle," Colonel Fierro declared.

Sudden Plenitude of Trout As Rearing Pond Is Drained

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., June 22.—When sportsmen experienced remarkable success in trout fishing in a brook that leads into the Beaverkill, in Sullivan County, they were highly gratified, but wondered where so many fish came from.

Miscreants had opened the gate of the big rearing pond connected with the Roscoe golf course, allowing vast quantities of trout from eight to ten inches in length to escape, it was learned. The fishermen stopped operations.

A reward has been offered for information that will lead to the arrest of those who opened the gate. The trout, having been fed on liver for a year, were not the best for human consumption.

GETS TIMES TAKEN BY FIERRO

Excelsior Receives Paper in Mexico City on Day of Publication.

For the first time a copy of a New York newspaper has been delivered in Mexico City on the date on which it was issued in New York, Manuel L. Barragan, director general of The Excelsior of Mexico City, said in a telegram to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday.

The newspaper was a copy of THE NEW YORK TIMES of last Saturday. It was addressed to Mr. de Llano of The Excelsior and was taken to Mexico City by Colonel Roberto Fierro.

Colonel Fierro left here at 2:30 on Saturday morning and reached Mexico City in a non-stop flight at 7:03 o'clock, New York Time, on Saturday night.

LYONS MAN IS KILLED.

Companion and Three Others Are Injured as 'utos Crash.

Special to The New York Times.

LYONS, N. Y., June 22.—Eugene M. Pierce, 33, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis S. Pierce of this village, was killed instantly late last night in an automobile crash on the State road three miles east of Alton, N. Y.

George Bridge, his companion, was taken to the Myers Hospital in Sodus, where he gave a disconnected account of the accident. He said that, on rounding a curve at high speed, he had crashed head on into a sedan occupied by three Buffalo fishermen. Pierce was thrown through the windshield and died instantly. The Buffalo men were treated for severe bruises.

BREAKS OWN FLIGHT MARK.

"City of Chicago" Is Still Up After Passing Own Record.

CHICAGO, June 22 (AP).—Droning evenly over Sky Harbor Airport, the plane City of Chicago carried Pilots Kenneth and John Hunter past their own endurance mark today and zoomed on in an effort to break the record for continuous flight.

At 2:40 P. M. (Central Daylight Time) the Hunter brothers had exceeded by an hour their own mark of 261 hours, made last Summer in the same plane.

With the motor functioning well, the aviators were optimistic of their chances for adding to the log the 159 hours needed to shatter the 420-hour mark of the St. Louis Robin.

SON OF LINDBERGHS BORN AT ENGLEWOOD

called, without omitting a single item, the events of the day that Colonel Lindbergh and Miss Anne Spencer Morrow were married on her father's estate.

It was recalled that Mrs. Lindbergh had flown with her husband on many of the long trips that have given him a record of approximately 50,000 miles since his memorable non-stop flight from New York to Paris. Last Thursday she flew from Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., to Hartford, Conn., on a three-hour flight.

Birthday Party Planned.

It was understood that a birthday party for Mrs. Lindbergh had been planned for yesterday, but that the plans were called off at the last moment. There were few guests at the house before the baby's birth was announced.

An hour or two later the infant's arrival was woven into a song sung over the network of the National Broadcasting Company. A paid program at the studio was interrupted so that the news might be broadcast.

The Lindbergh baby has distinguished parents and distinguished grandparents. On the maternal side he is the grandchild of Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow. On the paternal side his grandmother is Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, a graduate of the University of Michigan and the widow of Representative Charles A. Lindbergh, who served in the Sixtieth to the Sixty-fourth Congress.

The Morrows are of old Southern stock. The Ambassador was born in West Virginia. Colonel Lindbergh's father was born in Sweden and came to the United States in infancy. He was the author of several works on banking and currency.

Ambassador Morrow will remain at home until Tuesday. He is to speak in Trenton on Tuesday night as Republican candidate for United States Senator from New Jersey and will leave late Tuesday night for Mexico City to wind up his work there.

ROMANCE LINKED TO AVIATION

Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh Have Flown 30,000 Miles in Year.

The romance of Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh and her famous husband has been inseparably connected with aviation. Since they were married at the Morrow home on May 27, 1929, the Lindberghs have flown many thousands of miles together. On pioneering flights Mrs. Lindbergh has accompanied her famous husband through the skies of a dozen countries in North, Central and South America.

It is now popular—and erroneous—legend that Colonel Lindbergh met his bride while on his good-will flight to Panama in December, 1927. As a matter of fact, he had become a frequent caller at the Morrow home in Englewood several months earlier and not long after his return from his flight to Paris. Before the end of 1928 his engagement to Miss Anne Spencer Morrow was rumored, and it was announced in February, 1929. On Feb. 27 came the famous "one-wheel landing" flight, the first time that Miss Morrow and her fiancé had flown together following the announcement of their betrothal. The plane turned over in this mishap and the Colonel received a dislocated shoulder.

After they returned from their wedding trip, spent aboard a motor cruiser along the New England coast, Mrs. Lindbergh took up flying in earnest. She flew to the Coast with the Colonel and returned in July. Next she flew to Washington with the Colonel for a week-end at President Hoover's Rapidan River camp, and returned to take up flying herself at the Aviation Country Club at Hicksville, L. I. In August the Lindberghs flew to the national air races at Cleveland and a week later to Wichita to aid in the search for the missing plane City of San Francisco of the T. A. T. system.

MRS. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH.

Within two weeks they were off on a 7,000-mile flight to open Pan-American Airway's passenger and mail air-line to Paramaribo, British Guiana. Back in New York, she resumed her flying lessons, and in October received her pilot's license.

On Dec. 27, flying in the Colonel's Falcon, they started again for California, where they took up gliding. Both the Colonel and his wife obtained glider licenses.

On Easter Sunday, April 20, in a new plane, they started East from Los Angeles and crossed the continent in fourteen hours and forty-five minutes, a new transcontinental speed record.

In the last year they have flown more than 30,000 miles.

BYRD REJOICES AT THE NEWS.

Word of Birth of Son to Lindberghs Reaches Him in Virginia.

WINCHESTER, Va., June 22 (AP).—Speaking for his brother, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Thomas Byrd, at his home here tonight, said the Admiral rejoiced at the birth of a son to Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh at Englewood, N. J., today.

The Admiral was resting after four days of strenuous celebration honoring his return from the Antarctic when the news reached him. He will send his congratulations tonight before leaving for New York, Tom Byrd said.

GREETINGS ARRIVING FROM MEXICO CITY

President Ortiz Rubio Sends Congratulations to Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 22.—Floods of congratulatory messages are leaving Mexico City today following the news that a son has been born to Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh at Englewood.

It was here the world's most famous ace wooed Anne Morrow, their courtship dating from 1927, when Colonel flew here non-stop from Washington on his good-will flight. He was greeted then by President Calles, Ambassador Morrow and more than 100,000 enthusiastic spectators on Valbuena Field.

Learning of the birth of the Lindberghs' son, President Ortiz Rubio said: "I take this advantage through the American press publicly to congratulate Colonel Lindbergh and his wife. Without delay, I am extending my personal congratulations."

Reports from Cuernavaca, where Ambassador Morrow has his Summer residence, declare that the tourist centre is overjoyed at the arrival of the Ambassador's grandson.

Colonel Lindbergh, after his first visit here, found time to return on several occasions, and it was here that Mrs. Lindbergh had her first experience in flying. It was here also that she and Colonel Lindbergh crashed in their plane and the Colonel dislocated his shoulder.

NOVICE PILOTS PLANE AS FLIER FIXES GEAR

Atlanta Flying Student Takes Stick for First Time While Instructor Climbs Onto Wing.

ATLANTA, June 22 (AP).—A flying student, John Cramer, with but five hours of instruction yesterday piloted a plane for the first time in his life while his teacher, F. W. Elmore, clung to a wing and repaired the landing gear to save them both from probable death.

Just after Elmore took the plane up bystanders on the field saw the entire right section of the landing gear break off and dangle by a slender support. Prolonged gestures directed Elmore's attention to his plight, and he met it by entrusting Cramer with the piloting and crawling out on the wing for the dangerous repair job.

Cramer kept the plane on an even keel while Elmore used strips from his shirt and pieces of line from pockets of the ship to bind the gear in place. He then crawled back to the cockpit and made a safe landing.

Candler Field experts said an attempt to land the plane with the loose gear would almost certainly have resulted fatally.

COSTE TESTS MOTOR OF PLANE 50 HOURS

Well Pleased After Engine Runs for Two Days and Nights on Block in Repair Shop.

VILLACOUBLAY, France, June 22 (AP).—Captain Dieudonne Coste today completed giving his 650-horsepower motor fifty solid hours of work on a block in the repair shops of the Hispano-Suiza Company near here, in preparation for his proposed flight across the Atlantic.

The flier kept his motor turning at all speeds from 3 P. M. Friday until 5 P. M. today.

"She's snoring fine," he told friends after he had turned off the motor.

At the conclusion of the shop trials, the motor will be replaced in Coste's plane, the Question Mark, probably tomorrow or Tuesday. He has made all preparations for the flight, and is waiting for the report of his representative aboard the steamer Ile de France, due in New York tomorrow. The representative was to make final arrangements for the flier's reception in the United States. After this report has been received, the weather will determine the date of the take-off.

PLANS ENDURANCE FLIGHT.

Haldeman Will Make Attempt at Jacksonville in the Roma.

Special to the New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 22.—George W. Haldeman, pilot for Ruth Elder in her attempted transatlantic flight, hopped off today for Jacksonville, Fla., where he will try to break the world endurance record of slightly more than sixty-seven hours, now held by Italian pilots.

Haldeman is flying the rebuilt plane Roma, which has been equipped with a Pratt & Whitney Hornet motor of 500 horsepower. The craft will be renamed before taking the air for the endurance attempt. Stewart Chadwick will be Haldeman's co-pilot.

The Roma, with Cesare Sabelli as pilot, started from New York to Rome in September, 1928, but returned when engine trouble developed eight miles after the take-off at Old Orchard, Me.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 22 (AP).—George Haldeman arrived at Jacksonville today and immediately began to make arrangements for his attempt to set a non-refueling endurance record, probably the latter part of the week. He plans to take his plane to Jacksonville Beach for tests Tuesday, if the weather permits.

90 HURT AS BRIDGE FALLS.

CHEMNITZ, Germany, June 22 (AP).—Two hundred spectators crowding a bridge over the Chemnitz River and watching swimmers below were plunged into the swirling waters by the collapse of the bridge this afternoon.

About ninety were injured, several seriously. Many children were hurt or got a ducking with their elders. The bridge was a wooden one.

WHY DO PEOPLE DIE?

What Happens to Every 100,000 Men?

At an annual meeting of the Hygiene Reference Board of the Life Extension Institute Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of Battle Creek Sanitarium, told of a prominent business man who once called upon him to find out what his chances were of living at least ten years longer. This man was planning a new venture which would take at least ten years to complete.

Dr. Kellogg found that the man's physical resources were extremely low, and when Dr. Kellogg explained to him how his troubles had evidently been developing for a great many years, the man became greatly excited and said, "Doctor, why didn't I know all this before? With the knowledge I now have I am willing to do anything if I can only live. I must have ten years for my business, or at least five. Why didn't I know my condition before?"

Dr. Kellogg stated that he, too, wondered why this intelligent man had allowed himself to drift into such a condition and why men and women generally know so little about their own bodies and the things that lay the foundations of disease and physical breakdown.

The greatest menace to health and long life is from so-called "silent sickness," that is, sickness working beneath the surface which does not speak in terms of pain or disability. Silent sickness is the worst kind of sickness. The loss from such sickness in this country is 700,000 lives a year.

Pain is a poor yardstick with which to measure health or sickness. Many people, for example, believe they have kidney trouble because they have a pain in the back; whereas in few cases of kidney trouble is pain a sympton. The types of disease that are associated with more or less pain give the lowest death rate.

What Happens to 100,000 Men?

Do you know what happens to 100,000 men born on the same day? 90,757 live to be one year old; the first year of life is the hardest. 80,129 live to be 27, showing that about as many die during the first year as during the next 26. 64,311 live to be 52, while only 32,583 reach 72. Note the tremendous loss—about 32,000—between the golden years of 52 and 72, when life is worth most and responsibilities are greatest. What can be done to stop this life-waste? Scientists tell us that a yearly health examination is the best weapon that can be employed.

The Life Extension Institute was the pioneer in establishing and popularizing such thorough health examinations. The purpose of the Institute's examination is not the diagnosis of so-called "disease," but the detection of physical impairments, predisposition to disease, or faulty living habits, the correction of which would have a beneficial influence on the life of the person examined.

The health survey which members of the Institute receive follows a system of standardized examination forms and detailed reports which were formulated in consultation with the eminent physicians on its Hygiene Reference Board, and which have been further developed and perfected from its experience in the examination of nearly a million men and women. In this vast group of people from all parts of the country many lives have been saved and prolonged, and much misery and suffering prevented.

The Sixteen Rules of Health

If you are interested in a protective service of this kind for yourself or any member of your family, send in the coupon below for further information and for the free booklets, "How to Live Long" and "Hygiene at Middle Life." The Institute will also send you a card giving the "Sixteen Rules of Health."

These life extension examinations are available everywhere, as the Institute has medical examiners in all the principal cities and towns in the United States and Canada, and in several foreign countries. There are special departments for women and children at the Institute's Home Office, with both men and women examining physicians in attendance.

The Institute renders no treatment, performs no operations, but makes a scientific survey of your whole life and body to determine the need for medical treatment, for correction of defects, or better regulation of the ways of living. Every one should be examined annually, either by the family physician, through the Life Extension Institute, or by any other accredited scientific agency. Use the coupon below.

HEAR QUEENS SLAYER IS POSING AS WOMAN

Police in the Hunt Are Warned After Stranger Accosts Group of Campers Near Jamaica.

NEW SUSPECT IS CLEARED

Girl Companion of One Victim Fails to Identify Man Seized in North Bergen.

Suspects were questioned yesterday in the hunt for the man who murdered two men in Queens and then wrote letters to newspapers about his crimes. The slayer, who on Saturday said in a "final" letter that his mission was ended and that he would kill no more, apparently remained at large, waiting, the police believed, for a chance to strike again.

For a while last night just after the detectives searching for the letter-writing maniac had been warned that he might be masquerading as a woman, it was believed the killer had fallen into the hands of the Hudson County Police. This belief was short-lived, however, for one of the girl witnesses to the killings declared that the man under suspicion was not the man who shot and killed her escort.

The girl, Miss Betty Ring, had been rushed to Jersey City to the Boulevard station by Captain Herbert Graham of Queens to confront a man who had been acting suspiciously in the "loop" neighborhood of North Bergen, a parking place favored by young couples.

In appearance the man was said to resemble the man Miss Ring had described as the slayer, who, after killing her escort, put her on a bus and sent her home. In his pockets were found rambling notes and clippings of the letters written by the murderer, who closed all his missives with the cabalistic signature V 3 X.

Eliminated as Suspect.

The man, who said he was William Ernest Cordray of Savannah, Ga., had thin features, an aquiline nose and wore a dark suit and a dark slouch hat. He told Lieutenant Joseph Murray, who arrested him that he was "running away," but he was unable to tell from what he was fleeing. He had no money.

Miss Ring, upon seeing him, shook her head and said he was not the man. Captain Graham questioned the man for a time and then expressed the opinion that he, like at least a dozen others who for a time were regarded as suspects, must be eliminated from suspicion of the two murders. Cordray, it was said, would be held for a day or two for further investigation.

Another Suspect Seized.

Just after 11 o'clock last night another suspect was picked up by Detectives John Quinn and Thomas Reilly of the Ralph Avenue station, Brooklyn, and taken to Queens for questioning by police officials there. The attention of the two detectives was attracted to the man first at Broadway and Gates Avenue, when they saw him shambling along muttering to himself and frequently thrusting one hand toward a hip pocket as if to draw a pistol.

Questioned by the detectives, the man said he was Jacob Rubin, 28 years old, of 828 Quincy Street, Brooklyn. No pistol was found on him, nor could any be found in his lodgings when the detectives searched them. They did find in his possession, however, a number of bank books, the deposits in which totaled about $25,000. Rubin explained that the money had been left to him by his mother, who died two years ago.

Two Hunts Are Fruitless.

The police were ordered to be on the lookout for a man posing as a woman after two parties of detectives had been sent into the woods on the outskirts of Jamaica and Queens Village yesterday afternoon to search for persons who had aroused the suspicions of picnickers and hikers. The search proved fruitless in both cases.

The first suspicious character was reported to Captain Graham, who is directing the hunt for the murderer of Noel Sowley and Joseph Moyzynsky, by Mark B. Brown of 409 East Fifty-eighth Street, Manhattan, who with his wife, Mary, and daughter, Agnes, were eating a picnic lunch in the woods near Rocky Hill Road and Hillside Avenue, Jamaica, when they were accosted by a person who appeared to be a woman about 45 years old.

The stranger asked for "a lift" to Manhattan but Mr. Brown explained that he was not going home until dark. The woman then sat down and ate a sandwich. When she finished it she thanked Mr. Brown and stalked off into the woods. As she walked away Mr. Brown noticed that beneath her rusty black skirt she was wearing men's trousers.

His suspicions aroused, Mr. Brown and his family packed up their luncheon kit, drove to a gasoline station and telephoned to Captain Graham, who at once dispatched a force of men to the scene. Mr. Brown said the stranger's outer clothing was old-fashioned. The woman, if it was a woman, he said, walked with a mannish gait and her face was partly covered by a broad brimmed black straw hat.

Captain Graham regarded Mr. Brown's report as highly important. The police and detectives engaged in the hunt have been instructed to be on the lookout for a man of about 45 with beady eyes and a wizened countenance, as the killer was described by Catherine May and Miss Ring, the girls who were with Moyzynsky and Sowley, respectively, when they were slain in automobiles parked in shady lanes.

It was possible, detectives pointed out, that the murderer appeared as a man before his victims and masqueraded as a woman at other times. That theory would account for the failure of United States postal inspectors to apprehend the man as he posted taunting letters to the police and newspapers boasting of his crimes.

The second alarm was received some two hours later from Seymour D. Finkelstein, who was hiking through the woods near Maringo and Cross Island Boulevards with four boys from Boy Scout Troop S 14 in Brooklyn, when a wild-eyed man stepped before them and asked what they knew about "the man who committed those two murders out here."

Finkelstein and the boys questioned the man, who suddenly turned and loped off through the trees. Captain Graham sent another squad of men to search for this man, who according to Finkelstein wore a dark suit and had trouble keeping a set of false teeth in place.

Last night detachments of students from the Police College were sent to Queens to aid in the search for the killer. In rented private automobiles they were assigned to the eerie task of sitting in lonely lanes to act as decoys for the murderer while older policemen waited near at hand to pounce upon him if he appeared. At the same time seventeen extra policemen were assigned to discourage couples from parking in secluded spots in Rockaway for fear of the murderer.

Many Send Notes.

Police officials from Commissioner Mulrooney down are convinced that both murders were committed by a madman and they believe also that the notes attributed to him were authentic missives from the killer, who, however, has many imitators, as a pile of correspondence in the office of District Attorney James T. Hallinan discloses.

Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, who before becoming State Commissioner of Correction came in contact with hundreds of insane criminals at Matteawan, also holds the view that the murders are the work of a paranoiac. His craving for publicity and his attempts to justify and rationalize his acts indicated that, according to Dr. Kieb, who added that he believed the slayer would be caught. Although such maniacs often have more than ordinary cunning, he said they "usually slip up somewhere."

UNIVERSITY GETS $200,000.

Oregon's Institution's Museum Receives Major Share.

Special to the New York Times.

EUGENE, Ore., June 22.—Gifts totaling nearly $200,000 were made to the University of Oregon during last year, according to announcement made by Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president.

The largest share of this total went to the Fine Arts Museum, now being built as a memorial to Price L. Campbell, late president of the university. Of the $99,184.98 in cash received for this fund, the following sources contributed: The Elizabeth Harmon estate, Gertrude Bass Warner, transfers from the Alumni Holding Company and total payments on pledges. Other gifts included $2,500 from the Carnegie Corporation of New York for half the value of a $5,000 Carnegie art collection.

$25,000 VIOLIN STOLEN.

George Fenno of German, N. Y., Loses Cherished Amati Instrument.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., June 22 (AP).—The 25,000 violin that was the pride and comfort of the "gentleman recluse" of Chenango County was stolen last night.

George Fenno, who has lived alone for years at German, N. Y., refused to sell it to many of the world's leading violinists who visited him. It was made by Niclaus Amati about 1625, Mr. Fenno said, and had been in his family since 1825, when his grandfather bought it in Spain. Troopers believe it was stolen by some one who knew what it was worth, and that it will be offered for sale to violinists who will know the instrument.

firemen, sitting in the shade outside their engine house, started to their feet as the motor of the car roared in its swift pick-up. The firemen and other witnesses read the license number and reported it to police as 3K6225, the number assigned to Angelina Odds of 194 Bay Nineteenth Street, Brooklyn. The witnesses gave good descriptions of the gunmen.

Fiori said that his club was a regular part of the Tammany organization, but this was denied by police. In the cellar of the building a barrel and five gallons of home-made wine, claimed by Infante as his property, were confiscated by the police.

Going to the address printed on the cards in Sciametta's pockets, the police found the slot machines and the two youths and discovered that the "home office" had already been notified of the killing. One of the young men picked up at the Fort Hamilton Parkway address admitted that he was working at the headquarters of a slot machine organization which distributed the gambling machines in the borough.

Racketeers Known by Numbers.

"About five men take the machines around," he said. "I don't know them by name; only by number. The man calls and says he is No. 5, and I know what section he covers."

The police believed after talking with the youth that Sciametta may have been marked for death because he had poached on the territory of some rival slot machine organization. Other detectives based their hopes of a solution of the crime on a reputed gang and slot machine war between the "Thirty-eighth Street boys" and the "Sixtieth Street gang." Sciametta, they believe, was the only man intended for death, and Luccarrelli, whose condition at the hospital was described as fair, was shot because he got in the way of the bullets or because of his attempted escape to the door. Luccarrelli, who lives at 1,346 Seventy-first Street, was described by the police as not connected in any way with the slot machine racket.

Police records show that Luccarrelli, was sentenced to eight months on May 17, 1928, for robbery in Brooklyn. On Jan. 7 of this year he was again held for burglary in Brooklyn and was released on May 2 in $5,000 bail. Sciametta received a ten to twenty year sentence on May 21, 1927, for assault and robbery. Previous to that he served sentences in the New York City Reformatory and the workhouse. Sciametta, who had belonged to the club about a month, lived at 1,315 Sixty-eighth Street. He died in the hospital without regaining consciousness.

The club, according to Fiori, who lives at 1,182 Sixtieth Street, has about eighty-two members. Luccarrelli has been a member for some time. The shooting yesterday is the second in the slot machine war in the borough within the last two weeks. In the Brownsville section recently four men were sprayed with bullets from gangsters firing from an automobile, and one of the men received fatal wounds. The racket, police say, is one of the most profitable and easy of all the illegitimate money-making schemes of the underworld and for this reason its privileges are jealously guarded.

POLICE SEEK THREE IN LINGLE KILLING

Say Two Aides of Forsythe, Named as Actual Slayer, May Be Caught Soon.

PISTOL CALLED A "PLANT"

That It Belonged to Foster, Rival Chicago Gangster, Is Said Not to Implicate Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Pursuit of the slayer of Alfred J. P. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, is now said to be concentrated on three men and their capture is declared to be near. At police headquarters it was said the three men particularly wanted are James (Red) Forsythe, said to be the actual killer; Simon J. Gorman, owner of a trucking system sometimes employed by the city and connected with a laundry workers' union; Frankie Noon, an associate of Forsythe and Gorman. Noon and Gorman are wanted in the belief they know where Forsythe is in hiding.

Connection has been established, the police say, between Forsythe and the gang headed by "Bugs" Moran and the Aiello brothers, rulers of the North Side gambling and liquor rackets. Moran and the Aiellos are the enemies of "Scarface Al" Capone, one of Lingle's closest friends.

The pistol with which Lingle was killed has been traced to Frank Foster, who recently deserted the Moran-Aiello gang and aligned himself with Capone. It is argued that Foster left the pistol around the Aiello headquarters, and that, by using it, the killer sought to throw suspicion on Foster, and, incidentally, upon the Capone gang. Foster is being sought merely to give the history of the pistol, where he left it and what he knows or will tell about Forsythe.

Forsythe a Tough Character.

Forsythe, the police assert, is as tough a gangster as any in Chicago, the type of hoodlum who would undertake murder for a price. He built up his reputation as an intimate of the "four horsemen of gangland," George ("Red") Barker, William Clifford, Cy Cawley and Michael Reilly. Barker is the only "horseman" still alive.

Forsythe also had been identified with Danny Stanton, a Capone standby on the South Side. He broke with the South Siders and transferred his peculiar talents to the service of the North Siders.

Forsythe, the officials now are convinced, was the tall, blond young man who walked into the subway leading under Michigan Boulevard with Lingle, who was accompanied also by another man. Lingle apparently was acquainted with both.

The blond one dropped back, ostensibly to get a newspaper, and, hurrying forward again, suddenly whipped out the revolver and fired into the back of Lingle's head.

Forsythe and Gorman were arrested last December in a raid of the Moran-Aiello offices in the Loop district. Gorman was quickly released. Forsythe, at that time, gave the name of George H. Cassidy, but, after he also had been released, he was identified as a former employe of the city law department. Prior to this raid both Gorman and Forsythe had been arrested for carrying concealed weapons and were convicted, but turned loose under bond.

Police Records Lacking.

"Following their arrest," said Emmet Evans, acting head of the Police Bureau of Identifications, "we took their Bertillon measurements. We cannot make photographs prior to conviction. Immediately after their conviction, they were released on bond without being returned to the bureau. Then, as we were not informed of the conviction, we destroyed the Bertillon at the end of a year. That is the procedure we always follow."

The discovery of Forsythe's definite connection with the Moran-Aiello gang is said to greatly strengthen the belief that he killed Lingle.

As to the gun by which Lingle was killed, the police say the natural impulse for a man who had committed a murder would be the concealment of the weapon. Contrary to this, the assassin of Lingle carefully placed the revolver, a snub-nosed .38, beside the body. He knew the gun would be traced and traced, throw suspicion on Foster.

Police Here Not Notified.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney said last night that he had received no advice from Chicago in regard to Frank Foster, alleged gunman who is said to have owned the gun with which Lingle was shot.

"All I know about that is what I read in papers this morning," the commissioner said. "That is the first I heard of it. Even if any communication had come to the Correspondence Bureau at headquarters today I think I would have been informed."

Foster was reported in Chicago to have fled here several days ago after it became known he was the owner of the gun. Advices from Chicago Saturday stated the police there had asked Commissioner Mulrooney's aid in his apprehension.

URGES ANNEX FOR SCHOOL.

Principal of Girls' Continuation in Kings Asks More Space.

Miss Edna A. Farnsworth, principal of the Brooklyn Girls' Continuation School, 362 Schermerhorn Street, said in her annual report that if plans materialized for the establishment of an annex to the school in the Baumann Building, Hoyt, Livingston and Schermerhorn Streets, "many of our most serious handicaps will be overcome." The report was submitted last week to Morris E. Siegel, director of evening and continuation schools for the city, it was learned yesterday at the Board of Education.

Miss Farnsworth urged that the school authorities approve the recommendation of Arthur S. Somers, Brooklyn, member of the board, for the leasing of the seventh floor of the Baumann Building for the use of the school to relieve "our crowded conditions, insufficient number of classrooms, toilets, rest rooms, &c.," and asked that additional teachers be provided if the annex is granted.

Church Completes Outing Plans.

DETROIT COUPLE DIE IN FLAMES OF PLANE

Pilot Makes Vain Effort to Save Them After Crash at Toledo, Ohio.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 22 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Joe V. Illeneuvre of Detroit were burned to death here this afternoon when their airplane fell at the Municipal Airport and burst into flames.

The couple were dead before spectators could reach the scene. Kenneth Aber of Mansfield, Ohio, their pilot, made a futile effort to drag them from the plane, but he was burned in the attempt.

He told police he had been engaged to bring them to Toledo from a Detroit airport and did not know their names. Identity was established through a letter found in the plane and through check of the plane number.

TAMAQUA, Pa., June 22 (AP).—Gwilym Arthur, 24, of Lansford, and Joseph Fisher, 26, of Mauch Chunk were killed today in an airplane crash at the Hometown Airport near here.

The plane fell as they were taking off for the return trip to the Lehighton Airport, where they were believed to have been employed.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 22.—When his Moth airplane crashed from a height of 2,000 feet, an airman named Hill of Regina, Sask., was killed near Stevenson Airdrome, just west of here, early this evening.

FOUR MEXICANS EXECUTED.

Die for Killing American Mining Engineer, Sonora Governor Reports.

NOGALES, Mexico, June 22 (AP).—Governor Francisco S. Elias of Sonora, who arrived here last night from Cananea, announced four men involved in the fatal shooting June 2 of Charles Koehler, American mining engineer, near Cananea, were court-martialed and executed near there on Friday. Their names were not disclosed.

Mr. Koehler was shot to death when caught between gunfire being exchanged by rival labor groups.

DEMANDS TINKHAM REPEAT ALL HE SAID

Bishop Cannon Says Representative, in Public Statement, "Omitted" Much.

CHARGES MADE IN HOUSE

And Bishop Wants Tinkham to Repeat Them Completely, Sending Him a Signed Copy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Bishop James Cannon Jr., tonight asserted that the statement issued Friday by Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts, over Mr. Tinkham's signature and not protected by Congressional immunity, was incomplete because it omitted some of the charges against the Bishop which the Representative recently uttered in the House.

Mr. Tinkham's statement was intended to pave the way for Bishop Cannon, if he so desired, to carry out his published threat to proceed against the Representative in court.

After enumerating some of these charges, which he said Mr. Tinkham made in the House on June 17, but omitted Friday, Bishop Cannon said that if Mr. Tinkham wanted to be held responsible for exactly what he said on the floor of the House, he should personally sign several copies of his "entire" speech and send them to the Bishop and to the several other indicated persons, "thus effectually disclaiming immunity for his entire speech as actually delivered."

Bishop Cannon's statement was:

"I have read the carefully worded statement of 135 words, purporting to be a paraphrase of the 3,000-word speech of Congressman Tinkham, made in the House of Representatives on June 17, which speech I called upon him to give out over his personal signature, free from Congressional immunity.

"In his speech of June 17, among other things, Congressman Tinkham said: 'The statement of Bishop Cannon that he "made no report of such receipts and expenditures, as none was required by law," was a falsehood, and obviously made with the intent of not accounting for the $48,300 alleged in his telegram of Feb. 12, 1929, to E. C. Jameson to have been spent in the State of Virginia.'

"Again, Congressman Tinkham, in his speech, asked 'whether or not any of the money received from E. C. Jameson was used by him on account of any personal indebtedness?'

"Again, Congressman Tinkham, in his speech, said 'he (Bishop Cannon) will stand convicted in the eyes of all honest men of having appropriated that money to his own uses.'

"The above statements, and many other similar statements contained in the speech of June 17, not only do not appear, but are not referred to in the 135-word purported paraphrase of his speech.

"As the greater part of the speech has already appeared in the newspapers as Congressional privileged matter, and as some papers might not desire to republish it over his personal signature, if Congressman Tinkham desires to be held responsible for exactly what he said on the floor of the House, let him have several copies of his entire speech typewritten, signing them personally, then sending one to me and one to each of several other indicated persons, thus effectually disclaiming immunity for his entire speech as actually delivered."

SHEIKS SEE FIRST MOVIE.

5,000 Bedouins Are Rewarded for Helping in Locust Campaign.

JERUSALEM, June 22 (AP).—In the United States the movies have known about sheiks for years, but a lot of sheiks in the Near East are just now recovering from the shock of their first meeting with the movies.

They met the cinema, in which they have so frequently been featured, yesterday at Beersheba, where the government entertained 5,000 representatives of many Bedouin tribes from Transjordania, Sinai and Palestine. The party was in recognition of services rendered by the tribesmen in the recent campaign against the locusts.

The sheiks enjoyed a feast for which 300 sheep were killed. Horse and camel races took well with spectators. An aerial display also furnished a thrill. But the movies proved a new and alarming problem. The tribesmen gave another proof, however, that the screen had not misrepresented their courage—they stayed through the show and finally lost their fear of it.

REDS PLAN TO END COUNTY DIVISIONS

Saving of $100,000,000 Yearly Seen in Proposal to Abolish Okrugs, Provincial Units.

TEXTILE OUTPUT IN SLUMP

Drops 150,000,000 Yards in May From April Production—Communists Gather for Convention.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, June 22.—The coming Communist party convention will be called on to approve a reform now being drawn up in the Soviet administrative system. About eighteen months ago the old system of provinces, or gubernias, into which Czarist Russia was divided—there were more than fifty in all, corresponding roughly to the American States, although with much less local authority—was replaced by the present territorial arrangement of oblasts.

The latter are much larger than the gubernias and there are only seventeen for the whole Soviet Union. For instance, the Moscow Oblast includes most of the old gubernias of Moscow Tver, Pensa, Tula and Vologda.

The oblasts are subdivided into okrugs, which are something like American counties, and the okrugs in turn are divided into rayons, or townships, with an average of seven okrugs to each oblast and five townships to each okrug.

Huge Annual Saving Seen.

It is now proposed to eliminate the okrugs altogether, which action is calculated to save $100,000,000 annually and to liberate 100,000 okrug functionaries for intensive socialization work in smaller units. It sounds complicated, but the Soviet press compares it in importance to Napoleon's reform of the rich territorial system which still endures and is regarded as one of the chief pillars of the French State.

"Social competition" and "workers' shock brigades" are two methods by which the Soviet State augments labor efficiency without the spur of personal profit, and not unsuccessfully, it seems. There has now been added a third factor in the shape of the "social tug," a scheme invented by workers at the Artem mine in the Donetz coal region. It works as follows.

A group of workers unites as a "tugboat" to pull along any backward section of industry or agriculture. The idea has caught on and is now being developed on a nationwide scale.

Industrial statistics for May published today, although on the whole satisfactory, show one black spot which reveals how hard this country is fighting. The production of textile goods fell off 150,000,000 yards from the output in April—a decrease of more than 40 per cent—and the report says briefly, "This is due to the closing down of some factories owing to a shortage of raw material."

The rapid—some Soviet economists call it unduly rapid—growth of rural socialization and the collective farm movement has made it necessary to increase the importation of agricultural machinery at the expense of cotton imports. The Soviet has met the nearest emergency and is gambling on a successful crop.

The latest reports indicate that the risk is justified, and new cotton orders probably will be placed within a month as grain sales abroad become a reality.

For the first time in two years Pravda, official organ of the Soviet Government, yesterday spoke of grain exports as a reasonable probability. With fair weather grain exports may amount to 3,000,000 tons or more in the next six months.

Red Delegates Pour Into Moscow.

MOSCOW, June 22 (AP).—Delegates to the All-Union Congress of the Communist Party, scheduled to open here next Wednesday, today crowded the accommodations of the Red capital.

Almost 3,000 delegates, representing every nook and corner of the Soviet Union, will be assembled in the Kremlin Palace for the start of what is regarded as one of the most important congresses the party has ever held. Nearly 100 different nationalities and races within the Soviet Union will be there, presenting an extraordinarily picturesque appearance in their variegated national dress.

Among the arrivals here are many women delegates, women having equal rights with men in Soviet Russia.

The congress, which is the first held since Leon Trotsky's expulsion from the party more than two years ago, is expected to vindicate completely the policies and practices of Joseph Stalin, Secretary-General of the Central Party Committee. As Russia's strong man, Stalin is generally credited with having saved the country from disaster last March by his famous manifesto calling a halt upon Soviet village officials and party members in their excesses designed to hasten the collection of the peasantry on large State-controlled farms.

Politicians also consider it likely that the Right Wing opposition, led by Nicolai Bukharin, Michael Tomsky and Alexei Rykov, who have believed the present rate in socialization of the country is too swift, will, like the exiled Trotsky, be faced with the alternative of recanting or being dismissed from the party.

In recanting they would admit they were mistaken and pledge before the congress their whole-hearted support to the central committee of the party. If they were dismissed from the party they would also be deprived of their executive positions in the government.

Stalin Has Strong Cards.

Political observers here say Stalin will be able to present a strong front at the congress, because this year's crop promises so well, which is largely due to the central committee's agricultural collectivization policy. The progress in the first two years of the government's five-year industrialization plan and favorable prospects for the country's further industrial progress will also strengthen his position.

Several days will be spent discussing the government's agricultural collectivization enterprise, upon which the complete socialization of Russia largely depends. Official pronouncements say 25 per cent of all peasant households in the Soviet Union are embraced in the scheme already.

The congress also will give protracted attention to Russia's five-year industrialization plan, in connection with which hundreds of American engineers and technicians are employed by the government. Other questions on the agenda are the past activities and future program of the Russian section of the Communist International and new forms of work for trades unions in the Soviet territories.

The central committee of the party will report on the Soviet's international situation, as well as on internal affairs.

3 RED OFFICIALS TO DIE.

Ex-Uzbekistan Chief Justice Among Them—Kulak Also to Be Executed.

SAMARKAND, Uzbekistan, June 22 (AP).—Four men, including a former Chief Justice of the Uzbekistan Supreme Court, were sentenced to death today after conviction of favoring kulaks, or rich peasants, in court proceedings and of accepting bribes and participating in border raids.

They are Ali Kasimov, the former Chief Justice; Ibragim Sharipov, former Prosecutor for the Supreme Court; Ivan Spiridonov, former Attorney for the Defense, and a rich peasant named Alimoff.

Three other defendants, including two judges, were sentenced to ten-year prison terms for the same offenses. The trial lasted nearly four months and more than one hundred witnesses were called.

PLAN FOR RED DRIVE HERE IN SEPTEMBER

Marseilles, France, where they will embark for the United States.

The emigrés also alleged that other secret meetings between American Communists and emissaries of the International were held at Hamburg. They say that the latter will attempt personally to attend the Chicago meeting in July.

Police Aware of Meetings.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Chicago police have been aware for two months of a proposed communist convention to be held in Chicago July 4 and 5, according to Lieutenant Mike Mills of the Industrial squad.

Delegates have been arriving by foot and box car for several weeks past, he said, and preparations are being made by the Reds for upward of 1,500 for the two-day meeting.

The activity of the Chicago Council of the Unemployed, which has at various times presented "worker wages" petitions to the Mayor, is regarded by the police largely as propaganda in preparation for the coming convention. Their demands include worker wages, with wages preferred; a thirty-five-hour working week, recognition of the Soviet Union and abolition of all vagrancy laws.

It is the plan, according to Lieutenant Mills's information, that following the meeting the assembled delegates are to march to Washington, there to present their demands to President Hoover. Of this, however, he said, there had been no public announcement.

The police were aware of the "secret" meeting of international leaders at Danzig, Lieutenant Mills said, and some of the local delegates are to be questioned about what transpired there as soon as they return.

Hood Unknown in Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—The William Hood of Philadelphia referred to in the foregoing Berlin dispatch could not be identified here tonight. Individual Communists disavowed knowledge of the organization's plans, and one of them asserted that the local officers, who could not be reached at the headquarters of the party, were "somewhere in New York" this week-end attending a meeting.

Rumors that an extensive drive would be made for members here, particularly among the unions, have been heard at various times, but there has been no public agitation since April and May, when the Trade Union Unity League sponsored several meetings on City Hall Plaza, which resulted in a group of arrests.

It was said tonight that agents of the Communist party or some of its associated groups had been active more recently, however, promoting propaganda among members of the hosiery unions in Philadelphia.

Washington Not Interfering.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Officials of the Department of Justice said tonight that activities of American Reds, unless in conflict with State laws, would not be subject to interference by American authorities. Since 1921 the State and Justice Departments, it was stated, had not been keeping in touch with their activities, and the Immigration Bureau, which has authority to exclude aliens, would be unable to exclude American Reds reported to be en route to Chicago from Danzig.

Size of Fund Doubted.

A man who has made a study of local communism for some time said last night that he could not recall having previously heard the names of any of those mentioned in the Berlin dispatch. He said they were not well known, were not the leaders of the party in New York or, as far as he knew, anywhere else in the country.

He said he thought the $500,000 suggested for propaganda here a trifle large, the previous report on the subject having made it only $125,000.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney could not be reached last evening at either Headquarters or his home. At the latter place it was explained that he was somewhere attending a party. His associates at headquarters preferred not to comment in his absence.

DEATH PLOT CHARGED.

Plan to Assassinate Mexican Party Chief Is Alleged.

MEXICO CITY, June 22 (AP).—A plot to assassinate Luis Morones, head of the Nationalist Revolutionary Alliance and former Secretary of Commerce, was charged today by Ricardo Trevino, chairman of the alliance's executive committee.

Señor Trevino said that, nevertheless, Morones, intended to continue his political campaign. He accused a former police chief of Mexico City and a prominent politician of being involved in the alleged plot.

COUP BY OTTO TOPIC FOR LITTLE ENTENTE

Meeting This Week to Discuss Possibility, but Those Well-Informed Discount Rumors.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 22.—The possibility of the emulation of the return of King Carol to the throne of Rumania by Archduke Otto of Hungary is one of the subjects which will occupy the attention of the conference of the Little Entente, which is to be held at Tatra in Slovakia for three days, from Wednesday to Saturday.

Recently in all European capitals there have been persistent rumors that another royal coup d'état of this kind was brewing. These rumors have been denied, and those who know the situation best declare that even if an attempt should ultimately be made to restore the Hapsburg monarchy in Hungary the present is far from being an opportune moment.

For one thing, it is felt, Otto is still too young. His country is being admirably held in tutelage by the Regent, Admiral Horthy, and the Premier, Count Bethlen, and to attempt a restoration now might be only to provoke trouble. Later, when the country's leaders feel the time has come for them to hand over their task to some one else, and when the young man has reached greater maturity, it is felt it might be attempted with greater certainty of success.

Restoration at the present time in Hungary would, it is thought, simply serve to increase the feeling of instability throughout Eastern Europe, while later it might serve as a conserving and solidifying factor. The royalist sentiment of the people of Hungary, it is recognized, is one of the most coherent elements of the whole Eastern European situation. On the other hand, Hungary's neighbors are still disinclined to regard as otherwise than inimical any attempt by Hungary to restore the Hapsburgs.

BUCHAREST, June 22 (AP).—Foreign Minister Mironescu told the Rumanian press today that one of the principal items on the agenda of the Little Entente conference would be the European federal union scheme of Foreign Minister Briand of France. He said Rumania approved the scheme and would try to induce Poland and her other allies to accept it.

In view of recent disputes between Rumanian and Hungarian politicians, the forthcoming conference is expected to be unusually significant. Open questions existing between members of the Little Entente and their neighbors will come up for discussion.

The return of King Carol will undoubtedly play a significant part in the deliberations. Among the questions affecting the members of the Little Entente the establishment of a special economic section and a cartel for the sale of their agricultural products are to be debated. Rumania is particularly anxious to sign a trade agreement with Czechoslovakia. Yugoslavia and Poland also have special problems.

TO FREE LENINGRAD RABBI.

Soviet Plans to Recall Lazarev From Exile, but Restrict Residence.

MOSCOW, June 22 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—The Soviet Government plans to recall Rabbi Lazarev, chief rabbi of Leningrad, from his exile in Narim and to permit him to live in Russia except in Leningrad, Moscow and four other centres.

Rabbi Lazarev was arrested on Feb. 26 by the Russian secret police on the charge of maintaining illegal connections with rabbinical organizations abroad. On April 3 Rabbi Lazarev was found guilty and was sentenced to ten years' exile in a concentration camp.

The Leningrad Soviet informed members of the large synagogue there that permission would again be given for the use of the synagogue as a house of worship. The chairman of the synagogue, a lawyer named Gurewitch, who was arrested when the synagogue was confiscated, has not been released. It is understood that the change in the attitude of the Soviet Government is due to a decision not to combat religion by force but to use peaceful anti-religious propaganda.

NOT that we'd give a dubbed tee shot or a flubbed pitch for "dressing a good game of golf." But if you've got the shots, you should have the clothes.

It's the humble opinion of this writer that men's golf suits generally are about the best-looking suits made. They are cut on easy, masculine lines, and the fabrics are uncommonly becoming to the average man. Tweeds, herringbones, homespuns, and the like, in the warmer shades of brown, gray and their mixtures, make handsome clothes.

TROOPS CALLED OUT FOR BOMBAY RIOTS

WOMEN AGAIN MOBILIZED

Europeans Expect Early Arrest of Pandit Motilal Nehru and His Aide, Patel.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOMBAY, June 22.—A torrential downpour, the first real rain of the monsoon, brought about an abrupt if only temporary suspension of the riotous activities of the anti-government Nationalist Congress movement today. The authorities were spared the necessity of breaking up another mass demonstration, for which, in addition to the police forces employed in such an operation, two regiments of infantry were ordered to stand by.

The demonstration was to have been a huge procession through the principal streets of Bombay, led by the now famous Deshisvikas or women satyagrahists (civil disobedience volunteers), who were to appear arrayed in their colorful orange saris of Gandhi's cloth of sacrifice, bearing aloft black flags mingled with the national emblem as a token of mourning for yesterday's events. This was to take place notwithstanding the government ban served on the National Congress's war council yesterday evening.

Large Crowds Flee Rain.

Early this afternoon dense crowds had gathered in the main section of the city to witness what would inevitably have been another sanguinary clash with the police. But just as the volunteers were assembling in marching formation a drizzle which had continued throughout the morning suddenly developed into a drenching flood of rain. A fierce wind blew and the thousands of spectators and demonstrators fled under a sea of umbrellas for shelter.

The police and troops waited. Motor trucks filled with soldiers of East Lancashire regiments in full service kit dashed through the thoroughfares. British sergeants and Indian sepoys in rubber coats and high boots waded through the water trying to give some semblance of order to the crazy tangle of traffic.

Then Pandit Motilal Nehru, acting president of the Nationalist Congress, who happens to be the Gandhi of the moment, made a wise decision. He posted a notice outside Congress House before the waiting crowds calling off the demonstration on account of the weather, a notice which was promptly broadcast throughout the city by the traditional medium of beating of Indian drums.

Very soon the crowds began slowly to disperse and not long afterward the commissioner of police, with an obvious sense of relief, was able to release his forces and give the "all clear" signal to military district headquarters.

Use of Troops Welcomed.

The fact that detachments from two regiments were called out today is accepted among the European community as a welcome change of policy by the authorities who hitherto have relied almost entirely on the police in these public disturbances. The situation remains serious.

Pandit Motilal Nehru, while remaining conspicuously behind the scenes himself, seems to be directing a fresh onslaught on the government and it will not surprise European Bombay if both he and his aide, Patel, were soon arrested.

Promise of publication of the second part of the Simon report Tuesday morning has created very little stir among the political parties though some added interest is aroused by the rumor that the Viceroy may after all accompany its publication by a fresh pronouncement on the subject of dominion status.

This would undoubtedly produce a change in the Nationalist movement, though it is doubted whether the government, after what has transpired recently, will give way now before Mr. Gandhi completely abandons his civil disobedience campaign.

NEW DEMONSTRATIONS EXPECTED IN INDIA

From a Special Correspondent.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SIMLA, June 22.—Every one here is prepared for fresh demonstrations of anti-British feeling in the storm centres of India within the coming week, which will see the recommendations of the Simon Commission published.

If these outbursts occur, there will be little doubt that they were prepared in advance, irrespective of what the commission's recommendations may be.

It will probably be many days, perhaps even many weeks, before the present state of excitement dies down and gives the leaders of political thought an opportunity to reflect how the report will affect their case at the coming round table conference.

The report is to be issued to the press late Monday for publication Tuesday. It will be some time before a summary, to say nothing of the report itself, will be received in all parts of India. It will take longer still for the educated Indians to digest it and explain its import to their followers. Even today, nearly a fortnight after the appearance of the first volume, many Indian newspapers still are publishing extracts daily.

FASCISTS GAIN IN SAXONY.

Early Returns in Diet Poll Show Big Increase in Strength.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DRESDEN, June 22.—Early returns from the Saxon Diet election indicate a heavy gain in the vote of National Socialists, or Fascistis, who are likely to capture fifteen seats, as compared with five held heretofore.

In that event, they will be second only to the Socialists in the Diet.

Michael of Rumania Passes Examinations, Ending 3d Term

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, June 22.—Crown Prince Michael yesterday passed his examination for promotion from the third class, elementary school, in the presence of King Carol, Queen Helen and Prince Nicolas.

Although this might not seem to the outside world an important event in comparison with recent occurrences in Rumania, it was to Michael a source of greater excitement than his dethronement and the return of his father to be King. The young ex-ruler was visibly nervous, but he had been so well groomed that he survived the ordeal, which is as grim a one for young Crown Princes as for children of less exalted rank.

Whether Ministers Will Be Kept During State of Emergency Is Still Uncertain.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VALETTA, Malta, June 22.—The British Cabinet's decision as to the form of government in Malta during the state of emergency is still undisclosed, but it would appear that, instead of reverting to the status of a crown colony, Malta will continue the system initiated by the recent ordinance suspending elections.

On the assumption that the crisis created by the Bishops' pastoral affects the peace and order of good government in Malta, the Governor will continue to legislate by ordinance. The only matter still subject to speculation is whether the Ministers will be retained in office during the state of emergency or whether the government will be carried on without them. The Constitution enables the Governor to appoint a consultative committee, including three Ministers. The adoption of this system to meet the emergency has the advantage of keeping the door open for the return to self-government. It is hoped here that the interregnum resulting from the Church and State crisis will be utilized to remove some defects in the Maltese Constitution which have impeded its smooth working.

TWO ARE CANONIZED IN ST. PETER'S RITES

VATICAN CITY, June 22 (AP).—At a moving ceremony at St. Peter's today two new names were added to the roster of saints of the Catholic Church. Many Americans were present.

Pope Pius, in a Latin allocution, solemnly proclaimed the canonization of Caterina Thoma, a Spanish canoness, and Lulucia Filippini, Italian foundress of a teaching order of nuns.

Bishop Thomas J. Walsh of Newark, N. J., who has a large colony of Filippini Sisters teaching in his diocese, participated in a colorful religious procession before the canonization. Twenty Cardinals, three patriarchs and fifty Bishops and Abbots took part in the procession.

Pope Pius set the feast day for Saint Caterina Thoma to be April 12 and for Saint Lulucia Filippini, March 25.

Despite the heat of the day and the weight of his ecclesiastical vestments, the Pontiff appeared very vigorous. His voice, whether chanting or speaking, rang out resonantly through St. Peter's.

In the vast congregation, numbering more than 50,000, were descendants of the families of both saints. The Pope's niece and her husband, the Marquis and Marchioness Persechetti Ugolini, were present as beneficiaries of miracles believed to have been wrought by the intercession of Saint Lulucia Filippini.

CHIANG BEGINS DRIVE ON REBELS IN HONAN

FENG AIMING AT HANKOW

British Troops at Tientsin Remove Chinese Recruits Who Refuse to Leave English Vessel.

SHANGHAI, June 22 (AP).—While Nanking Government armies locked with rebel Shansi and Kuominchun troops in Honan Province in a new general offensive by Nanking troops, conflicting claims of important victories on three fronts were made today by both Nanking and the rebels.

Government forces, beleaguered by rebels from the north, south and northeast, issued statements claiming victories on all fronts. Their claims, however, were not substantiated by missionaries and other observers, who reported the Nanking forces, where not actually defeated, occupied weakened positions.

In the meantime reliable reports from Hankow told of a general offensive against Shansi cavalry and Kuominchun infantry near Chowkiakow, seventy-five miles southeast of Kaifeng in Honan.

Previous Hankow dispatches asserted Kuominchun forces north of Chumatien, Honan, on the Peking-Hankow railroad, had attempted a surprise attack against the Nanking troops, but were repulsed, with 700 rebel officers and men killed and 600 captured. The Federal forces also asserted they captured many horses and large quantities of ammunition.

Catholic missionary reports from Honan, however, failed to substantiate Nanking claims of victory. Instead, the missionaries said, Kuominchun troops had established a strong advancing line slightly north of Chumatien and were moving southward.

Missionary advices also said rebels led by Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang encountered a large body of Nanking troops and inflicted many casualties, capturing the commanding officer. It was also reported a strong detachment of Feng's famous cavalry, mounted on Mongolian ponies, penetrated to within fifty miles northeast of Chumatien and began a drive southward, sweeping all opposition before it.

The rebel objective was the region of the sister cities of Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang in Hupeh Province. Southern rebels recently menaced these cities in three great drives from the south.

Nanking dispatches said Chumatien was packed with troop trains filled with wounded Nanking soldiers.

From Suchow, Kiangsu Province, came advices that Chiang Kai-shek, President of the Nanking Government, despite numerous rumors that he was suffering from serious body wounds, had undertaken a renewed general offensive against the rebels along the Peking-Hankow railroad front and the area traversed by the Haichow-Tungkwan railroad. Kaifeng and Chengchow were given as the objectives.

Unconfirmed reports said sharp fighting had begun again in the neighborhood of Lanfeng, where Nanking troops engaged a strong body of Shanshi rebels.

Hankow dispatches continued to say that government forces in Honan were occupying favorable positions against the Kuominchun legions. A dispatch dated Changsha said Federal troops were advancing rapidly southward driving the Kwangsi invaders before them.

Because of the virtual collapse of the telegraph system in Kiangsi Province, conditions there were obscure. Invading Southerners who entered Western Kiangsi were supposed to be continuing their slow advance toward Nanchang and Kiukiang, although Nanking reports again said these forces were turned southward, seeking to escape loyal troops entering Kiangsi from the north.

British Troops Go to Aid of Ship.

TIENTSIN, June 22 (AP).—A platoon of British troops boarded the British ship Fausang today and removed a party of 150 Chinese Army recruits who had boarded the steamer during the night and had refused to pay passage or evacuate the vessel.

The recruits, many of whom had been impressed into service, boarded the vessel under the escort of recruiting officers. Efforts of the ship's officers and police to persuade the recruits to leave were unavailing and the British troops were called. The party was escorted across the boundary concessions without disorder.

CHANG SPURNS NANKING PLAN.

Manchurian Governor Rejects Offer of a Command—To Stay Neutral.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MUKDEN, June 22.—Chang Hsueh-liang, Governor of Manchuria, informed your correspondent today that he had refused the appointment of Vice Commander of the Army and Navy of the Nanking Government because he was opposed to civil war and intended at all costs to maintain the neutrality of Manchuria.

If, however, he could do anything to restore peace, he said, he would use every effort to that end. The Nanking Government has made several material offers to Chang to obtain his help, but all of them have been rejected.

Mussolini's Son-in-Law Is Named Italian Consul General.

ROME, June 22 (AP).—Diplomatic and consular changes announced today include the transfer of Galeazzo Ciano, son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, from Secretary in the Italian Embassy at the Holy See to Shanghaio, where he will be Consul General.

Signor Ciano recently married Edda Mussolini. There have been rumors that he would be transferred to Washington as Under Secretary at the Italian Embassy.

BIDS YOUTHS GO TO CANADA

Duke of Connaught Cites Openings to English Students.

LONDON, June 22 (Canadian Press).—"There have probably been no greater openings at any time in the world for young men prepared to work than those presented by Canada today," said the Duke of Connaught, uncle of King George and formerly Governor General of Canada, in his address at Wellington College, Crowthorne, yesterday.

The Duke suggested that parents as well as boys might do well to consider the opportunities of the Dominion. He said those who went to Canada were able to feel they were not going to a foreign country, but to a land imbued with the same ideas of loyalty as the mother country.

Frederick G. Malim, headmaster of Wellington, urged his pupils to consider the career of an electrical engineer, especially in the service of such great companies as the one which harnessed the immense power of Niagara. The task of uncovering the vast mineral wealth of a country such as Canada also involved a great and profitable career, he declared, adding that there was an enormous demand for qualified engineers and chemists, and if Britain were able to keep up sending a steady stream of trained men to the dominions it would be doing a great empire service.

STUDIES THE WAILING WALL.

International Commissioner Also Calls at Chamber of Grand Mufti.

JERUSALEM, June 22 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The members of the International Wailing Wall Commission, who arrived here a few days ago to investigate Moslem and Jewish claims to the wall, paid an informal visit to it Saturday morning, escorted by the Jerusalem District Commissioner, Mr. Keith-Roach, and a government official, Edwin Samuel, son of Sir Herbert Samuel, former High Commissioner of Palestine. The area of the Wailing Wall was thronged with Jewish worshipers of all classes when the commissioners visited it.

The members of the commission studied the approaches to the wall and called at the chambers of the Grand Mufti overlooking the pavement.

The Moslems have spread praying carpets and hung up lamps on top of the wall. On Saturday they held services at the Zahwieh, which is a deserted chapel on the left side of the main approach to the Wailing Wall.

Sailor on Arkansas Saves Stevedore Knocked Off Cherbourg Pier.

CHERBOURG, France, June 22 (AP).—Diving off a pier in full uniform, O. C. Herring, a sailor aboard the U. S. S. Arkansas, today saved the life of a drowning French stevedore.

Julien Lesaulnier, the stevedore, who was unable to swim, was knocked off the pier by Alfred Clark, a British tourist hastening to reach a steamer on the verge of sailing. Clark bumped into Lesaulnier while running, and the stevedore was going down for the second time when Herring dived in for him.

Clark was arrested and taken to the police station. Herring, whose home is in Easton, Pa., was congratulated by French authorities and his officers.

ALFONSO SEES EXILE; WINS HIM TO REGIME

WON'T ACCEPT PREMIERSHIP

Wants the Government "Renovated Peacefully but Radically"—Talk Stirs Spaniards.

By P. J. PHILIP.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 22.—A somewhat unexpected move in the Spanish situation took place today in Paris when King Alfonso, who is here on his way to England, had a long conversation with the former Liberal Minister Santiago Alba. The interview took place at the King's request at his hotel and later a statement was issued with the King's approval setting forth the burden of the conversation.

Señor Alba has been in exile from Spain ever since the setting up of the Primo de Rivera dictatorship and had been in opposition to the King for permitting the dictatorship and the destruction of the Constitution. By many in Spain he is regarded as almost the last hope of the monarchy, and today's reconciliation conversation therefore is of the greatest importance.

According to the official statement the conversation began cordially, the King congratulating the former Minister on the articles which he has been having published in the Spanish press. Señor Alba replied by developing his ideas of how the political and constitutional question should be settled, and declared for sincere and honest elections and for reformation of the Constitution by a Cortes in such a manner as to create an essentially democratic and parliamentary régime in Spain under a limited monarchy such as exists in England and Belgium. In the transformation, Señor Alba insisted, the crown must take the leading rôle, giving to the people definite guarantees.

Señor Alba refrained in the King's presence from making any presentation of his own case and the communiqué says he had the satisfaction of hearing from the royal lips a spontaneous phrase of gratitude for his zeal and probity while Minister in Spain.

Señor Alba expressed himself as favorable to the maintenance of the Berenguer Cabinet, and urged that at a moment so grave for the future of Spain it was the duty of all parties to unite and help toward a solution. However, he was insistent that there must be an extension of representation in the government and that elections must be held as soon as possible.

Statement Keenly Discussed.

PARIS, June 22 (AP).—The conference between King Alfonso and Santiago Alba today was keenly discussed by followers of Spanish affairs this evening. Such an interview had been forecast before King Alfonso left Madrid on Thursday for a three weeks' visit abroad.

Upon its outcome, it was then said, important events in Spain depended, including even the possibility of the resignation of the Berenguer Ministry and the formation of a Liberal Government, or Liberal coalition.

In a long communiqué, which he said he had previously submitted to the King for approval, the Liberal statesman emphasized his desire to forget personal quarrels and differences of opinion in the "common work of restoring Spain to a democratic form of government." He said he was himself averse to taking the Premiership so long as "the present incoherence and confusion obtains in Spain."

In an interview with the press later the Liberal statesman said he felt it was his patriotic duty to discuss with the King present conditions in Spain "in order to renovate peacefully but radically, in its different aspects, the Spanish régime in accordance with the wishes of the majority."

Santiago Alba believed that "in the difficult moments through which Spain is passing all Spaniards must bend every effort in collaboration to assure the future of their country. All questions of personalities must disappear before the national cause."

He said he was not desirous of assuming the Premiership in Spain and would not accept such an invitation until universal suffrage had been consulted in freely conducted elections. But he was prepared to lend his cooperation in aiding "Spanish renovation."

It was remarked that neither the Spanish Embassy nor the Duke of Miranda, King Alfonso's Major Domo, had this evening issued any communiqué or official comment on Santiago Alba's statements.

LARGE DAMS GROUP TO JOIN POWER BODY

DECIDES AT BERLIN SESSION

Result of Long Struggle Victory for Americans, Who Opposed Governmental Control.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 22.—Memories of the St. Francis Dam disaster in Southern California two years ago were awakened here tonight by the announcement that the International Large Dams Commission, with its membership comprising most of the leading nations of the world, had decided to become a subcommittee of the World Power Conference.

The decision marks the end of a long struggle between supporters of the view that such a commission ought to be the function of governments—perhaps handled from Geneva—and those who believe that technicians such as form the membership of the World Power Conference ought to have authority in questions of dam design and construction.

The Commission Internationale des Grandes Barrages, as the organization has officially been known, has been in session here concurrently with the World Power Conference. The American delegates to the commission were O. C. Merrill, chairman of the American committee of the World Power Conference; Henry J. Pierce of New York and L. F. Harza of Chicago. The sessions were presided over by Georges Magnier, president of the French committee and Inspector General of Bridges and Highways of France.

Victory for Americans.

The commission decided to adopt a new constitution providing that the organization shall henceforth be a subcommittee of the World Power Conference. The decision marks a victory for the American viewpoint, which has long been that such work ought not to be placed in governmental hands.

The International Large Dams Commission was formed at Grenoble, France, in 1925, and took a governmental tinge at once. It was suggested in 1926 at a sectional meeting of the World Power Conference in Basle that it might be advisable to place the work of the commission under the wing of the conference, but the suggestion has only now borne fruit.

The St. Francis disaster served to give sharp point to the argument that the final form of the commission ought to be settled as soon as possible in order that it might start functioning effectively. That the foremost dam designers of all parts of the world will now have the opportunity to meet as a committee of the Power Conference to exchange views and relate experiences with difficult problems is considered a big step forward and a valuable safety factor for the future in preventing such calamities as the St. Francis disaster.

It will be recalled that following that catastrophe the State of California passed a law providing for the employment by the State of expert consulting advice to pass on the designs offered. Supporters of the change in the commission on large dams are confident that this new subcommittee will form a source par excellence for such consulting advice not only for California but all other States and nations which have been showing signs of following suit in respect of this kind of legislation.

An American Viewpoint.

"As a result of some sad failures," commented Ely Hutchinson, well-known engineer and editor of the magazine Power, "the need for governmental regulation has become imperative. It is my opinion, however, and I think it is also that of the majority of my countrymen, that governmental regulation of dam construction is not best served through an international government commission which would find it very hard to remain apart from the field of politics.

"I am convinced that a non-political, completely technical organization such as the World Power Conference is in a far better position to supervise such matters. The work of this committee deserves support from engineers and should be followed closely. It has great possibilities for good."

Mr. Hutchinson, as well as other leading engineers here, feel, however, that the committee's field of endeavor should be confined to providing consultation services of the best qualified experts and should not attempt to codify dam construction, which they believe would stultify the art. They point out that varying conditions for each site affect the selection of the type of dam on the basis of experience and precedent far more than pure mathematics can.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, June 22.—Despite the royal decree on Friday adjourning Parliament for one month, the Wafdist executive has decided to take what is regarded by others as a dangerous course by sitting in Parliament tomorrow and lending color to the theory they are forcing a revolutionary issue.

Europeans find some comfort in the new Cabinet of Ismael Sidky Pasha, whose ability to restore order and financial equilibrium was reflected in the rise on the stock exchange.

Meanwhile the anti-British campaign continues and is taking an anti-Christian tone. The Wafd extremist paper, Rosa el Yussef, published an insulting caricature of Christ. The authorities are taking action against the journal. Legal action is said to be planned against those who permitted the King to be insulted at the last session of Parliament. Observers believe the situation is delicate and that anything is now possible.

The Egyptian crisis became serious last week when the government submitted to the King a bill which was intended to safeguard the Constitution by inflicting severe penalties on Ministers who attempted to emulate the example of former Premier Mohammed Mohmud Pasha by suspending constitutional liberties.

This bill was sent to the King four weeks ago with a request for his signature, but King Fuad expressed dissatisfaction with the measure. The Cabinet, headed by Nahas Pasha, resigned on Tuesday.

When the resignations were announced in Parliament Tuesday, one speaker declared "the people are ready to crush the biggest head in the country" in their effort to maintain the Constitution.

The Wafd party strives for complete independence by amicable means, hoping to maintain friendly relations with Great Britain and all foreign powers.

SEA POWER PIPE LINE WILL BE LAID TODAY

Huge Concrete Tube Rests on Pontoons Ready to Be Sunk Into Matanzas Bay.

PROBLEM IS DELICATE ONE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, June 22.—Submersion in a depth of 550 feet in the cold waters of Matanzas Bay of a 16-inch reinforced concrete pipe 1,500 meters long, constituting the backbone of Professor Georges Claude's hydro-electric plant, will take place early tomorrow. Whether the French engineer's project to revolutionize the industrial operations of the world by generating electric energy from the waters of Matanzas Bay is feasible will be known in a short time.

Professor Claude expressed confidence that the pipe would be laid with comparative ease, and said he did not anticipate the troubles experienced a year ago when the former pipe was broken by the waves. The enormous concrete pipe has been placed on pontoons and is fastened with one-inch steel cables.

Forty expert Cuban swimmers are in readiness to board the pontoons and await the signal of Professor Claude to open the valves and sink the pipe to the bottom of the bay. The success of this engineering feature depends entirely on making all the pontoons sink at the same rate so that the immense tube will not be strained too much at any point. This is an operation in which the weight of the pipe, the pressure of the water, the sizes of the pontoons and the quantity of water entering them to sink them has been figured to the minutest detail.

The work will be directed by Professor Claude in a motor boat. He will drop a flag when all is in readiness as a signal for the valves to be opened. Engineers of the Public Works Department will be observers for the Cuban Government.

D. C. Hennig of the Arkansas Saves Englishman at Cherbourg.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CHERBOURG, France, June 22.—An American sailor, D. C. Hennig, of the U. S. S. Arkansas, saved a man from drowning in the harbor here today in somewhat dramatic circumstances. The man, an Englishman, was going aboard a ship for England when he was pushed into the water by another man and fell between the ship and the pier. He could not swim, but Hennig immediately dived in and succeeded in rescuing him.

The Arkansas, the Florida and the Utah, under command of Read Admiral Cluverius and carrying 1,000 Annapolis midshipmen on a practice cruise, anchored here yesterday morning.

ROBBER, 17, STIRS BOSTON BY ESCAPE

BAFFLES STRAIT-JACKET

Boasts of "Driving Whalen" From Job—Had Broken From Reformatory Four Times.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 22.—Armed police combed Greater Boston tonight for a 17-year-old desperado who had escaped from City Prison, a feat previously performed only by the late Harry Houdini.

In the early hours of the morning Victor Stanwhite of Dorchester, who had tried suicide several times since his arrest Saturday, worked out of the third straight-jacket he had been placed in, reached through a cell grating, took keys from a dozing guard and let himself out through five doors.

The escape was discovered and the hunt started within ten minutes. Stanwhite, who has escaped five times from a reform school, held up and shot a pawnbroker last Saturday.

The police teletyped to twenty-one cities and towns: "Have all officers be careful when they spot this fellow. He will shoot to kill. He is bad."

Reports that a youth was seen going into a coal pocket resulted in squads from four stations being rushed to the spot in South Boston with floodlights. In Chestnut Hill, the home of a millionaire was guarded all night, as Stanwhite went there on each of the occasions he escaped from the reform school, to don the master's clothes and enjoy himself while the family was away.

When he was imprisoned, the kid bandit tried suicide from chagrin, bitterly bewailing the fact that he, an "educated burglar who didn't need to go to school," had been caught by a "flatfoot." He hanged himself with a sweater two minutes after he was put in a cell, and when this was cut down he used his khaki shirt.

Says He "Bested Whalen."

At Police Headquarters he wisecracked with inspectors and suddenly demanded: "Where the hell is this super. If he doesn't hurry I'll bust him like I drove Grover Whalen out of New York."

Four officers were required to put the youth in a straitjacket. When he had worked one arm free an hour later in a padded cell, a second jacket was put on him. He got out of this and was adjusting the cord for another try at suicide when they caught him.

A third jacket was put on and a special guard assigned to watch the youth. The guard had six keys so that he might in turn lock each door behind him and prevent an escape if he was suddenly overpowered.

At 6:50 this morning the guard looked at his watch and at Stanwhite, still encased in the jacket. At 7 o'clock the officer awoke and Stanwhite was gone. He had lifted the keys from the sleeping guard.

He was naked, all his clothing having been removed. As a mocking gesture, the escaping bandit left his straitjacket at the feet of the sleeping patrolman.

His naked feet made no sound in the prison corridors. He silently opened the locks of the intervening doors and within a few minutes entered the prison office. There, in a corner, were his clothes. He dressed quickly and opened the final door to freedom. Even as he left Patrolman Walsh was awakening to find his prisoner gone.

Wounded a Pawnbroker.

Saturday morning the youth attempted to hold up a pawnbroker. When the broker refused to give him money and plunged at him, Stanwhite calmly shot the man in the hip. A patrolman heard the shot and ran to the store. As he reached it the pawnbroker came running out, blood streaming from the wound.

Inside was the 113-pound youth. Placidly he waited for the officer. As Gaffney crossed the threshold Stanwhite leveled a police revolver at his heart. "Put that down!" cried Gaffney, pulling his revolver. "Oh, all right," quickly agreed Stanwhite and the arrest was made.

Investigation disclosed that he had a long record. His last escape from Shirley School was on April 1, 1929. Last April 30 Stanwhite was arrested by New Haven police on a burglary warrant. It is believed that he is wanted in New York, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

TYPHUS IN MARYLAND.

National Health Institute Studying Outbreak Along Atlantic Seaboard.

BALTIMORE, June 22 (AP).—Maryland, with six cases, has shared in a fairly general mild outbreak of typhus along the Atlantic seaboard, it was said today by Dr. Robert H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health. Virtually all the cases reported thus far are in the eastern section, with none in Baltimore.

The National Health Institute at Washington is making a study of the malady, rare in the United States, and the cases developed have been isolated while an investigation is made to determine the source.

The American typhus is milder than the dread European epidemic form and is not fatal so often. No real typhus plague has been recorded in this country since before the Civil War, though thousands died of it in Europe during and after the World War. In 1927 there was a mild epidemic in Alabama and scattered cases have been reported in Virginia, Maryland and other States in recent years.

Bishop's Health Drunk in Wine.

Centuries ago, when a new Bishop was elected in Speyer, Germany, the cathedral's great sandstone basin was filled with wine and drunk by the city's burghers to the Bishop's health. In connection with the celebration of the cathedral's nine hundredth anniversary in July this basin will be transferred from its place in the churchyard to a site near the main portal. Another feature of the celebration will be the exhibition of the insignia of the Holy Roman Empire, the crown of Kaiser Conrad II, the builder of the cathedral, and the septre, cross, imperial apple and sword of Charlemagne, which are the property of the Hofberg in Vienna.

WOMAN DIES OF BEATING.

Body Found in Bed of East End Av. Home—Husband Is Missing.

The victim of a beating, Mrs Johanna Murphy, 64 years old, was found dead in bed last night in her apartment on the top floor of a tenement house at 82 East End Avenue. The police are searching for the woman's husband, Michael J. Murphy, 65 years old, who left the apartment early yesterday morning.

The body was found by Mrs. Helen Kubin of 1,382 York Avenue, who was accustomed to exchange daily visits with Mrs. Murphy, shortly after 11 o'clock. Dr. Charles G. Norris, chief medical examiner, said that the woman had been dead for several hours.

Neighbors told the police that they had heard screams coming from the Murphy flat at about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, but that as such occurrences had been commonplace for some time they had made no investigation.

They said that Murphy had been detained in Bellevue for observation eight days early this month and that on his release he had thrown his wife down a flight of stairs. The Murphys have two sons and two daughters. One of the sons, the police were told, is a patient at the United States Veterans Hospital in the Bronx.

PROTEST TO QUEEN MARY.

Titled Indians' Womenfolk Score Suppression of Bombay Parade.

LONDON, June 22 (AP).—Bombay dispatches to The Daily Herald report that wives and daughters of Indians holding British titles decided last night to send a telegram of protest to Queen Mary against suppression of the Nationalist parade on the Maidan Esplanade Saturday.

At a hurriedly called meeting the prominent Indian women also decided to organize a procession of women carrying black flags through the streets of the city. Indian business associations are considering proclaiming a "hartal," or cessation of work, for a month.

About 500 persons were reported injured during the police charges that cleared the Esplanade. The Daily Mail correspondent says that since the beginning of Mahatma Gandhi's campaign nothing so serious for Britain and India has occurred. He reports that the entire Indian community has been "shaken to its depths."

FIND BODY IN LAKE ERIE.

Searchers Recover That of Speedboat Operator, Seventh of 8 Lost.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 22 (AP).—The body of John Meyers, operator of the speedboat which cost the lives of eight prominent Toledoans in Lake Erie yesterday, was recovered near here today by members of a Coast Guard crew.

Meyers's body was the seventh to be recovered and the search will be continued by the Coast Guard tomorrow for Herbert W. Nauts, internal revenue collector, the only victim of the lake tragedy whose body has not been found.

CROWDS VISIT SCENE OF MANIAC'S CRIME

New Haven Police Prevent the Foolhardy From Descending West Rock.

WAS NEAR DEATH IN ESCAPE

Spang, Who Threw Wife and Four Children Over Cliff, Jumped From Train on Way to Home.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 22 (AP).—Thousands of the morbidly curious today gazed at towering West Rock, from which Raymond C. Spang, demented World War veteran, yesterday threw his wife and four children and followed them in a fatal leap.

In Ansonia, the bodies of the mother and children lay in a morgue while plans were made for their burial Tuesday. Father, mother and children will be buried after a single simple funeral service.

Only a strict watch maintained by police prevented foolhardy persons from climbing down the face of the rock to the narrow ledge where Spang brooded for two hours after hurling the last of his children to death.

The crowds came from all sections of the State, and looked in awe at this mountainous rock, long noted as a beauty spot in the city's park system.

Spang was not regarded as a violent patient when he was admitted to the Veterans' Hospital in New York City on May 1. After his escape he left a train at New Rochelle, N. Y., hitch-hiked to Bridgeport and then boarded another train. At West Haven he narrowly missed death when he jumped from the train while it was traveling at a rate of forty miles an hour.

Excursion tickets were found in the Spang home today, and it developed that his family were to accompany him to New York on his return to the hospital.

After his leap from the train, Spang went to the home of a friend in West Haven, where he had supper on Friday night.

The friend, Harry Nicholas, said that the veteran ate a hearty meal, spoke rationally of his experiences in the hospital, particularly about the fine food he had and the splendid view of the Hudson River he enjoyed from his window.

When Nicholas told him that he was foolish to leave the institution, Spang replied that he wanted to see his family. It was in the Nicholas home that he was joined by his wife. She was in high spirits, Nicholas said, when they went for their home in Ansonia.

Mrs. Spang was aware that her husband had escaped from the hospital, and it was understood that they planned to use the excursion tickets to return to the hospital today. It is believed that Spang acquiesced. The picnic at West Rock was in celebration of their "reunion," and Spang borrowed an automobile for the occasion.

Hospital Authorities Silent.

In the absence of Dr. M. C. Baines, superintendent of the United States Public Health Service Hospital 81, at Kingsbridge Road and Sedgwick Avenue, the Bronx, other officials refused yesterday to discuss the escape of Raymond C. Spang. They said no one had authority to talk while Dr. Baines was away.

The officer of the day said that Dr. Baines, who has quarters at the hospital, was expected to return this morning, by which time the board he has appointed to investigate the escape of Spang might be ready to report. The officer of the day thought Dr. Baines would be able to ascertain how Spang escaped.

Persons living near the hospital were not surprised at the escape, they said, because many patients, supposedly harmless, have the freedom og the hospital grounds and road around within an enclosure made by an iron picket fence not much higher than four feet. Families living in the neighborhood are said to have expressed concern because the fence is not higher.

HEAT IN WEST SETS RECORD

Southwest Also Comes In for a Broiling—101 in St. Louis.

KANSAS CITY, June 22 (AP).—Record breaking high temperatures which came to this section yesterday, continued today. A perspiring citizenship sought parks and swimming resorts to obtain relief from heat which was general in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

All time high temperature readings for June 22 were broken in St. Louis, where the mercury climbed to 101. A light breeze did much to lessen the suffering in Kansas City, where the temperature went to 97 degrees, a point lower than yesterday's high reading.

Thermometer readings of 100 degrees were common in Oklahoma, that mark being reported at Sayre, Bartlesville and Ponca City. The season's record of 94 degrees was equaled in Oklahoma City. Muskogee reported 95 degrees was equaled.

Western Kansas, where the wheat harvest is in full swing, baked under a broiling sun. Newton reported 99 degrees, Topeka and Wichita 96.

Waco, Texas, had a temperature of 98, being that State's hottest point. Fort Worth and Dallas reported 95, Houston 93 and Austin 92.

of traffic police were assigned to keep them moving.

The congested traffic contributed to a heavy toll of automobile accidents. Twelve persons were killed in automobile accidents during the day and scores injured.

Highways leading into the city were still thronged with returning automobiles at midnight last night. The Staten Island ferries were carrying capacity loads and officials of the Holland Tunnels said that in the twenty-four hours ended at midnight more than 50,000 cars had passed through the tunnels.

Excursion Boats Crowded.

Excursion boats left their piers filled with merrymakers, and launches, speedboats and other small craft made their appearance in surprisingly large numbers. Subway trains bound for Coney Island carried capacity crowds until late in the evening, when the tide turned and a mill race of humanity poured back cityward.

At Coney Island thousands swarmed along the Boardwalk. The beach was packed with men, women and children in bathing suits and it was almost impossible to find space to move around. Streets were congested far back from the shore where buses, private automobiles and pedestrians seemed to have merged in a limitless mass.

In many cases children moving through the crowds were torn from their parents' grasp and carried helplessly along until some policeman singled them out and rescued them. The Coney Island police station resembled a huge day nursery, and during the afternoon 125 lost children were reclaimed there by tearful parents.

A strong force of detectives was scattered through the crowds on the lookout for pickpockets and hoodlums, but no disorder was reported. The bulk of the day's work devolved upon police assigned to traffic duty and ambulance surgeons. The latter were kept constantly on the move treating bathers whose feet were cut by broken bottles on the beach or applying restoratives to others dragged from the water after they had gotten beyond their depths.

A man and a boy were drowned in the afternoon and a woman died on the beach from a heart attack. The first drowning occurred just after 2 P. M. Benjamin Korin, 16 years old, a Brooklyn high school boy, living at 40 Moore Street, was swimming off West Fifth Street near the end of the life lines when bathers saw him throw up his arms and disappear. Harry Sylvester, a life guard, was notified. He swam out and brought Korin ashore, where an inhalator was used for nearly an hour in a fruitless effort to resuscitate him.

Drowned Man Unidentified.

About 6 P. M. an unidentified man about 28 years old, clad in a brown bathing suit, got beyond his depth and sank off West Twenty-second Street. He was brought ashore by Life Guard Jeremiah Izzo, but efforts to revive him failed. The dead man was 5 feet 6 inches in height, weighed 155 pounds and had dark hair and brown eyes. His body was taken to the Kings County Morgue.

Late in the day Mrs. Anna Zinerlining, 48 years old, of 548 West 146th Street, Manhattan, collapsed from a heart attack as she was sitting in her bathing suit with a group of friends on the beach. An ambulance was called from the Coney Island Hospital, but the surgeon who examined her said that she had died instantly.

More than twenty persons were rescued by life guards in the Rockaways, but none of them was in serious condition and all were able to go to their homes. At Long Beach twelve persons were rescued, but there, too, all were revived and sent home, apparently none the worse for their experiences.

60,000 at Long Island Parks.

More than 60,000 persons, the largest attendance this year, visited Long Island State parks during the day, and about a third of them went bathing. Officials at the Jones Beach State Park counted 20,100 visitors there, and officials at the Valley Stream Park counted 11,000. places attracting record crowds. The Peter Calander, 29 years old, of 995 Willoughby Avenue, Brooklyn, was drowned in the lake at the latter park while attempting to save his wife, who had gone beyond her depth. She managed to get ashore safely. Paul Molinaris of 250 Jefferson Street, Brooklyn, who was with the Calanders, tried to save the husband but failed. His body had been under water for more than a quarter of an hour when life guards recovered it. An inhalator was used but failed to restore life.

But the resorts were not the only city parks also had the largest Sunday crowds of the year. Walks in Central, Prospect and other parks were filled with promenaders, and benches along the walks were filled. Almost every available rowboat on the various park lakes had at least one occupant. Most of them had two.

Piers and scows along the Harlem, Hudson and East River fronts were dotted with groups of boys swimming, while other groups splashed about in the water and shouted to those ashore to "come on in."

One drowning was reported in Long Island Sound off Hunter's Island. John Leonardi, 40 years old, of 331 East 160th Street was swimming there when apparently he was seized with a cramp. Watchers ashore heard him cry out and saw him sink. Several men plunged in and tried to rescue him, but he was dead when they brought him to land.

Edward Miners, 16 years old, of Palisades Park, was drowned in Overpeck Creek when his rowboat upset. His companion, Frank Cook, 14, screamed for help and was rescued by his brother. When the latter turned around to go to the assistance of the other little chap, he had disappeared. The police and friends found the body with grappling irons.

The maximum temperature yesterday was 80 degrees at 5 P. M., and the minimum 67 degrees at 6 A. M. The average was four degrees warmer than the average for June 20, but no records were broken. Weather Bureau officials predicted little change in temperature today.

AUTO CRASHES KILL 12.

Many Others Injured in Mishaps in Crowded Highways.

Twelve lives were lost in automobile accidents reported in and near the city yesterday, and many other persons were injured in the numerous crashes which marked the unusually heavy traffic on highways to shore and country resorts.

Three men were killed and one seriously injured when their automobile overturned after it had crashed into a police stanchion at Caton and Coney Island Avenues, Brooklyn, early yesterday. The dead are Edward Margola, 19 years old, of 3,101 Beverly Road; Robert Chambers, 27, of 717 Avenue C, and an unidentified man believed by the police to have been discharged recently from the U. S. S. Wyoming.

Joseph Leonard, 27 years old, of 236 East Twenty-eighth Street, was taken to the Coney Island Hospital suffering from a possible fracture of the skull. He was arrested on a technical charge of homicide. Chambers and Leonard were joint proprietors of a taxicab service at Beverly Road and Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Joseph Glassmeyer of 91 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, was fatally injured last night when the automobile in which she was riding collided with an automobile operated by Edward A. Thompson, a Jersey City policeman, at Newark Avenue and Cole Street, Jersey City. Thompson was slightly injured. Mrs. Glassmeyer died at the City Hospital.

Madaline Jesche, 11-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jesche of 381 Charlotte Place, Ridgewood, Queens, was killed and her parents were injured in a colision between two automobiles at De Kalb and Washington Avenues, Brooklyn. Vincent Lynch of the Ridgewood address, driver of the car in which the Jesches were riding, and Vincent Kucvelwicz of 146 Java Street, Brooklyn, driver of the other car, were held on technical charges of homicide.

John Travers, 65 years old, of 148 Mallory Avenue, Jersey City, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile as he was crossing the street near his home. He died in the Jersey City Hospital. James Logan, 18 years old, of 396 Union Street, Jersey City, is being held on a technical charge of manslaughter as the driver of the machine.

MANDATES COMMISSION ASKS PALESTINE ACTION

Observations Adopted Demand an Energetic Execution of All Obligations.

GENEVA, June 22 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The Mandates Commission of the League of Nations concluded yesterday its Palestine session, unanimously adopting the observations, without important changes, of the draft submitted by the Editorial Commission.

The observations deal with the Palestine disturbances of last Summer, the annual report and the various petitions, whereby the attitude of the British Government during the disturbances is criticized. They also demand the energetic execution of all obligations under the Palestine mandate.

The observations will be published after the minutes of the Palestine session are published and after the observations are submitted to the British Government and possibly also to the Council of the League of Nations. The publication can therefore be expected by the end of July for the consideration of the Council at its September session. The fact that the observations were unanimously adopted may mean that the Zionist friends made concessions to the less friendly members of the Mandates Commission, and it is not believed likely that the Mandates Commission exercised strong pressure upon the British Government in its observations.

A Full Hour faster to St. Louis

The only two 23-hour trains to the Southwestern Gateway

FOR years the Pennsylvania Railroad has provided the fastest service from New York to St. Louis. This it has been able to do easily and smoothly, for the route of Pennsylvania trains is 100 miles shorter than that of other trains of comparable schedule, and now the running time of The American and the Spirit of St. Louis has been cut another hour.

This valuable extra hour is important. And important, too, are the luxurious equipment of The American and the Spirit of St. Louis, their superb service and excellent food.

And when you consider that these two famous 23-hour flyers both travel the cool route to the West through the wooded valleys of the Appalachians, it is easy to understand their overwhelming popularity.

This same luxurious service is also furnished by three 20-hour flyers daily to Chicago.

MORROW MEETS LEADERS TODAY

CONVENTION ON TOMORROW

Proposal to Scrap Direct Primary Is Expected to Precipitate a Controversy.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 22.—As a forerunner to the Republican State Convention, which will be held here on Tuesday, for the adoption of a party platform, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, candidate for United States Senator, is scheduled to confer with party leaders tomorrow on the position to be taken on prohibition. Mr. Morrow, who has declared for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, has made it known that he does not wish to force his views on the convention. The Democratic State Convention for the adoption of a party platform also will be held here on Tuesday.

A suggestion for a possible way out of the difficulty confronting the Republican leaders has been made by Senator David Baird, who has written party chieftains urging adoption of a plank memorializing Congress to have a national referendum on prohibition.

Senator Baird, who was married recently, is on his honeymoon and will not attend the convention, but his views, as expressed to the party leaders, are expected to carry weight. Another suggestion of Senator Baird's is for a plank advocating repeal of the direct primary law, which has been in effect in New Jersey since the administration of Woodrow Wilson as Governor.

For a long time Senator Baird has held the opinion that the convention plan of nominating candidates, formerly in vogue, offered better opportunity of getting well qualified men to run for public office. This view is held by many other opponents of the direct primary system who contend that men of ability are usually reluctant to enter a primary contest, frequently involving large expenditures and subjection to personal or political attacks by opponents. Senator Baird was reported to feel that the victory of Ambassador Morrow, a man of the type who would have been likely to win a nomination from a convention, furnished opportunity for those opposed to the direct primary to start a movement to abolish it.

The suggested scrapping of the direct primary is expected to start a controversy in the convention. If the Resolutions Committee should propose a plank based on Senator Baird's proposal, the direct primary advocates will oppose it strongly, it was said. Those opposed to the suggestion will point to Mr. Morrow's victory as a vindication of the direct primary system and a triumph for the discernment of the voters when offered a candidate of the attainments of Mr. Morrow.

Other suggestions for platform planks make by Senator Baird include approval of the proposed $100,000,000 bond issue referendum, opposition to the establishment of a director of personnel as advocated by the National Institute of Public Administration, and appointment of a legislative committee headed by the Governor to consider recommendations for governmental reform made by the Abell legislative committee.

Mr. Baird has further suggested that the convention should go on record as favoring "the fullest investigation of any member of the State Senate who has conducted himself in a manner unbecoming a member and his expulsion if the same is proved." Mr. Baird also calls for remedying the "evils that exist in the office of the superintendent of elections in Jersey City," but his letter does not specify the evils.

CLIMBERS FOUGHT JONSONG BLIZZARD

By FRANK S. SMYTHE.

the glacier was accomplished without accident or any dropping of loads. Camp No. 4 was established high up on the mountain below the ice wall, which only partly sheltered us from the usual gale which beat on the camp all night.

Once again the wind dropped with the advent of the sun next morning and we were all off, each European climbing with his own servant, all of whom were experienced men. On the mountain, however, we were greeted with sudden blasts of wind which drove before them a torrent of snow.

At times it was impossible to advance against the wind and we crouched low down before its bitter fury. The couloir was blown icy and steps were necessary, myself leading. Cutting at 22,000 feet was strenuous work, and after a few minutes' halt it was necessary to puff and blow. Long stretches of broken rocks led up to the main northwest ridge. Here the wind was almost paralyzing at times.

My servant, now comparatively old and worn after severe work previously on Everest and Kanchenjunga—he had been Irvine's servant on Everest and had reached Camp No. 5 there—was forced to retire, leaving me to carry my own knapsack with photographic apparatus, while Wieland's servant turned back with his master's sack, thereby depriving him of many essentials. Kurz's servant and Professor Dyhrenfurth's both behaved magnificently throughout, climbing as well as Alpine guides.

The rocks of the ridge were unstable, tottering masses and the greatest care was necessary in negotiating the traverses below them. As we ascended, all the peaks within view save Everest and Makalu gradually sank below. Any pleasure in climbing or in the view was neutralized by the effort of each upward step in the face of an abominable wind that ever sought us out.

At last the seemingly interminable rocks ended and Kurz and I, who were ahead, found ourselves on a long slope, stretching up almost to the summit. Although easy technically, it was trying work, for while the rocks would delight the heart of a road mender, they rested on a frozen substratum and slipped back at every step. A few steps, then a prolonged bout of panting, then another few steps, was the method of progression.

The excitement increased; the peak was ours. Kurz was ahead. He climbed a short step up a little snow slope. An instant later came a faint triumphant shout. I followed with Wieland not far behind. A few hard upward steps and my vision topped the ridge to be confronted by Kanchenjunga, flanked by Jannu.

An instant later we were shaking hands with Kurz. The wind had dropped considerably but what there was shortened a stay that will live in my memory. A torn, savage mountain world surrounded us. Our gaze passed at a glance over inconceivable distances, rested on mountains and glaciers unknown to man, seeking languidly the infinitude of vast horizons, striving to find an escape from a nearer and unvarying world of rock, snow and ice.

The day was wonderfully clear. Perhaps 200 miles away over the brown Tibetan plains to the northeast rose a range of huge snowy peaks in the direction of Chinese Turkestan. At this distance they seemed to rival Everest. Were they the peaks discovered by General Pereira and said by him and others to be as great as Everest?

To the southeast the whole country was covered by the cloudy pall of a monsoon, above which the summits and peaks rose like an archipeligo. Kanchenjunga was smothered in new snow and from this distance its northern facets looked more unassailable than ever.

Our extremities were numbing ominously before we reluctantly turned to descend. Downhill was easy work. Wieland and I rattled over the rocks at almost an Alpine pace, meeting Professor Dyhrenfurth and his servant ascending.

Evening saw us once more in camp. Nightfall was ushered in by an increase in the wind, and we waited anxiously for Professor Dyhrenfurth. He arrived about 9 o'clock, very tired. His has been the greatest effort of the expedition, for he is 44 years old. His geological enthusiasm had taken him to the other lower summit of the peak, as the mountain is extremely interesting geologically, consisting of Everest limestone bedded on Kanchenjunga granite.

LEADER OF MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS.

Professor G. O. Dyhrenfurth, Head of the Expedition Which Ascended Jonsong Peak, the Highest Mountain Ever Conquered by Man.

He said the way down had been made very difficult by the furious winds raising a blizzard of snow so thick as to obscure the moonlight on which he relied and by intense cold, but he luckily escaped frostbite. The following day we descended to camp No. 1 and the day after to the base camp.

Today Frau Dyhrenfurth, Richter, Duvanel, Wood Johnson and I left the base camp for Darjeeling. The rest will follow in a few days, Professor Dyhrenfurth remaining for geological observations, Hoerlin, Schneider and Wieland for climbing and Kurz for topographical work. All are in good health but I have lost 14 pounds in weight.

The expedition which conquered Jonsong Peak after being blocked from Kanchenjunga by avalanches, is made up of climbers of five nations. Professor G. O. Dyhrenfurth, his wife, Frau Dyhrenfurth, and H. Hoerlin, Ulrich Wieland and Dr. H. Richter are from Germany; Marcel Kurz and H. Duvanel from Switzerland, E. Schneider from Austria, Frank S. MORROW SUPPORTERS PLAN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

Thomson Says His Election Is "a Foregone Conclusion, but We Will Take No Chances."

Although Republican leaders in New Jersey feel no doubt of the election of Dwight W. Morrow to the Senate next November, they plan an active campaign for him in the Fall after his return from Mexico, it was said yesterday.

Mr. Morrow, who will attend the Republican State Convention at Trenton tomorrow, is scheduled to leave for Mexico the latter part of the week, after conferences with President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson in Washington. He will be gone about two months.

"I haven't been in contact with the Ambassador since Friday," said former Mayor Douglas G. Thompson of Hackensack, who was Mr. Morrow's campaign manager, "for I think he ought to get a real rest after so hard a campaign before his departure for Mexico. In my opinion he has done the hardest part of his job in winning the nomination, for now that the people of New Jersey have become aroused, I think his election is a foregone conclusion. But we will take no chances, and Mr. Morrow will go everywhere in the State and at any time he is wanted."

AROSEMENA TWINS HERE.

Daughters of President of Panama Arrive to Enter Convent.

The Misses Ines and Lina Arosemena, twin daughters of Florencio Armovio Arosemena, President of the Republic of Panama, arrived here yesterday morning on the United Fruit liner Calamares. They were met by their brother, Bey Mario Arosemena, and Enoc Adames, Consul General for Panama. The young women will enter St. Elizabeth's Convent in New Jersey, where they will remain for three years.

Their two older sisters, the Misses Yola and Selma Arosemena, were graduated from St. Elizabeth's several years ago. Bey Mario Arosemena, their brother, has lived in this country for the past five years. On July 1 he will start the four-year course at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Pride Impels the Finest Quality

IN 1646 the shoemakers of Boston, provoked by "much bad work produced by their craft," petitioned "Ye Governor of Ye Bay Colonie" that "all boots might be alike made well." So began America's pride in Craftsmanship.

Pride in the production of the finest Quality still lives. It is the spirit upon which in 1874 at Manchester, New Hampshire, Roger G. Sullivan founded 7-20-4—now the largest strictly hand-made cigar industry in the World.

Quality workmanship and the finest tobaccos have been traditional with 7-20-4 since its beginning. It is the same spirit today, after fifty-six years of public confidence—which refuses to lower its standard of manufacture at the sacrifice of the finest Cigar Quality.

CAPITAL EXPORT CUT A FACTOR IN SLUMP

GOLD INFLOW INCREASED

Effect Was to Hurt Purchasing Power of Our Customers Abroad, Secretary Reports.

$1,666,000,000 TURNOVER

Our $7,500,000,000 Debts to Foreigners Among Elements of International Payments.

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—American financial developments of the past eighteen months or more, resulting in a tremendous decrease in capital export and an increase in gold imports, were held "in part responsible" for the worldwide business depression by Secretary Lamont today.

In a foreword to the annual analysis of the "Balance of International Payments" of the country for 1929, Mr. Lamont declared that the most important event "in our foreign dealings during 1929 was the reduction of $561,000,000 in our net capital export."

William L. Cooper, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, in an introduction to the report, which was prepared by Dr. Ray Hall, chief of the Finance and Investment Division, said that the international turnover last year was about $1,666,000,000.

Mr. Lamont's foreword read:

"Changes in our foreign trade in commodities during 1929 were not very significant as regards aggregate values for the year as a whole. The excess of exports declined by $196,000,000 from the extremely high figure for 1928. In terms of quantity, both exports and imports made new high records for all time. In terms of value, merchandise exports increased by $113,000,000. Merchandise imports increased considerably more, by $309,000,000, a movement which may reflect the unusual excess of the yield of foreign investments over the net export of capital.

"The most interesting developments in the cash dealings of the United States with foreigners in 1929 had to do with the invisible items. The big current invisibles are getting bigger. American tourist expenditures abroad established a new high record, as did the yield of investments, both the credit item and the debit item.

"The annual yield of American investments abroad is now estimated at only slightly less than a billion; and the yield of foreign investments in the United States seems to have risen in 1929 to something like $414,000,000, partly due to the high interest rates of the year on the three billions of foreign short-term funds deposited or 'put out' in our market.

"The private debts of United States citizens to foreigners, approximately $7,500,000,000, are now greater than at any other time in American history. That means, of course, that in absolute amount we are now the greatest debtor nation (on private account) in the world's history, although on the net balance we are one of the most important creditor nations. The increase of foreign funds in the United States during 1929 was apparently slightly above $400,000,000.

"One looks forward to the possibility of increases of the remainder in the years to come, for foreigners can always find among American stocks and bonds a great many unexcelled for security and a great many others unexcelled in their prospects for capital appreciation. Each year sees a growth in the number of them listed on foreign Stock Exchanges. Foreign trading on American Stock Exchanges, purchases and sales, during the year totaled well over $4,000,000.

Reduction in Capital Export.

"The most important event in our foreign dealings during 1929 was the reduction of $561,000,000 in our net capital export. For the third time in seven years the year's fluctuation in the United States net export of capital was above half a billion dollars. The change of $550,000,000 in 1924 and thart of $514,000,000 in 1927 were both increases, and the effect was, of course, very different from the effect of the decrease of 1929.

"That decrease was no doubt in part responsible for some of the fiscal and foreign-exchange difficulties of certain foreign nations, for some of the world-wide recession of business and for some of the reduction in our merchandise exports during the latter part of the year and early in 1930; it may also have contributed to the world decline in commodity prices.

"The gold inflow during the fifteen months ended with last October was one major result of this marked decline in our capital exports. The net inflow of gold during that period was $307,000,000, equal to about 3 per cent of the total gold stock of the world. Delivered in this country, after it had reduced the credit bases and purchasing power of the outside world, the gold apparently served no useful purpose; it merely enhanced our already large stock of 'free gold.' Certainly any practicable means to lessen the fluctuations in the capital exports of our nation should receive earnest attention.

"Despite the diligence of the department staff in preparing these annual surveys, the resulting picture shows only a general perspective. It is well to repeat the compiler's warning that some of the results are expressed in precise figures 'partly for identification.' Range estimates—maximum and minimum—would be preferred, were they less clumsy to handle. One can best appreciate the magnitudes involved by comparing them one with another. Thus, we find that in 1929 the trade balance could have been financed by the gross expenditures of American tourists abroad; that the net yield of investments could have been financed by our underwriting of new foreign securities; that the war-debt payments could have been financed by immigrant remittances, or by our payments for ocean freights; and so on.

"It is no longer necessary to justify these investigations of our international economy. They have gone far toward developing what is really a new branch of economic science. If the leading countries of the world, including the United States, had all begun similarly painstaking statements twenty years ago, some of the controversies on international finance in late years might never have arisen."

In his analysis of foreign investments in this country Dr. Hall makes the statement:

"That American prosperity will continue for many years, with no very protracted setbacks, is seemingly one of the few predictable things. The resulting increased yield on existing foreign investments here is an important element in any consideration of our future balances of payments."

Private long-term American investments abroad were estimated by Dr. Hall at from $13,266,000,000 to $15,366,000,000. They were distributed as follows:

Areas	Millions of Dollars.
Latin America	5,051 to 5,807
Europe	3,970 to 4,564
Canada and Newfoundland	3,155 to 3,627
Asia, Australia and rest of world	1,190 to 1,368

The Finance and Investment Division about a year ago began a world-wide census of American "direct investments" abroad, one of the blind spots in this economic field. Figures have been obtained from more than 2,000 American corporations as to their foreign branch plants, mineral resources and plantations. The whole investigation, Dr. Hall said, will be available for next year's survey.

Dr. Hall observed that it is believed that most private estimates of the yield of our foreign investments have been too high. He added that hearing a great deal about the "high dividends of foreign bonds, one is likely to suppose that their typical interest rate is 7 or 7½ per cent. Indeed, 7 per cent is, in one sense, the 'typical' interest rate on foreign securities publicly offered here, for, in several recent years, Americans have underwritten more 7s than securities of any other rate.

"On the other hand, during the past six years, Americans have underwritten nearly $2,000,000,000 of foreign bonds paying 5 per cent or less, including about $500,000,000 of 4s (mostly Canadian)."

Dr. Hall's estimate for the total yield in 1929 of American investments abroad was $876,000,000.

No census of foreign long-term investments has ever been taken and estimates vary widely. England is the principal investor in the United States with something like $1,560,000,000, followed by Canada with about $925,000,000.

Netherlands, Germany and France follow with about $400,000,000 each. Much of Germany's holdings is still in charge of the Alien Property Custodian. The estimate of American holdings by thirty-one foreign countries for which figures are available was $4,513,000,000 as of Dec. 31, 1929. Countries not entered would raise the total to probably $4,700,000,000.

"If capitalized at 5½ per cent on the average," Dr. Hall continued, "the yield of the estimated principal was about $259,000,000; this low rate is suggested because of the marked inflation in American stock prices until late in 1929. It should also be borne in mind that much of the yield of these securities in recent years has been in the form of stock dividends. This sum is assumed to be net after deducting income tax payments into the United States Treasury by non-resident aliens.

"During 1928, a period of low yields, foreigners seem to have increased their investments here by about $450,000,000. If the average yield was only 4 per cent the 1929 figure in the balance of payments would be $18,000,000 above the 1928 figure. This would be $270,000,000.

"An examination of the American industrial stocks listed on stock markets abroad suggests that foreigners are heavy holders of the so-called blue-chip stocks, whose rise has been so spectacular in the past five years."

During 1929 foreigners sold to Americans about $1,314,000,000 of American securities. The stock transfer tax on this amounted to about $400,000. Income to brokers in their foreign accounts is estimated at $7,000,000 for 1929.

Movement of Paper Currency.

The report has a chapter devoted to the movement of American paper currency, which was regarded as a capital item. After the armistice there was a considerable investment in United States currency by residents of countries with rapidly depreciating exchange. United States paper money in Cuba at the end of 1929 was about $109,000,000.

Dr. Hall said that Russia has become a "sink" for American paper currency. In the last three years Russia has received $12,000,000 of dollar currency shipments and returned less than $230,000.

The merchandise balance was analyzed. Exports for 1929 were $5,141,000,000 and imports $4,440,124,000.

Dr. Hall estimated that American tourists abroad in 1929 spent $745,000,000, and that foreigners spent $180,000,000 in the United States. Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Mexico and the United Kingdom were most widely visited by Americans. It was estimated that Americans spent $289,000,000 in Canada last year and that 2,076,155 motor cars entered the Dominion.

About 433,734 tourists departed from American seaports to foreign countries last year, including 282,702 to Europe and the Levant, 125,532 to West Indies and Central America, 10,000 to Canada and 3,500 to Africa. About 208,0000 persons motored to Canada and 80,000 went by rail during the year.

International Payments of the United States

The following table shows revised estimates of the balances of international payments of the United States for the calendar years 1923 to 1928, inclusive, compared with the figures for 1929, which are subject to revision. The plus signs in this table indicate balances on the credit side of the account and the minus signs balances on the debit side. The figures are given in millions of dollars.

‡ Each of these net discrepancies was two and one-half times as large in the preliminary revision. Thus there was a change from −119 in 1926 to +118 in the next year—a total range of error of 237. Such a range of error being hardly admissible in the "current" items, it was presumed that most of the original net discrepancies, in those two years at least, resulted from errors in the four "capital" items known to be least reliable. Therefore, the revised estimates of those four items were all altered according to uniform ratios which would eliminate 60 per cent of each year's preliminary net discrepancy. This is a partial acceptance of the British method of deriving capital movement estimates from estimates of the current items.

HOUSE BOMBED, 11 UNHURT

One of Braintree (Mass.) Occupants Blames Enemy, but Hides Identity.

BRAINTREE, Mass., June 22 (AP).—The explosion early today of what the police believe was a bomb damaged a house in which eleven persons were sleeping. No one was injured, although the blast twisted the foundation of the frame structure, shattering the clapboards on one side, blew out six windows and damaged a garage about twenty feet away.

Tony Barrosso, his wife and six children occupy the ground floor and James Correnti, his wife and baby live in the upper story. Barrosso believes an enemy whose name he did not reveal bombed his home. Mrs. Molly Venuto, a neighbor, said she was awakened by the concussion and saw a man fleeing down the road.

All the sleeping rooms were on the side opposite that damaged.

BRIDE KILLS HERSELF.

Dies at Syracuse Two Months After Long Trip to Wed.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 22 (AP).—Mrs. Roberta Fawn McKinney, 23, brown-haired bride of Edward B. McKinney, who traveled from her Kansas City, Mo., home to a romantic marriage in Syracuse on April 13, ended her life by poisoning today in a hotel room here.

She swallowed a large quantity of poison while her husband was in the hotel dining room and died without a written or spoken farewell.

McKinney told investigators he was unable to explain her act and said he know of nothing that had happened to cause his wife to become despondent. Tonight he set out with the body for Kansas City, after Coroner William R. Winne had returned a verdict of suicide.

McKinney, a sales representative for an art publishing firm of Kansas City, was assigned to up-State New York, with headquarters in Syracuse, a few months ago.

Police Get No Clue to Briarcliff Realty Man—Wife Leaves Village.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N. Y., June 22.—Upset by the myterious disappearance of her husband, Fletcher Tufts, realty broker and fire company official, last Monday when he boarded a train for New York, Mrs. Myrtle A. Tufts today was reported to have left the village for a visit.

No word has been received from Mr. Tufts. The police said today that their investigations showed that Mr. Tufts boarded a New York Central train at Pleasantville last Monday, but was not seen later on the train by friends with whom he was accustomed to ride, nor was he seen that day in New York at places he had intended to visit. The police have discovered no motive to prompt him to vanish of his own free will.

URGE SCHOOLING IN JEWISH CULTURE

Speakers at Jewish Education Council Ask Building Up of Background in Children.

SURVEYS OF CITIES GIVEN

Promotion of Educational Plan Is Held Now to Be Responsibility of Whole Communities.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., June 22.—The building up of Jewish background in growing Jewish generations is of concern to all Jewish communities, speakers pointed out at the opening session of the annual conference of the National Council for Jewish Education held at the Central Jewish Institute camps here today. Delegates, experts in Jewish education and directors of important institutions in various cities of the country were in attendance.

The first session was given over to reports on studies and research on Jewish educational problems in a number of cities. Dr. Alexander M. Dushkin of Chicago presided.

Dr. Dushkin gave his survey on Omaha; Louis Hurwich, director of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Boston, dealt with Buffalo and Montreal; Dr. Leo L. Honor, director of the College of Jewish Studies of Chicago, discussed Boston, and Ben Rosen, director of the Associated Talmud Torahs of Philadelphia, reported on Detroit and other cities.

Indifference Is Reported.

It was the consensus of opinion of these reports that the responsibility for promoting the educational program is becoming a community responsibility rather than the function of individual synagogues or special groups within the community. This factor, the speakers said, has resulted not alone in obtaining greater funds for the development of this work, but has made communities more "education minded" and has tended to break down the great indifference to Jewish education.

One of the greatest drawbacks to the development of Jewish education in this country, it was declared, was the indifference of parents toward having their children attend Jewish schools. This is particularly devastating in its effect in breaking up the Jewish home in America, it was said.

From 30 per cent to 60 per cent of the Jewish children in the communities mentioned are receiving a Jewish education.

The second session was devoted to reports on "Jewish history inquiry," with A. P. Schoolman, executive director of the Central Jewish Institute and Camps, presiding.

Children Tested on History.

Dr. Julius B. Maller submitted a report on "testing the knowledge of Jewish history," based on tests given to 5,000 Jewish children in Jewish schools in New York, Cincinnati, Cleveland and other large cities throughout the United States. On the whole the children, according to Dr. Maller, seemed to be better able to repeat facts than to interpret events in Jewish history.

Dr. Emanuel Gamoran of Cincinnati, speaking on "Recent Tendencies in the Teaching of History," said that one of the most important problems confronting those who are interested in the teaching of Jewish history is that of finding out what ought to be taught.

Rabbi Jacob B. Pollak, secretary of the National Council for Jewish Education, reporting on educational contributions made by members of the council and bureaus with which members of the council are connected, set forth a great variety of educational activities in which members have been engaged.

In the evening the delegates attended an exhibition of motion pictures of Jewish children in Palestine and Russia taken by Israel S. Chipkin last year.

KILLED IN AIRPLANE RACE.

Craft Going 120 Miles an Hour Nose-Dives at Wichita Air Show.

WICHITA, Kan., June 22 (AP).—Speeding at 120 miles an hour in a race with three other planes in an air show at Braley Airport here today, Ray Field, 35-year-old Wichita pilot, plunged to his death when his craft suddenly nose-dived from an altitude of 400 feet, too low for him to right it or jump with his parachute.

More than 3,000 persons saw the fatal crash, which came as Field was banking his plane in a turn near the finish of the race.

The plane in which Field met his death was designed and constructed entirely by himself and had only been aloft three times before he entered it in today's game.

Miss Lazarus, a salesgirl in a millinery shop, found the ring and turned it in at the cashier's office. Mrs. Lemoult gave Miss Lazarus a bouquet and a $50 bill.

False Alarm Creates Disorder at New Jersey State Home.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 22.—Disorder was caused this afternoon when the brake lining of an automobile ignited on Woodside Avenue in front of the State Home for Girls. Some of the inmates saw the flames and shouted "fire".

Their cries were heard by forty Negro incorrigible girls who were locked up in a cottage at the school. They began to break windows and smash doors to get free until they were quieted by the school authorities.

TO LAY CORNERSTONE AT WIDENER MEMORIAL

Special to The New York Times.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., June 22.—The cornerstone of a new science building at the Hill School, to be a memorial to Harry Elkins Widener, will be laid here tomorrow by his mother, Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice.

Mrs. Rice, formerly Mrs. George B. Widener, was saved when her husband, head of the Philadelphia traction system, and her son, Harry Elkins Widener, were lost in the sinking of the Titanic.

The memorial at the Hill School, from which Harry Elkins Widener was graduated in 1903, is to cost $300,000 and is the gift of Dr. and Mrs. Rice. It represents the most generous single donation ever made to the school, according to the headmaster, Dr. James I. Wendell.

It provides not only the most modern establishment for the teaching of science preparatory to college, but also special laboratories for gifted students, and is to be used as a hobby hall after school hours. According to the headmaster, students may dabble at their pleasure in anything—motion-picture photography, radio, aerodynamics, metal turning or bird stuffing. Such schoolboy hobbies are no longer regarded as waste of time, but as methods of development, and such a hobby hall has long been the dream of educators.

The address at the laying of the cornerstone tomorrow is to be made by Dr. John H. Finley. The baccalaureate sermon was delivered today at the Hill School by Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, president of Union Theological Seminary.

CHURCH WORKERS GATHER AT TORONTO

Five Thousand Delegates Are Expected at Religious Education Convention.

TO UNVEIL RAIKES STATUE

Sesquicentennial of the Launching of the Sunday School Movement Will Be Marked.

TORONTO, Ont., June 22 (Canadian Press).—Hundreds of church workers from all parts of the continent are arriving in this city for the international convention of religious education which opens tomorrow. Five thousand delegates are expected to attend.

This meeting of the International Religious Education Association marks the sesquicentennial of the Sunday school movement, which was launched by Robert Raikes, English philanthropist, in Gloucester, England. Next Saturday his statue in Queen's Park will be unveiled by a boy and a girl representing the oldest Sunday schools in the United States and Canada, that of Christ Church, Savannah, Ga., and that of St. Paul's Church, Halifax, N. S. This memorial, an exact replica of one standing on the Thames Embankment at London, England, is the gift of the city of Toronto and J. L. Kraft, American manufacturer.

Among the outstanding speakers who will address the convention are Canon C. E. Raven of Liverpool, chaplain to the King; Dr. H. J. Cody of this city, and the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Pohling, prominent editor and prohibitionist, of New York. Russell H. Colgate, Chicago business man, will preside over the meetings. A devotional service in Metropolitan Church next Sunday morning will be conducted by the Rev. C. W. Gordon of Winnipeg, better known as "Ralph Connor," the novelist.

While adult workers discuss the problems of the Sunday school, a conference organized and planned entirely by young people under 23 years of age will meet in Trinity United Church. A gathering of 200 leaders will be succeeded on Thursday by an influx of 2,000 delegates from all types of organizations, including camp workers, members of the Canadian Boys' Parliaments and American Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. representatives.

BATHING BEAUTIES IN ROW.

Charges Made That Miami Winners Were Illegally Entered.

MIAMI, Fla., June 22 (AP).—Formal investigation of charges that prize winners of the Miami bathing beauty contest held March 11 were illegally entered will start tomorrow. F. A. Trice, president of the promoting association declines to comment on a suit for $10,000 filed yesterday against the city of Miami by the Seaboard Airline Railway Company to recover fares for entrants in the contest. The suit disclosed that several of them did not travel from the States they represented.

R. B. Brossier of Orlando, Fla., said he would appear before the investigators with Miss Margaret Ekdahl of Tampa who, as "Miss Florida," received third prize, and present affidavits that Miss Janet Eastment, representing Texas, was ineligible to enter the contest or to receive first prize as "Miss America" because she was married. He will also present papers asserting that Miss Alberta McKellop, second prize winner, was not selected as "Miss California."

The railroad alleges that while six of the entrants came from Shamokin, Pa., they represented New Jersey, North Carolina, New York, Montana, Louisiana and Pennsylvania; that "Miss California" came from McAlester, Okla.; "Miss Mississippi" from Wichita, Kan.; "Miss Nevada" from Dallas, Texas; "Miss Vermont" from Bangor, Me., and "Miss District of Columbia" from Wheeling, W. Va.

EX-PUGILIST WOUNDED.

John Mahoney, Once Member of Lovett Gang, Shot in Brooklyn.

John (Happy) Mahoney, 32 years old, a former pugilist and according to the police a member of the Brooklyn waterfront gang once headed by Bill Lovett, was shot and slightly wounded in the abdomen last night in the poolroom which he and his brother Thomas run at 132 Bridge Street, Brooklyn.

Mahoney was taken to the Cumberland Hospital, where he was questioned by Detective William Anderson of the Poplar Street station. He told the detective that he would "take care of this myself," but when pressed more closely he said that a stranger had walked in and shot him without reason. Detective Anderson was skeptical of the latter statement.

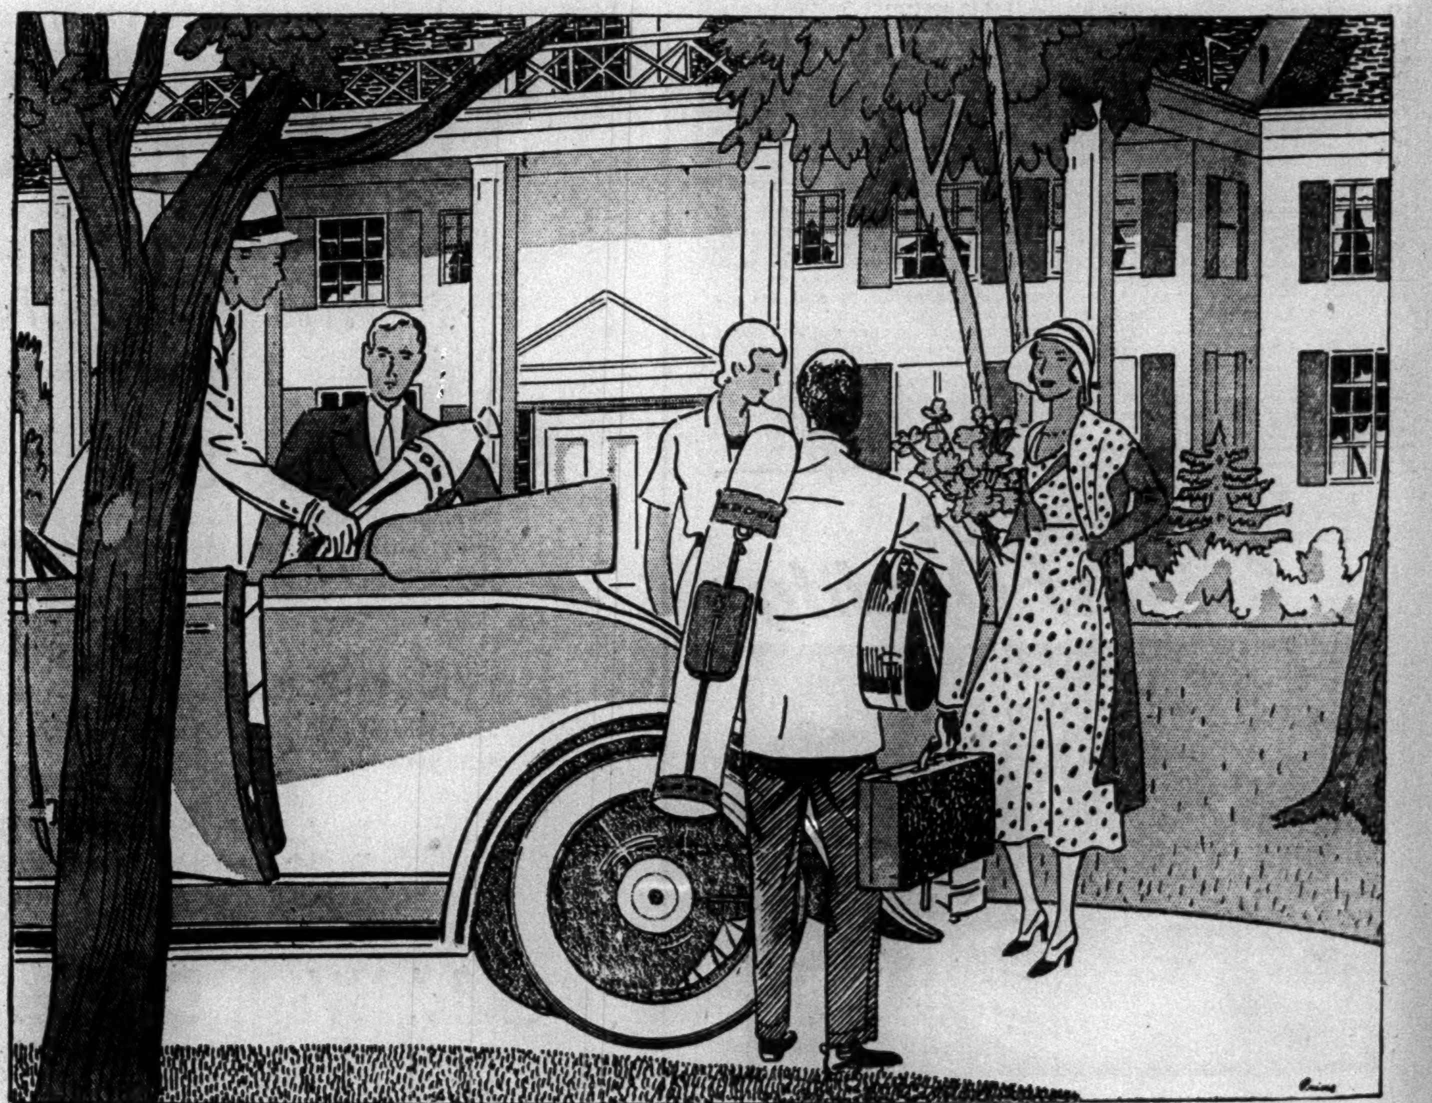
THAT GREAT AMERICAN INSTITUTION

THE WEEK-END



How do you like your Friday to Monday?

Planned in advance, or on the spur of the moment? A visit to friends and relatives in the suburbs—or a drive to an out-of-town hotel? Golf from sun-up to sun-down or a seat in a boat, hopefully waiting for a nibble? Bridge on a wide veranda, or fancy foot work on a fast clay court?

Whatever your tastes—there's one sure way of getting the most out of the great American week-end—by letting the telephone help you. By telephone you can tell your hosts what time you will arrive, make hotel reservations, gather in golf and bridge partners, secure boat or train accommodations.

Best of all it costs so little to telephone, even to places a good ways off. Points within 50 miles can be reached for 45 cents or less. Farther away, proportionately low in cost.

You'll always have a better time on your week-end—if you'll let the telephone help you.

Teachers' Union Asks Changes in Direction and Conduct of Continuation Classes.

SCORES LACK OF PROGRAM

Tells Board of Education Fixed Policy, Specialized Study and Short Hours Are Needed.

Four recommendations for improvement of the organization and administration of continuation schools are made by the Teachers Union in a survey report on the question addressed yesterday by Henry R. Linville, president of the union, to George J. Ryan, president of the Board of Education.

In presenting the report on the survey, covering the year 1929, Mr. Linville told Dr. Ryan that the committee of the Teachers Union responsible for the study "feels that in New York City the continuation school has been the stepchild of the school system, so that its development has been seriously hampered."

"Moreover," he wrote, "the development which has taken place follows in the footsteps of the traditional schools, from which the teaching staff was necessarily recruited. Except in the most general way, the philosophy of 'continuation' has usually been overlooked. Furthermore, not enough thought has been given to that restless, emotional, impressionable, curious being called the adolescent. Progressive communities are beginning to give special consideration to the adolescent in the junior and senior high schools, but the continuation school has as yet given little thought to this aspect of its task."

Flexible Programs Recommended.

Following are the recommendations made in the report:

"That an organization plan be established for general continuation schools similar to existing plans for elementary, high and technical schools. Such plan does not exist at present, although continuation schools are classed as high schools for salary schedule purposes. The Central Trade Continuation Schools, which are developed with the cooperation of employers and unions, meet more adequately the requirements of industrial education than do the general continuation schools which do not enjoy this close cooperation. A guiding principle, flexibly applied, is needed to insure equal opportunity to general continuation school pupils for tryout in the predominating trades of Greater New York.

"That the programs and classes in continuation schools continue to be as flexible as possible, allowing ample opportunity for satisfactory adjustment to the needs of individual pupils and for the full expression and contribution of individual teachers.

"That qualifications for heads of departments and administrative assistants to principals in continuation schools be determined and published, examinations held and an eligible list established. At present there are no recognized heads of departments, and assistants are regular classroom teachers merely chosen by individual principals. There seem to be no guiding regulations by which these assistants are chosen, nor does there seem to be a quota basis. Schools have from one to four assistants who are teachers without classes and this number does not seem to depend on the size of the staff. Thus with the exception of the principal there is no recognized responsible direction of the activities of the school, and politics and favoritism may become factors.

Wisdom of Sixth Hour Doubted.

"That the director of continuation schools make a survey of the efficacy of the sixth hour, which was added to the continuation school day in September, 1929, for counseling, in addition to the regular follow-up. From the point of view of the Teachers Union, an hour added to a day of four solid hours of teaching without a rest period must perforce undermine the vitality of teachers. This lowered vitality is not conducive to effective follow-up of the pupil in industry and in the home, a most important part of the continuation school program. It seems to the Teachers Union that four hours of teaching, plus one hour of counseling, does not leave much energy for intelligent and energetic follow-up work. The union suggests that a questionnaire be submitted to every teacher in the continuation school system and the results carefully considered by the Board of Education."

In submitting the report to the Board of Education Mr. Linville wrote:

"The union is aware that the situation has been somewhat improved recently. One continuation school has been built and others are being planned. A special allotment of funds has been made for better equipment and necessary alterations. The underlying point of view of the survey, however, still obtains."

DR. MOTT FINDS WORLD OPEN TO CHRISTIANITY

He Tells Northfield Group Doors of Other Lands Are Now Wider Than Ever.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., June 22.—Never were the doors of entry into other lands so wide open to Christianity as at present, Dr. John R. Mott told the evangelism group of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, meeting here last week.

Having only recently returned from a trip around the world, where he surveyed world conditions under the auspices of the Council of World Missions, of which he is the chairman, Dr. Mott told of the spirit of inquiry which was creating conditions ripe for the message of Christ. Even the Mohammedan world is open to evangelization, he said.

Dr. Mott gave a most encouraging outline of conditions in other countries from the point of view of the Christian work. As an illustration he told of the resolve of Mr. Chang Sing-yee, speaking in behalf of the native church of China, that within five years the Christian Church of China was to be doubled, and this in the face of the cataclysmic conditions prevailing in China now.

In India, Dr. Mott said, Christianity is on the threshold of a most far-reaching influence. Gandhi, the outstanding figure in Asia today, a non-Christian, is looking to Christ as his source of strength and for guidance as to no other.

"I have never been so impressed before by the tide of inquiry that is sweeping over all countries," Dr. Mott said. "We in America think there is a flood of literature abroad, but we have nothing in comparison with other lands. Tokyo, for example, has miles of bookshops. The press is reaching millions today that never knew anything beyond the borders of their own little communities only a few years ago. All this means that the doors of opportunity for Christ are equally wide open. The barriers of age-old custom and prejudice against the foreigner are now down. Faith and expectation on the part of the Christian Church are all that is necessary for the evangelization of the world."

PLAN TO BEAUTIFY RIIS PARK REVIVED

APPROVED BY CIVIC BODIES

Queens Park Commission Prepares to Begin Work With Recent Allotment of $90,000.

The Pilat plan for the development of Jacob Riis Park is now in the hands of the Queens Park Commission, and is being studied by Anthony V. Grande, landscape architect of Queens, who will make the changes necessary for its modernization, it was learned yesterday from officials of the New York City Park Association.

The plan, which is the only one in existence for the development of this park, was drawn by Carl F. Pilat in 1916, when he was landscape engineer for New York City. The plan was submitted by him in a competition which was conducted by the Department of Parks of the Borough of Queens. The plan at the time was known as the Telawana Park Plan, and Mr. Pilat received first prize. The plan was not used, due to the fact that it would entail too great an expense, Mr. Pilat said.

Plans Receive Backing.

A tour of the Jacob Riis property, conducted recently by the New York City Park Association, aroused much interest in the project and the plan was heartily endorsed by several civic organizations of Brooklyn, Manhattan and Queens.

"There will be a number of changes necessary in the plan," Mr. Pilat declared. "When I drew it I expected most of the visitors to arrive by means of the ferry, but indications point to the fact that the automobile will be used as the means of transportation. The highways leading to the property are excellent. Much additional parking space must be provided in the plans—many times the space I allowed in 1916.

"The Board of Estimate recently has allotted $90,000 for the erection of bulkheads and comfort stations on the waterfront of this property. It is my opinion and that of the Park Association that no move should be made in the erection of these structures until the plan for the development of the park is approved. Much depends upon the proper location of bulkheads.

Would Preserve Shrubbery.

"I intend suggesting to the Queens Park Commissioner, Albert Benninger, that he propose to the planning committee that about fifteen acres of the park be set aside for the growth of natural shrubbery, such as bayberry, sea grass, beach plum and wild rose. All these are growing in great profusion among the dunes at present. In years to come all such natural growth will be lost, unless a portion of the park is set apart to cultivate it. Some little part of this 260 acres should be left in a natural state in order to allow people to see what the dunes looked like when they were occupied by the Indians.

"There is little doubt," Mr. Pilat concluded, "but what the project will go through. It would be a wonderful recreation centre for the three boroughs. It has been suggested that a clay or paper mache model of the park be made in three dimensions, to enable the lay public to understand just what it would mean and inspire them to a greater interest in the project."

BYRD AND HIS AIDES ON RADIO TONIGHT

Bernt Balchen and Paul Siple to Be Heard in Addition to Admiral on WABC Net.

STUDIO RECEPTION PLANNED

State's Tribute at Albany Is to Be Broadcast Tomorrow—Sir John Simon on Air Wednesday.

Members of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, including Rear Admiral Byrd, Bernt Balchen, airplane pilot who was at the controls during the flight over the South Pole, and Paul Siple, the Boy Scout who accompanied the expedition, will be heard tonight during the 9 o'clock broadcast over WABC's coast-to-coast network. This first detailed radio description of the expedition will be broadcast during the program of the Tidewater Oil Company, and at the special request of Rear Admiral Byrd will be dedicated to the school children of America.

A musical program as a background for the various addresses will be presented by Mayhew Lake's Band. A feature will be a piece composed by Mr. Lake for the occasion, entitled "Byrd Comes Home." Barbara Maurel, contralto, will be the soloist, and John B. Kennedy, who acted as master of ceremonies in Byrd's farewell broadcast of August, 1928, under Tidewater auspices, will again officiate at the microphone.

Part of the presentation will be a review of Rear Admiral Byrd's career and achievements. Friends of the leader have been invited to a reception to be given him at the studios during the radio program.

New York State's tribute to Rear Admiral Byrd is scheduled for broadcast tomorrow at 4:30 P. M., Eastern Daylight Time, over WEAF'S network from Albany. The program is to begin at the Albany Yacht Club pier, where Mayor John B. Thacher will meet Admiral Byrd and conduct him to the Capitol to receive Governor Roosevelt's greeting.

Sir John Simon, author of the report of the India Statutory Commission, is scheduled to be heard on Wednesday afternoon at 4:25 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Time, over the WEAF-WJZ networks, and WOR, as he speaks from London. His talk will cross the Atlantic Ocean on short waves. Sir John is expected to deal chiefly with the commission's recommendations regarding the Indian situation.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney is to make his official radio début on Thursday night at 10 o'clock over WJZ, at which time the local station will broadcast the graduation exercises of the Police College from Madison Square Garden. Mayor Walker is also to be heard. The Police Department Band will play.

Two programs from the Rotary International celebration in the Stadium at Chicago will be heard in New York over WJZ this week. The first will be at 10:30 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Time, on Wednesday night and the second at 1:30 P. M. on Thursday. Prince Kokugawa, delegate from Japan, will be heard in each presentation.

SUES FOR RADIO HEARING.

Florida Candidate Resents Being Told to Submit Speech for Approval

TAMPA, Fla., June 22 (AP).—The question of whether a radio station has the right to censor the material used by a customer during his broadcasting period has been raised in a suit filed in Federal court here.

Ben Fishback, candidate for State's Attorney at Orlando, brought suit against the Orlando Broadcasting Company, asking that the court force the radio company to allow him to make a speech without first having a transcript of the address submitted to the company's attorney for approval.

Fishback complained that in his campaign many charges were made against him by an opponent who spoke from the station; that there is no other station in the territory he can use to fight back, and that he will suffer loss if he is not allowed to reply.

He alleges that he applied to the broadcasting company for permission to make a talk Friday night and another tomorrow night, and that he paid for the privilege, but was informed Thursday that he could not use the station without first submitting a draft of his speech to the company's attorney for approval.

TAXI BOARD TO BEGIN DRAFTING REPORT

Walker Commission Hopes to Have Recommendations Ready Within Two or Three Weeks.

OWNER-DRIVERS A PROBLEM

Broad Street Association Appeals to 9,000 Individual Operators to Form Cooperative Group.

Mayor Walker's commission on taxicabs will soon begin to formulate its report and recommendations, it was learned yesterday, and hopes to have them ready for submission within two or three weeks.

Although the commission has given no inkling as to even tentative findings, it is known that its members have given serious consideration to the plan of placing the entire industry here upon a public utility control basis, involving limitation of the number of cabs and requiring certificates of public convenience and necessity.

In this connection the commission faced the problem of dealing with the 9,000 individual operators owning their cabs. It has studied carefully the cooperative plan under which the Checker Cab Corporation of Chicago has welded a group of owner-drivers into a profitable and responsible operating organization.

Some such organization may be formed here, it was indicated yesterday when the Broad Street Taxi Owners' Association announced that it was appealing to the 9,000 owner-drivers in New York to form an association patterned after the Chicago group. Under the plan one or two men could own a single cab, but no individual could own two or more cabs. The plan, like the Chicago scheme, calls for the issuance of stock to the men who would turn their cabs over to the corporation which would provide service, supplies and repairs at a minimum charge.

It is known that Mayor Walker's commission has investigated the Chicago scheme carefully, obtaining information in addition to that brought out at its public hearings. One objection to public utility control with a system of certificates of convenience and necessity was the cumbersome system needed in dealing with thousands of individual operators. Those members of the commission who sought some method of public utility control which would not react against the individual turned to the Chicago cooperative plan. If it is favored in the commission's report the recommendation will be accompanied by suggestions for such legislation as may be required to put the plan in operation.

Services Are Part of Sunday Program for Troops at Camp Smith.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, June 22.—A large attendance at a field mass of the 102d Medical Regiment, New York National Guard, and a reception by the 102d Engineers Regiment were features of the Sunday program today in Camp Smith, Peekskill, where 1,400 State troops are encamped.

The engineers, commanded by Colonel Frederic E. Humphreys, kept open house for 250 veterans of the regiment who came up from New York.

The field mass was conducted by the Rev. John F. White, chaplain of the medical regiment. Major Gen. William N. Haskell, commanding General of the guard, and members of his family were among those who attended.

Owing to a temporary vacancy in the office of Protestant chaplain no Protestant services were held today, but there will be on future Sundays. A Jewish service was conducted by Rabbi Aaron Israel of New York.

CONNECTICUT MOVES TO AID SHAD HATCHING

State Is Making Survey of River Conditions and Causes of Failure.

NEW HAVEN, June 22.—A scientific investigation of the waters of the Connecticut River is being made for the State Board of Fisheries and Game to determine whether the stream, north of Salmon River at East Haddam to the State border, is a suitable home for the young shad being produced at the State's hatcheries.

The survey will ascertain where the millions of fry may be distributed with reasonable hope of their finding a congenial habitat and abundance of the microscopic food upon which they depend in the early part of their lives.

Professor C. R. Hoover of Wesleyan University is directing the survey, assisted by other experts in aquatic biology. He is also continuing investigations started in the Spring of 1928 to determine the definite cause of the failure of shad eggs taken in the Farmington River to hatch.

The catch of shad has increased steadily since 1923, when hatchery activities were begun by the State. In 1929 the catch amounted to 91,597 shad, as compared to 13,350 in 1923. From early reports it is indicated that the 1930 catch may be the largest in a quarter of a century.

Mr. Williams is selecting his associates, and the committee, when formed, will join in the effort to complete the $50,000 fund needed for the proposed statue of Albert Gallatin, secretary of the Treasury from 1801 to 1814, to be erected at the base of the Treasury Building in Washington.

SEES STATE SHORT OF RURAL DOCTORS

Albany Medical College Survey Finds One-third at 60 Years, Predicts Scarcity by 1940.

Study Financed by Rockefeller Foundation Seeks to Remedy Danger to Large Areas.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 22.—Thirty-seven per cent of the physicians in active practice in rural Northeastern New York are 60 years of age or over, it is indicated by the first results of a year's survey of present and future medical needs in non-urban districts of eighteen counties made public today by the Albany Medical College.

The survey, which was designed to guide the college toward a solution of the national problem arising from the steady decrease in rural medical attendance as it applies to this section of the State, is the work of the institution's department of regional extension of medical education, recently established by a series of five annual grants totaling $100,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation.

The survey includes an analysis of individual community needs for medical attendance, the characteristics and methods making for success in rural practice, and the means by which the college may be of greater service in aiding physicians to meet the problems arising in country work.

The fact that more than one-third of the practicing physicians are 60 years of age or more would indicate that the large area covered by the survey faces a serious problem of replacement by 1940. The average age of all active physicians in the district is 53 years, the survey shows. According to a study of the rural doctor problem published several years ago by the General Education Board, the average age of the American physician at death is 62 years.

Eleven per cent of the physicians in the eighteen counties are inactive because of age, retirement or ill health, the college's survey also reveals.

The survey has involved personal interviews by staff members with physicians in more than 200 rural communities. Completion of an analysis of the data on hand is expected by the college authorities to shed a new light on the rural medical problem, the wide scope of which was attested to in 1927 when the National Grange, representing 800,000 farmers, petitioned the American Medical Association to help "avert a general breakdown in rural medical service."

GREENROOMERS GIVE 'REVEL'

George M. Cohan, in Irish Dance, Heads Participants in Show.

The Green Roomers, a club of actors and newspaper men, which grew out of the old Green Room Club, staged a lengthy entertainment described as a "revel," before a well-filled house at the George M. Cohan Theatre last night. Mr. Cohan himself, doing an Irish dance, headed the participants in the show, who further included Blanche Ring, Phil Baker, Shaw and Lee, J. Fred Coots, Erin O' Brien-Moore, Harriet Hoctor, Jay and Janet Velie, Doris Seabury and Mildred Roselle.

Special features of the entertainment were a pair of one-act plays, "A Game of Chess" and "The Return;" anecdotes by two war correspondents, Floyd Gibbons, now of the radio, and Larry Rue; Stanley Bennett's Negro choir, and two bands, Nathaniel Shilkret's Victor Orchestra and Charles Dornberger's Hollywood Orchestra. Lester Allen was the chief master of ceremonies.

Dinner Dance for Miss Hovell.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., June 22.—Albert A. Hovell of Brooklyn and Sound Beach gave a dinner dance last evening at the Pickwick Arms to introduce his daughter, Miss Myrtle Belle Hovell. Miss Hovell, who has just returned from the University of Toronto where she completed her second year, attended Greycourt at Southfield Point and was graduated from Linden Hall at Lilitz, Pa.

Henry K. Davis, referee in bankruptcy, at the offices at 140 Nassau Street. At that time he will hear from official accountants just what is left of the $7,000,000 assets of Woody & Co., of which Charles L. Woody Jr., Ryder's brother-in-law, was the senior partner.

Milton P. Kupfer, attorney for the Irving Trust Company, the receivers, said yesterday that until the accountants' report was received tomorrow it would be impossible to tell exactly how much was lost in the firm's failure. Estimates have placed the loss between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000. It will not be possible until then to determine who suffered the most, and to what extent, in the crash, Mr. Kupfer said.

Yesterday the accountants, working for the firm of Barrow, Wade & Guthrie, were delving into the records of the firm to make sure that the report would be ready for Mr. Davis tomorrow.

Names of Politicians in Diary.

Mr. Kupfer was asked if he knew whether the names of prominent politicians, recorded in Ryder's diary among numbers frequently called, also figured in the records of the brokerage firm. He said that so far as he knew they did not, but that a more definite answer would also have to await the accountants' report.

The names of John F. Curry, Tammany leader; Thomas F. McAndrews, now secretary to Mayor Walker, and Charles S. Hand, former secretary and now Sanitation Commissioner, were found listed in Ryder's diary, it was reported yesterday. The telephone numbers of Mr. Curry, Mr. McAndrews and Mr. Hand were recent entries. None of the three was reached yesterday to find out what connection, if any, he had with Mr. Ryder or Woody & Co.

The diary also listed telephone numbers of actresses, including Jean Ackerman, Betty Compton, Evelyn Laye, who has since returned to England; Betty Starbuck and Peggy Hopkins Joyce. Miss Starbuck's mother, asked yesterday about Ryder, replied that she and her daughter had been friends of both Mr. and Mrs. Ryder for a long time. She declined to discuss the matter further. Mrs. Ryder was reported in seclusion yesterday.

Bailey to Talk Today.

Another angle of the case which has developed considerable mystery may be cleared up today when Frank Bailey, Brooklyn financier and chairman of the board of the Prudence Company, will talk to newspaper men at his Brooklyn office. Mr. Bailey is the father-in-law of John Vanneck, on whose complaint Ryder was arrested.

Mr. Bailey, after a preliminary statement that Ryder owed him considerable money, has refused to see interviewers at his home on Long Island and has sent out word that he will talk further this morning at his Brooklyn office. Ryder is reported to have told Eugene L. Garey, one of several counsel for creditors, that he owed Bailey $1,500,000 as a result of the Wall Street crash last Fall. He is also reported to have told Mr. Garey that he was repaying this to Mr. Bailey at the rate of $25,000 a week.

Ryder's disheveled appearance in court yesterday was due to the fact that on Saturday night he had been unable to get into his apartment at 720 Park Avenue to get fresh clothing. The place had been taken over by the receivers and their representatives refused to admit him.

Another link between Ryder and Mr. Bailey is the $200,000 gift Ryder made last year to Union College, of which Mr. Bailey is treasurer. On June 14, just a few days before Woody & Co. closed its doors, Ryder went to the college's commencement exercises and laid the cornerstone of Ryder Hall, the new electrical engineering laboratory which his gift will build.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

Songs, Soldiers and a Girl.

WOMEN EVERYWHERE, with J. Harold Murray, George Grossmith, Clyde Cook, Fifi Dorsay, Rose Dione and Ralph Kellard, based on a story by Mr. Grossmith and Zolton Korda, directed by Alexander Korda; vaudeville acts. At the Hippodrome.

In "Women Everywhere," a dawdling but often interesting audible pictorial story now at the Hippodrome, Alexander Korda, who several years ago produced that excellent silent film "Helen of Troy," succeeds in revealing his usual careful and imaginative direction. It is to be assumed that he was forced to follow the script and is therefore not responsible for the melodramatic incidents or guileless dialogue.

The narrative is based on one furnished by George Grossmith, the British stage producer and actor, and Zolton Korda. It is enhanced by several pleasing songs composed by William Kernel. J. Harold Murray, who appears as Charles Jackson, an American rum and gun runner, does very well in some of these musical contributions. He sings of women, of love and the Foreign Legion. As he happens to be in a tuneful mood on his gun-running schooner, he lifts his voice to the tune of "Women Everywhere," but soon afterward he finds himself a prisoner of the French, who apprehend him and others for furnishing arms to the Arabs. It is a piece of impertinence that is supposed to be paid for by a bullet through the heart at dawn.

Jackson has all the fortune that any hero has ever been allowed by an author. He meets Lili LaFleur in the Squinting Cat cabaret in Marseilles, and this song-bird and dancer, played by Fifi Dorsay, does wonders in helping Jackson to evade the hawk-eyed French military police. The gun-running adventure, however, brings with it a heap of annoyance, for after having fallen in love with Lili, Jackson, to save his skin, discovers that he has to choose between the full penalty or joining the Foreign Legion.

In that group of men who want to bury their pasts, Jackson becomes a popular hero and all his rum-running and gun-running crimes are forgotten.

Mr. Grossmith appears as the proprietor of the Squinting Cat. He gives quite an amusing performance, although one or two of the supposed witticisms which he voices are somewhat antiquated. Mr. Grossmith and Miss Dorsay have their chance to sing and they are far more successful than some more noted performers in this line have been on the screen.

Mr. Korda obviously has been handicapped in dealing with the foreign atmosphere, but he has many compelling scenes, particularly those of the Arabs and the French soldiers on the desert sands. The high lights and shadows in these glimpses are most impressive. The interior scenes have received considerable attention, which atones partly for the shortcomings of the story.

Miss Dorsay is believable as Fifi. Clyde Cook does not make much of a mark as Sam Brown, a cockney sailor. Rose Dione is capital as the adipose cabaret manager. Ralph Kellard as the villain seems to be a little too cognizant of what he's going to say before he says it.

BYRD SEEN IN NEWSREELS.

Celebration at Arrival in New York —Other Interesting Films.

NEWSREEL, a compilation of Fox Movietone and Hearst Metrotone newsreels, shown continuously at the Embassy Newsreel Theatre.

Views of Admiral Byrd's arrival and the attendant celebration in New York are part of the program this week at the Newsreel Theatre, where the screen also displays a variegated film fare, including pictures of the Prince of Wales, former President Coolidge, Thomas A. Edison and Mackenzie King, Premier of Canada.

The Prince of Wales at the unveiling of a statue of Marshal Foch in London says, in part:

"He was one of those to whom work of today, however important, is chiefly valuable as preparation for the work of tomorrow. His rule of life was simple as it was short—to serve his God and to defend his country."

Mr. Coolidge, speaking at an annual dinner at Amherst College, says that "when we came to Amherst to enter the class of '95, if we had to judge by the pictures of that occasion, we were not especially prepossessing. We did not look very promising, but the college went to work and treated us as we ought to be and made men out of my classmates who have reached some success in the world."

Senator James E. Watson tells us that the sole question of the tariff "is to save the American workman from competing in our own market with products produced in foreign countries by persons who receive from one-third to one-half the wages our people receive for the same work. This applies as well to agriculture as to industry. * * * It is my confident prediction that within a year prosperous conditions will again be resumed in the United States because of the enactment of this law."

Other pictorial news events include "shots" of Sir Henry Segrave just before the hydroplane accident in which he met his death, the English Derby, an Altoona auto race, boy health winners in New York being congratulated by Health Commissioner Shirley Wynne, the newest in helicopters, a procession in which a Siamese Princess has her hair clipped, a race between woodchoppers and views of Aimee Semple McPherson, just returned from the Holy Land and displaying the latest in Palestine fashions.

Ted Shawn Makes a Hit in Munich.

MUNICH, Germany, June 22 (AP).—The American dancer, Ted Shawn, was enthusiastically applauded by a capacity house today in the first production of the terpsichorean drama, "Orpheus Dionysos," by Felix Emmel. The drama is based on the music of Gluck's opera. Margaret Wallmann acted Eurydice.

"BAD GIRL" HERE SEPT. 15.

R. V. Newman Acquires Dramatic Rights to Vina Delmar's Novel.

Robert V. Newman announced yesterday that he had acquired the dramatic rights to Vina Delmar's novel, "Bad Girl", and that Miss Delmar would assist in making a play from the book. He added that the play would come to New York on Sept. 15 after an out-of-town engagement late in August. Mr. Newman, who has made several Broadway productions, was last concerned with the presentation of "The Sap From Syracuse."

Crosby Gaige previously held the stage rights to "Bad Girl" and announced last Summer that the play would be written by Miss Delmar and Thomas Mitchell.

CAST OF 'DANCING PARTNER'

Belasco's First Production for New Season in Rehearsal Today.

David Belasco will place his first production for the new theatrical season in rehearsal today. It is "Dancing Partner," a play adapted by Frederic and Fanny Hatton from the original of Alexander Engel and Alfred Grunwald. Lynne Overman, Irene Purcell, Henry Stephenson and Charlotte Granville will be featured in a cast which will further include Suzanne Caubaye, Jules Epailly, Gustave Rolland, Claudia Morgan and Mauricette Ducret. "Dancing Partner" will open in Atlantic City late next month and come to the Belasco Theatre in August.

Mr. Belasco's successful production of "It's A Wise Child" will begin its last week at his playhouse tonight.

Revue by Satirists of Lambs Club to Be Shown at Chanin's.

"Who Cares?," a revue being produced by members of the Lambs Club under the name of the Satirists, will open at Chanin's Forty-sixth Street Theatre the week of July 7, probably on that date. The show, which will make use of Lambs Gambol material, will play a preliminary engagement next week at the Brighton Theatre.

In the cast will be Florenz Ames, Frank Allworth, John Cherry, Arthur Hartley, Percy Helton, William Holbrook, Grant Mills, Robert Pitkin, Ralph Riggs, George Sweet, Sibylla Bowhan, Marjorie Seltzer, Elinor Meeker, Leonie Richter and Jane Bowers.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Mystery Moon" will open at the Royale Theatre tonight. It is described as a musical comedy with a mystery plot.

Shaw and Lee have been added to the cast of "Artists and Models," the revue at the Majestic Theatre.

"Poor As a Church Mouse," a play adapted from German sources, will be placed in rehearsal today by A. H. Woods and Richard Herndon.

Mary Morris will succeed Mary Blair this week in the cast of "Lysistrata" at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.

Evelyn Laye is scheduled to arrive today on the Ile de France. She will go immediately to Hollywood to make a talking picture for Florenz Ziegfeld and Samuel Goldwyn. Early in October Miss Laye will resume her tour in the Noel Coward operetta, "Bitter Sweet," which introduced her to New York audiences last season.

Claiborne Foster has been engaged for a brief tour in RKO vaudeville, opening in Chicago on July 12. She will again appear in Maxwell Anderson's sketch, "The Marriage Recipe."

The monthly reception of the Twelfth Night Club will be held tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 P. M. Mrs. Frank Craven will be the hostess.

This week's attraction at the Millbrook Theatre, Millbrook, N. Y., is Don Marquis's comedy, "The Old Soak." Ernest Cossart, a guest player, has the leading rôle.

Kenneth Macgowan will deliver a series of five lectures on the theatre during the second and third weeks of July at Chautauqua, N. Y.

"Stepping Sisters" will move tonight from the Royale Theatre to the Masque. Claire Devine will succeed Grace Huff in the comedy on Friday night.

Frank Farnum, Alice Ridnor, Kathleen Karr, Herbert Faye and Arthur Page will head the cast of "Paris to Long Beach," a musical show opening at the Al Fresco Theatre, Long Beach, on Friday night.

The Week-End Players, a semi-professional company under the direction of Mary Dirnberger, formerly of the Carolina Playmakers, will give a series of plays on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings throughout the Summer at the little theatre in Christodora House, Avenue B and Ninth Street. The first production, opening Thursday night, will be a modern dress version of Molière's comedy, "The Would-Be Gentleman."

REINALD WERRENRATH SINGS AT THE PALACE

Baritone Scores in 'Mandalay'—Will Mahoney Continues—Mark Hellinger in Debut at Loew's.

Those somewhat different newcomers to vaudeville, Reinald Werrenrath and Mark Hellinger, head the current bills at the two chief Broadway variety halls. Mr. Werrenrath, who is none other than the concert baritone of that name, is to be found at the Palace, where he achieved something of a success yesterday afternoon in a program of popular favorites which, as the phrase goes, displayed his voice to advantage. Since his appearance could hardly have been regarded as official without them, he sang "On the Road to Mandalay" and "Danny Deever," as well as one of his own personal choices, "Duna," a song for which the, in this case, informative program states that he paid $5,000.

Besides Mr. Werrenrath, who gives a fillip to an above average list of acts, the Palace also holds a second week of Will Mahoney's strenuous activities. Professor Mahoney, hardest working of the outstanding Times Square playboys, still lurches and careens dizzily across the stage and continues to dance on that xylophone. He is a certain tie for first place, and usually the winner, in anybody's vaudeville sweepstakes.

Out of Mr. Wynn's recent "Simple Simon" has come the attractive and spirited Bobbe Arnst to be just a bit too professionally cute in her assortment of songs and dances. Georgie Price, this week's successor to Jack Osterman, pops about as master of ceremonies and performs at least one amusing stunt by introducing to the cash customers the Palace's reliable property man and one of its near-Roxy ushers. In an act of his own Mr. Price goes in for the imitations so often attempted by comedians of his school and gives his impressions of Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Will Rogers, John Barrymore and other somebodies.

Two vivacious sisters of Hal Skelly, Monica and Ann Skelly, show a fair amount of talent in a rather sappy farcical sketch which has something or other to do with a pair of shop girls who put on society airs during their vacation and is particularly distinguished for the elegant portrait it paints of two male blue bloods. Eddie Conrad, the comedian with those expressive eyes, has his moments, although his funning at a piano is less successful than that negotiated by Herb Williams and Al Trahan, both of whom are Palace familiars. And when it is recorded that Raymond Baird, a lad who wants to be known as "Young Sousa," performs such musical stunts as playing on two saxophones simultaneously and that the Petleys conclude the bill with an aerial act, the subject of the Palace is pretty completely covered.

As for Mark Hellinger, he is the newspaper columnist, and he is at Loew's State. Making his Manhattan début on Saturday, he displayed all the ease and assurance of such a veteran actor from the fourth estate as Heywood Broun, plus a faintly William Gaxton style of comedy. Mr. Hellinger's vehicle was a serviceable mixture of "gags" and blackouts, revealing him in, of all things, the rôle of a Broadway reporter. Chief among his assisting cast was a decorative young woman who, like Miss Arnst, recently drew her salary from Mr. Ziegfeld and "Simple Simon."

Sermons Preached Yesterday in the Metropolitan District

Says His Embracing of Catholic Faith Is Evidence of Liberal Spirit of Episcopalianism.

DISCUSSES CHURCH'S IDEAL

It Is a Combination of the Best of Protestantism and Catholicism, He Declares.

The withdrawal of Dr. Selden P. Delany from the Episcopal Church is evidence that the spirit of liberty and flexibility of mind which refuses to go back to medievalism is too strong for those who want to fasten what they call Catholic authority upon the Episcopal Church, declared the Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie in his sermon yesterday in Grace Protestant Episcopal Church.

The Episcopal Church is neither exclusively Catholic nor exclusively Protestant, but insists upon the difficult ideal of including the best that is represented by both these words, said Dr. Bowie in criticizing Dr. Delany, who resigned recently as pastor of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin to join the Roman Catholic Church.

"This Church of ours will not forget its Catholic heritage," said Dr. Bowie. "It deplores sectarianism and believes that there is a continuous Christian tradition of the universal Church with which all Christian thought and experience should be linked. But the Episcopal Church has no intention to consider the Reformation as something to be regretted and apologized for. The word Protestant stands in the title of the Church and is likely to remain there, notwithstanding the desire of the more restless Anglo-Catholics to get rid of it.

"The withdrawal of Dr. Delany is an evidence that the spirit of liberty and flexibility of mind which refuses to go back to medievalism is too strong for those who want to fasten what they call Catholic authority upon the Episcopal Church. Dr. Delany was an able and earnest man, widely liked by his associates in this diocese, and one who will personally be much missed; but the more conspicuously in recent years he has proclaimed what he thought to be the spirit of the Episcopal Church, the more conspicuously it now appears that all the while he was misrepresenting what the spirit really is.

"The extraordinary weight of the lay vote cast in the last convention of the Diocese of New York on the side of liberality and religious simplicity in the selection of a Suffragan Bishop, and the fact that Dr. Delany, notwithstanding his real devotion to his connections in this Church ultimately had to come to the conclusion that the views he held were after all not the views of this Church, as he so long had tried to persuade himself that they were, are signs which may well give new confidence to all who believe that the future of this Church does not lie with those who seek to make it an imitation of the Church of Rome."

MAN REBORN REVEALS MIRACLE, SAYS MACON

Holds Manifestation of God's Power in Ourselves Proves Christianity Valid.

The great miracles of God are not nature miracles, but spiritual miracles worked in the lives of men, declared Dr. Clifton Macon in his sermon yesterday in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, Park Avenue and Fifty-first Street. Dr. Macon could not, therefore, see "why we should argue about the possibility of changing water into wine or multiplying loaves and fishes when we have the undoubted miracle of changing men from weakness to strength, from persecutors and murderers into benefactors and martyrs."

"As long as we have such manifestations of God's transforming power in ourselves, nature miracles might be entirely disproved without any loss of evidence that God is all and in all," Dr. Macon said.

"The great argument for the validity of Christianity is not in natural law suspended, but in natural men transformed and common men transcended," he declared.

"Jesus gave the gospel of human fellowship and cooperation for all mankind. But only individuals have accepted it. On the national scale, men have tried to live on other principles, selfish and regardless of the welfare of the world as a whole. As soon as the world surrenders and cries, 'Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?' then peace and plenty will be found for us all. When that happy day shall come none of us knows, but every one should preach it and work toward it. The day for selfish individualism and nationalism has passed. We must adopt the teaching of Jesus or go down in a welter of blood and despair. He is the way, the truth and the life for nations as well as for individuals."

SAYS ENERGY NEEDS GOAL.

Dr. Houck Urges Eager Pursuit of Some Attainable Perfection.

A great deal of the energy which human beings put into the task of living seems to miss the bullseye of achievement by a discouragingly wide margin, declared the Rev. Dr. John Walter Houck in his sermon yesterday in Pilgrim Congregational Church, Grand Concourse and 175th Street, the Bronx.

"Misspent energy tears at the sanctity of the mind and the balance of the emotions until men think of life as twisted all out of proportion," Dr. Houck said. "More and more, men are realizing that they need a living power, a conduit for life energy which will enable them to close the gaps between what they are and what they may become.

"Not all of us can attain the position which Colonel Lindbergh, Rear Admiral Byrd and other notables have achieved. But we can strive to follow the paths which lead to a fulfilled, integrated life. The need of imperfect man is an eager desire for that perfection of which he is capable, and in so aspiring, his energy can flow into achieving conduct as a coworker with God."

Holds Our Casual Meetings Are Ordained and Significant

Casual meetings in the daily lives of every one, that are often fraught with significant and far-reaching results, are not matters of chance but are ordained by God, the Rev. Dr. E. Charles Warden of Johannesburg, South Africa, said yesterday morning at the Manhattan Congregational Church, Broadway and Seventy-sixth Street, where he was the guest preacher. The Rev. Dr. Henry Edward Emett, pastor, conducted the service.

"The true Christian will leave graciousness and well-being in the trail of his seemingly casual meetings with other persons on his way up and down this great city," said Dr. Warden. "And perhaps some of us will meet a fellow-being, seemingly by chance, and something in that meeting, or something seen or heard during that meeting, will show to one or another of us the Lord Jesus Christ, whether we have been hoping to see Him or not."

DR. SCHERER ASSAILS INSINCERE WORSHIP

Thinks Organized Christianity May Some Day Be Driven to Commit Suicide.

WANTS BELIEF, NOT OPINION

Scores Worshipless Home, Godless Business and Sunday Golf as Obstacles to Christ.

One of these days organized Christianity is going to commit suicide, the Rev. Dr. Paul E. Scherer told his congregation yesterday morning in his sermon on "Is Lutheranism Christian?" at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity, Central Park West and Sixty-fifth Street.

"There was an occasion on which Jesus asked His apostles, 'Who do men say that I am?'" said Dr. Scherer. "I sometimes wonder if in this twentieth century of ours we have ever gotten beyond that question. We add up the rumors that have come to us and join the majority. Our ideas are fashioned on the basis of what we have heard. Many of us have opinions; few of us have beliefs. We lose our zeal because we first lose our knowledge. Lutheranism may be as Christian as you please, but that doesn't make Christians out of Lutherans.

"The word of Jesus is not a dull affair. We are just downright indifferent to it, and I can only urge on you what the result of that indifference is going to be. Your religion will never amount to anything without it. Do you think we can recover our convictions?"

Referring to the celebration yesterday of the 400th anniversary of the Augsburg Confession and other Church anniversaries, Dr. Scherer asserted that "the thing we need is not commemoration but recovery."

"It isn't the corruption of a great ecclesiastical organization that keeps men away from Christ, as it did then," he continued. "It's the golf course and the ball game and Coney Island. It's the worshipless home and the godless business and the careless crowd of Christians. We have an open road with a Saviour on it, and it's hard to get Protestants to travel because they don't have to. We are not moved by any fear, and it seems that we haven't come far enough along yet to be moved by any love."

Dr. Scherer told his parishioners that it was customary for them to say as they looked at the crowds coming out of Catholic churches almost hourly on their days of worship, "Oh, they have to go; they're afraid not to."

"It's good we have something to say!" declared Dr. Scherer. "Their methods of getting at God may be wrong, but at least they use them. What difference does it make if ours are right unless we, too, use them?"

The minister told of his visit to Rochester last week to attend the New York Synod meeting. He recalled his conversation with a fellow-minister that prompted his choice of the topic, "Is Lutheranism Christian?"

"I sat listening to the story of his lonely conflict," said Dr. Scherer, "swerving now and then to the verge of insanity as he strove to keep his own intellectual integrity in the face of the cautious theology and subtle definitions that had been taught him with such emphasis as to make them seem almost a substitute for religion. One of these days, I said to myself, organized Christianity is going to commit suicide."

STRESSES NEED FOR FAITH.

Dr. Steimle Sees Lesson in Anniversary of Augsburg Confession.

The 400th anniversary of the Augsburg Confession on Wednesday should serve to focus the attention of Christians on the strength and the necessity of faith in all of humanity's problems, the Rev. Dr. Augustus Steimle, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Advent, Broadway and Ninety-third Street, said yesterday in his morning sermon.

"On June 25, 1530, the reigning princes of Germany who were then protecting Martin Luther submitted to Charles V, supreme head of the Holy Roman Empire, a unique document which in its origin had little religious significance, but today is the Bible of faith. That confession of the Diet of Augsburg has taken on a transcendental importance.

"The more faith a Christian has, the truer a Christian he is," Dr. Steimle said. "Faith, the indispensable attribute of inventors, also is of supreme importance in the spiritual life. The man of faith is lord and master in every department of life. Faith is the torchlight that assures man of progress."

FADDEN DEPLORES MULTI-GOD CONCEPT

Priest Contends Men Create Many Kinds of Divinity to Suit Their Own Ends.

SAYS DEITY TOUCHES ALL

Tells St. Patrick's Communicants Catholic Church Is Growing Despite Material Age.

What happens after death will be no surprise to those who have loved and walked with God in this world, for the consciousness of the living personal presence of God in earthly life is a foretaste of Paradise, according to the Rev. Francis A. Fadden, who preached yesterday at high mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral. The mass was followed by a benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, one of a series of ceremonies in honor of the feast of Corpus Christi, which was observed last Thursday.

"Intellectually you can prove the existence of God," Father Fadden said. "But then you ask if God has a personal interest in you. Did He know you were born? Does He know what you do and what you say and feel in your heart day by day? There is little evidence of the personal interest of God in the life of any one. He is not evident to the eye or ear and apparently He submits each of us to the same processes of life. The sun shines, but it shines on the just and the unjust, and nature provides food for the good and the bad alike. We all seem to be the victims of life—indeed sometimes the toll seems to be paid in the wrong quarter, for in our eyes the good seem to suffer and the wicked prosper.

"Where is God that He does not prevent this, we ask? How can He see so much pain and devastation unmoved; why does He not speak? The answer is that God is what He is; not what we think Him to be. The young man soon finds that he cannot read into life what he wants, but must accept what life gives him, for life, too, is what it is, not what we would like to think.

"There are too many conceptions of God in the world today," Father Fadden continued. "He is represented as a God of love, of vengeance, of peace, of battle. Men make Him everything they wish Him to be without trying to find out what He is.

"Christ gave the answer to the question the night before His death when He blessed the bread and wine, saying, 'This is My body and this is My blood.' The Eucharist is the living testimony to every individual that God is personally interested in his life. He is not only on the hills and beyond the sky; He is a personal God directing each personal life. Being God, He does not come to us as we think He might, but in the way He, as God, selected."

Although this is popularly supposed to be a material and pagan age, the history of the Catholic Church shows there have never been so many daily communicants as at present, Father Fadden declared.

"These are the ones who understand the Kingdom of God," he continued. "They have accepted His invitation to come to Him and they are conscious of His presence in their lives. They are not troubled because they do not hear his voice. They know He will not speak when this mass is finished. But the greatest things of life are accomplished without words."

DR. SOCKMAN DECRIES LOSS OF REVERENCE

Says Man Must Recover Dignity or Living, Love, Literature, Art Will Be Cheapened.

Unless modern man recovers reverence for his own nature and for some Power behind himself life will become too cheap for great living, great love or great literature, was the warning given yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman in his sermon in Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, corner Sixtieth Street.

"A Godless universe and a soulless man mean eventually a loveless society," said Dr. Sockman, who charged also that "we have neglected to supplement progress in the instruments of living with progress in the incentives of life" and that "we have therefore become imbued with our cleverness but not with our dignity."

"The dowered reverence for our own nature is reflected in literature. Whereas Elizabethan dramas laid their scenes in courts and palaces, modern playwrights are inclined to place their plots in the drab bedrooms and dingy streets of mediocrity; and this change is not due to the increased interest in the common man but to the lessened ease of believing in greatness," Dr. Sockman said. "The tragedy of the modern stage is that, unless checked in its devaluation of man, it will render itself incapable of great tragedy, for the writing of that rests on the belief that human nature is an instrument of divine destiny.

"Love as well as literature shows the ill effects of man's lowered estimate of himself. Under the analysis of certain contemporary writers, the mystical elements of human love have been explained away. It is interpreted simply as a sex experience plus an empty illusion which proves as devoid of fragrance as an artificial flower. A Godless universe and a soulless man mean eventually a loveless society.

"Giant powers of immediate control are placed in the hands today of men with pygmy conceptions of ultimate destiny. We have neglected to supplement progress in the instruments of living with progress in the incentive of life. We have therefore become imbued with our cleverness but not with our dignity."

Upholds Reality of "Providence."

The Rev. Dr. Reynold B. Boden, pastor of the Bernage Congregational Church of Manchester, England, conducted the services yesterday morning at the West End Collegiate Church, West End Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street, and lectured on the doctrine of divine providence, which he said was a "marvelous reality." Dr. Boden said many scoffed at the idea of an individual providence, but "that only goes to show that their faith in God is a very watery affair."

BIBLE KEY TO JESUS, MERRILL ASSERTS

New Testament Will Help Us to Know Him in His Fullness, Pastor Declares.

FINDS CHURCH LACKING

Cannot Be Trusted to Tell Us What to Think About Christ Because It Needs Remaking, He Says.

The Church cannot be trusted to tell us what to think about Christ and His way, because the Church itself needs remaking, restating and reforming according to the true mind of Christ, declared the Rev. Dr. William P. Merrill in his sermon yesterday in the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street.

"Religion today faces two great realities," Dr. Merrill said. "One of them is Jesus, that radiant, dominant figure of the first century. The other is Christianity, the powerful, persistent part of society known as the Church, with its forms, orders and creeds. What is the relation of one to the other?

"We cannot hope to probe down through the New Testament and find an original figure, a simple Jesus, who shall give the law both to the New Testament and to the Christianity of today. Out from that collection of writing stands a figure we can come to know, radiant, consistent, impressive, dominant. We must search to find Him. Nor will He appear just the same to all of us. He is all the more divine for appealing as He does to all the 'varieties of religious experience.' But our best, our adequate, our only means of coming to know Him is to take all we find here in the New Testament and through it all to come to know Jesus in His fullness, 'the same yesterday and today and forever.'

"To try to push back of the New Testament and to find an earlier and original Jesus is to be lost in mists of uncertainty. To come on down from the New Testament and take all the conjectures and composite pictures that the Church has combined in its creed and worship and order is to lose the real Christ and real Christianity in a mass of earthliness. But somehow, explain it as you may (and the best plan is still the special guidance of the spirit of God given to its writers), the New Testament has caught the richness of the world-view and the world-need and yet escaped the corruption of superstition.

"What we need today is to return to the 'simplicity which is in Christ': and that means to be satisfied with the New Testament as the sufficient guide of the Church."

BELIEF IN JUDGMENT HELD TO BE NATURAL

Dr. Buttrick Says We Establish Courts Because We Accept Idea of Eternal Tribunal.

A reaffirmation of belief in the judgment and in Jesus Christ as the one "who shall judge the living and the dead" was voiced yesterday by the Rev. Dr. George Arthur Buttrick in his last sermon of the season at the Madison Presbyterian Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-third Street.

"There is nothing new in a reference to the judgment," Dr. Buttrick declared. "Men have always believed in a judgment. That belief is part of the sanity of the world. We are responsible beings. We are under obligation to a law of right, written in our nature. That law was not born in us, we feel; rather, we were born in it.

"We have built courts of justice in our cities (where justice is sometimes dispensed and sometimes dispensed with) because we have sensed that there is a court of justice in the eternal silences. We have drafted laws, however brokenly, because there is a divine law written on the fleshly tablets of our nature. We believe in Heaven not because the theologies talk about it, but because we have found a heaven within us—of human love and unearthly longing. We believe in hell because we ourselves are hell—the hell of a tortured conscience, of a disintegrated life, of a soul at civil war, of a wrath actually arrived."

Dr. Buttrick criticized human justice, specifically the administration of penal law. He contended that human judges, being imperfect, are limited precisely by their own imperfections.

DISCUSSES GOD'S POWER.

Dr. Gantz Says It May Be Drawn From Air Like Nitrogen.

Drawing the power of God from inner sources, just as chemists extract nitrogen from the air for gunpowder, would make our spiritual dynamite stronger than any deadly explosive, said the Rev. Alfred Dale Gantz, pastor of the First Williamsbridge Church, 732 East 225th Street, in his sermon yesterday morning at the Broadway Presbyterian Church, Broadway and 114th Street.

"The spirit of God is today as it ever was," he said. "The air is full of it. It surrounds you. But if God's power is doubted and slighted, there is no such power. The tendency today is to reduce even Jesus to the status of man."

CALLS NATURE PHYSICIAN.

Dr. Keigwin Says It Ministers to Man in Greatest Need.

Nature's ministry to cramped lives was the subject of a sermon yesterday morning by Dr. A. Edwin Keigwin at the West End Presbyterian Church, Amsterdam Avenue at 105th Street. The sermon was broadcast over stations WABC and W2XE.

Dr. Keigwin said visible nature was an immediate and tangible expression of the infinite and that it inspired a religious sensitivity in man by ministering to him in his greatest need. The complexities of modern life make the ministry of nature more necessary than ever before, he asserted.

Declares Spiritual Progress Lags Behind the Material

"Your State, your Church, your judiciary, your institutions will rise just as high as the persons who compose them and no higher," the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church, Stuyvesant Square and Sixteenth Street, declared in his sermon yesterday morning.

"We are advancing today materially," he said, "but I wonder if we are advancing as much in quality. We must remember that man is back of everything. The country can progress just as much as its population wants it to and no further. To make man want to progress is one of the things the Church should try to do. The Church should make individuals high-minded, constructive and decent."

ATTENTION TO TRUTH URGED BY HOUGHTON

Calvary Baptist Congregation Warned Against Cheapening of Lofty Thoughts.

PLEADS FOR BETTER LIFE

Daily Need for Brotherliness Is Declared to Be Greater Than Ever Before.

Four exhortations, the need to give heed and attention, the need to exhort each other, the need for fidelity and the need to come boldly and confidently into grace, were stressed yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Will H. Houghton of Calvary Baptist Church, temporarily located at the Pythian Temple, 135 West Seventieth Street.

The sermon, which was entitled, "The Exhortations of the Better Life," was the second of a series by Dr. Houghton.

"Today people will more readily give money or give anything, in fact, than give their attention," he said. "They find it easier. But there is a very real reason why they should give heed, the importance of the One to whom we are asked to give heed.

"The daily need of brotherliness, of personal contact with our fellow men, is greater today than ever before because there aro so many subtle things to pull us apart. Business rivalry, competition in other fields, even divided families show this need for fellowship, which is the second exhortation from the Book of Hebrews.

"The need for fidelity is not alone in profession but in possession. Loyalty in doctrine is incomplete without loyalty in life.

"The need to come boldly and with confidence to the throne of grace is seen because of the mercifulness and understanding there. Compassion, which is more intense and vital than mere sympathy, is there."

In conclusion Dr. Houghton warned against what he termed the dangers of orthodoxy. "To cheapen the language in which we speak of great things is a real menace to faith," he declared. "When the eternal truth becomes a commonplace we had better give heed. To preserve the austerity of lofty thoughts and save them from being cant to be bandied is a real mission."

SEES REBIRTH OF RELIGION.

Dr. Ribourg Says Man Finds Need for Something Above Materialism.

The prevailing tendency of indifference to God and religion is giving way to a rebirth of the religious spirit because modern man is beginning to realize that he cannot live on a purely materialistic conception of life, the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Ribourg said yesterday in his sermon in St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church.

"Humanity must sooner or later realize that life is more than temporal prosperity and amusements, that there is a higher ideal to be found and fulfilled," Dr. Ribourg declared.

"The awakening is already taking place. Many a thing which during the rapid progress of the last century was welcomed as a blessing is now seen to have been a curse. The development of competition in commercial and industrial life is now seen to be the root cause of our industrial strife and unrest.

"It is the mission of religion to prove once more to men that the earthly duties to be fulfilled here on earth are an integral part of their immortal life."

INDICATES GUIDES FOR LIFE.

Dr. Dapp Says Christians Should Seek to Imitate the Great.

To live a Christian life one should seek to imitate the lives of the best Christians, declared the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Dapp in his sermon yesterday in St. James's Lutheran Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-third Street.

"Educators tell us that we learn by doing," Dr. Dapp said. "If men want to know the validity of some great truth, they can do so by living it. If they want to realize what is the secret of a great character, let them imitate the elements of that great character in everyday contacts. As the painter uses the master artist as his guide and as the embryo lawyer serves his legal apprenticeship in the office of some distinguished member of the bar, so the Christian must be an imitator. Successful Christian lives must serve as his models."

Urges Belief in Living Christ.

There are two kinds of Christians, those who believe in an omnipotent, living Christ and those who believe in a historic, dead Christ, according to the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson in his sermon yesterday morning at the Broadway Tabernacle Church, Broadway and Fifty-sixth Street. He asserted that unless men think like God they cannot grasp the living Christ.

FINDS PRIDE CONTROVERTED

Declares Modesty, Backed by Zeal and Merit, Is Vindicated Even in This Modern Age.

In the long run it is the meek person who wins in the struggle for happiness, for while the meek may not always seem to possess the material rewards of life, from Jesus to Gandhi those who have found the most lasting satisfactions have been humble folk, declared the Rev. Lon Ray Call in his sermon yesterday in the West Side Unitarian Church, 110th Street, east of Broadway.

"This is true of politics," he declared. "Democracy itself is a testimony to the power of the meek to inherit the earth at last. Russia is an example of the power of the common people over all political dominion, and American democracy, however much it may have failed, still gives evidence of providing a setting for a man of meek and gentle spirit to influence our political destiny. Such an example was Abraham Lincoln.

"This is also true of science. Those most devoted to her die, or remain hidden from popular acclaim that she may live.

"At bottom this is also true of business. Modesty backed by merit wins in the end.

"Of course, meekness has been exaggerated in much of the teaching of religion and is often confused with loss of self-respect and a general indifference to needed reforms, but when the ideal of humility has not been overly exaggerated, but is properly understood, it is entitled to stand high among modern ideals and is no less applicable to this age than any age that has preceded it. It is a worthy principle that counteracts much of the popular but false philosophy of the times that so loudly asserts that the proud go forth to receive the best gifts of life."

DEAN GATES URGES A MORE VITAL FAITH

Declares Church Needs More Enthusiastic Members, but Fewer Argumentative Preachers.

The church today needs a more vigorous religion, said the Very Rev. Milo Hudson Gates, Dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in his sermon there yesterday.

"We do not need," he continued, "members who wait until an impregnable citadel, with moats, escarpments and buttresses, is established before they begin to fight. We need more members with the spirit of David, who, armed only with a stone and sling, opposed the mighty Goliath."

Dr. Gates added that the church desired more enthusiasm in its parishioners and fewer argumentative and discursive preachers. "We do not desire," he said, "members who want everything explained to them." He declared that it is not such Laodicean members who support the philanthropies of the church, care for the orphans and incurables, build hospitals and homes.

He cited "the unquestioning devotion of St. Peter to the Saviour," as an example which the members of the church might follow, instead of demanding "constant explanations" about every moot point.

Dr. Gates pointed out that St. Paul remained steadfast in his allegiance to Jesus, even after Jesus lost His popularity. He declared that Christ lost His popularity with the common crowd because He "kept unswervingly to his lofty principles."

"This," he declared, "was the real test of His courage. Men and women who stick unflinchingly to their principles and stand by their guns and continue to fight, in spite of the fact that they lose their popularity, are real heroes," he averred. He mentioned Abraham Lincoln as such a hero.

Dr. Gates remarked that "saviours of sorts are usually most popular." Such saviours, he said, are those who advertise in the public press that they can cure all kinds of ill health and also secure for us better positions and higher salaries, if we follow their advice.

"But Jesus," he said, "lost His popularity because He did not give the crowd the material sort of salvation it desired. Instead He gave them the real revelation, offering to save them from their sins."

SAYS WORSHIP IS SOCIAL.

Dr. Gavin Holds Religion Does Not Call for Disregard of Pleasures.

The Rev. Dr. Frank Gavin, professor of ecclesiastical history at the General Theological Seminary, preached yesterday at the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin, 139 West Forty-sixth Street. He was speaking from the pulpit recently vacated by the Rev. Dr. Selden P. Delaney, who resigned as rector to enter the Roman Catholic Church.

Dr. Gavin declared that all worship must of necessity be social. We never stand alone, he said, for each person occupies his limited space in making up a great unit. He compared the worship of God to that of admiring the beauty of sun or the innocence of a child.

"Sacrifice is nothing in the world save the rising of life to its highest point," Dr. Gavin asserted. "Too many people think that sacrifice is sterile. In reality, it is almost synonymous with salvation. If we think of the physical how can we account for the drawing of a horse-hair over gut making beauty?"

Explains Feast of Corpus Christi.

The importance of the feast of Corpus Christi in the Catholic faith was stressed by the Rev. Thomas Brennan in a sermon yesterday morning in the Church of St. Jean-Baptiste, Lexington Avenue at Seventy-sixth Street.

"Corpus Christi means the passing of Christ among those men and women who look at the Eucharistic King through the eyes of faith," he said.

OFFICIAL OPTIMISTS.

Bearers of good tidings and prophets of smooth things from Washington are having a pretty hard time of it. They are, to be sure, only doing their official duty. When people are in the doleful dumps about business and finance, they look to the wise men of the Government to cheer them up. It is the expected thing for the President and the members of the Cabinet to try to do this, but they surely have had very bad luck in the matter of undesigned coincidences. Even Secretary MELLON seems to have lost his former magical power over the stock market. On the very day after his rosy assurances, securities crumbled away, commodities fell further in price, and even wheat—the especial pet and protégé of the Washington Administration—fell to the lowest quotations for many years. The next day Secretary LAMONT of the Department of Commerce spoke his dutiful piece about the great benefits which the new tariff is going to confer upon the country, and again the response was a further slump in securities. One can but pity the other members of the Cabinet whom the President is said to have instructed in their turn to make optimistic statements about the speedy return of prosperity. Secretary HYDE of the Department of Agriculture is capable of such an audacity, and Secretary WILBUR may speak cheer-up words in the name of the Department of the Interior, but both of them have now reason to fear that their utterances may seem to have an effect the very reverse of what was intended.

For the most part, these repeated misfire predictions from Washington have been treated with respect, if not with too great credence, by the public. People have been desperately anxious to see the brighter side, and have welcomed anybody who would undertake to point it out to them. There has been nothing like the open derision with which President WILSON's attempt to explain the depression of 1913-14 as purely "psychological" was received. Republicans have always been better at partisan ridicule of a Democratic President than Democrats have been in holding a Republican President and his Cabinet up to scorn. But it seems now to be the case that most Americans, irrespective of party politics, have grown rather tired and cynical in respect to this whole class of routine official optimists. For some time to come they would do well to follow the injunction of Hosea Biglow: "Never prophesy onless ye know." In boom times any kind of prophet, with or without experience or credentials, can set himself up as infallible. But after a huge speculative collapse, the stoutest lungs go wrong in trying to blow the bubble up again.

Americans heartily believe in the gospel of hope. They are not really downcast or disheartened today. With every one who plans and works to bring about better times, they are more than ready to cooperate. But the diet of false encouragement upon which they have been fed for three or four months past by Government statements is getting pretty thin. The time seems to have arrived for public men to talk less about a future necessarily veiled from their eyes, and to take to heart the final word which President HOOVER addressed to the Conference at Washington—"Work."

INVESTIGATING THE CITY.

Again an effort has been made to have the city of New York investigated by appointees of Governor ROOSEVELT. Again it has failed. In both instances reasonable persons will agree that the Governor was entirely right. In the Legislature of 1930 the Republicans sought to embarrass him politically by ordering a city investigation and leaving the personnel of inquiry to him. This plan, obviously directed more toward weakening the Governor for his re-election contest than toward finding out any maladministration in New York City, collapsed because of its open insincerity. An attempt on the part of Republican leaders last Winter to pass an inquiry bill themselves, naming a legislative commission, was not successful because of opposition from Speaker MCGINNIES and other longer party heads. Now the Socialists have added to the record by pointing to current scandals, and the Governor has answered that, until the local inquisitorial machinery breaks down, he declines to step in.

There are corruption and arrogance and wastefulness in the government of New York City. The current news makes this plain. When, mostly by accident and certainly without any aid from the City Administration, these flaws come to light, the inquisitorial machinery seems to function as it usually does in the communities of democracy. Tender-hearted juries often interpose their mushy reasoning to mire the wheels of justice. The inquisitorial officers cannot help that. It is difficult to send political malefactors to prison. But, at any rate, Welfare Island now is the locus of MAURICE CONNOLLY. We do only fairly well here in getting honest government and putting fear of punishment into the hearts of grafters. But government won't reveal a higher standard of efficiency and honesty than courts and juries seem to require.

Having failed to order their city inquiry at the last legislative session, the Republicans missed their chance to embarrass the Governor during his re-election campaign by possible revelations that his city allies are worse than they are supposed to be. But they will have another opportunity next Winter, and they ought boldly to grasp it. An inquiry into New York City's business which would even faintly resemble CHARLES E. HUGHES's investigation in the early years of the century would be useful all round.

A PORTRAIT OF WASHINGTON.

We don't know how many counterfeit presentments of GEORGE WASHINGTON there are. Some thirty or forty artists studied him at first hand in his lifetime. Besides the bronzes, waxes, woods, marbles, canvases, there is a wealth of miniatures, steel engravings, silhouettes, lithographs, Staffordshire pottery and Heaven knows what else. One even seems to remember him looking blandly from old commemorative "moral pocket-handkerchiefs." As in the case of CAESAR and NAPOLEON, he is often unrecognizable, so different has his aspect seemed to different artists. Curiously enough, the Congressional Record guides us to a portrait of him in a new material. Mr. TABER of Michigan, an evident connoisseur but possibly too devoted to tradition, looking forward to 1932, not with political but with purely artistic intention, said:

> The tire covers which have been sent around to members of Congress with the idea of advertising the bicentennial are of the type of advertising which would shame a one-ring circus and not at all the type that one likes to think of in connection with the George Washington Bicentennial.

> Mr. O'CONNOR of Oklahoma—Whose picture is that on the cover supposed to be?
> Mr. TABER—I do not know. It may be supposed to be that of GEORGE WASHINGTON. It is awful, whoever it is.

Mr. TABER was under the impression that the Bicentennial Commission was responsible for the emission of the "awful" picture. Mr. BLOOM, an associate director of the commission, tried to set him right:

> It was not issued by the commission but by a firm out West, who made the tire covers and asked the commission if it could use some of them. The commission sent out letters to members of the House, and I guess we have received requests from about 50 per cent of all the members asking for a tire cover. One member on the floor today asked if he could have a dozen of these tire covers, so as to take them home through his State and advertise the bicentennial.

Mr. BLOOM had regarded the tire-cover portrait as "a good idea." Certainly it appealed to the taste of the House. Varying his estimate a little, he thought that 60 per cent of the members had asked for the pictured tire covers. These are "paraded through the streets." Every local commission hankered for them. Nobody had disapproved except the fastidious Wolverine, who regards this art on wheels as undignified and fears lest the coming celebration should be turned into a "hippodrome." Into these questions of art and advertising and dignity the layman cannot rush. There can be no better judges of them than members of Congress; and if Mr. BLOOM is accurate, the House has ratified the tire-cover Washington by a 6-to-4 vote.

Another critical Representative, Mr. CULKIN of Oswego, asked Mr. BLOOM if the popular conception of WASHINGTON wasn't embodied in the Stuart portrait or the Houdon mask or statue. "Is not this likeness on "the tire-cover rather in the nature "of a caricature?"

> Mr. BLOOM—No; this is taken from the unfinished picture by STUART, the one that you are speaking of.
> Mr. CULKIN—It certainly is not finished on the tire cover.

Respectfully we renew our request that the Congressional Record be illustrated.

FAIR ELECTIONS IN NICARAGUA

Captain ALFRED W. JOHNSON, former chief of the division of Naval Intelligence at Washington, sailed on Friday last for Nicaragua, where he is to be the supervisor of the Congressional elections which are to take place next Autumn. Like his predecessor, Major General FRANK R. MCCOY, he will be assisted by officers and non-commissioned officers of the Marine Corps, the army and the navy, all of whom are picked men, with a knowledge of Spanish. Many served in Nicaragua during the Presidential election in 1928.

This is the sort of "imperialism" which even our professional liberals find hard to criticize. In the first place, the supervision of the elections is at the request of the Nicaraguans themselves, and with the consent of the various party leaders. In the second place, it profits the United States nothing at all. In the third place, its effectiveness rests not on force but on character, not on arms but on the ability of American personnel to convince the voters—and the candidates—that fair play will be rigidly enforced.

The success of the election in 1928 was admitted by all but a handful of agitators. The defeated candidates joined with the victor, General MONCADA, in paying tribute to the fine spirit in which the Americans had performed their delicate task. This was due in part to the excellent machinery worked out by General MCCOY and his legal assistant, but most of all to the personality of the General himself and of his followers. To a man they were patient, considerate and fair, doing all in their power to prevent the intimidation of voters and to see that there was no repeating or stuffing of the ballot boxes.

Captain JOHNSON therefore approaches his new task with the ground well prepared. But this does not mean that it will not tax all his resourcefulness, diplomacy and patience. In Nicaragua, more even than in the United States, a Congressional election is marked by more cross-currents of local political jealousies than is the simpler Presidential election. There will be more politicians to deal with, and consequently a greater readiness to cry fraud and favoritism. This, in turn, will give more ammunition to the critics of the United States, in Latin America and the United States as well as in Nicaragua. But Captain JOHNSON's task is one which cannot be affected by these back-biters. He is there at the request of the Nicaraguan Government, pledged to do all in his power to be fair and impartial. His own career gives promise that he will discharge this difficult duty in a manner worthy of his predecessor.

KEEPING CHILDREN SOUND.

A million children will be let out from New York's schoolrooms this week. They will go back to their tasks in the Autumn happier, healthier and more than ever ready to enjoy work and play if the hopes and plans of their guardians can be carried out. One of their would-be protectors is the New York Automobile Club. The members recognize the added responsibilities of drivers during the vacation months, and are anxious to impress all motorists with the need of greater care when so many children are playing in the streets. Parents warn their children to be careful, but it is hard to remember cautions when an exciting game is going on. Last Summer nearly 200 children were killed in this city as a result of automobile accidents. Many were badly hurt, suffered a long, weary convalescence and finally went back to school with a heavy handicap.

Another suggestion for keeping the well children sound of wind and limb is offered by Health Commissioner WYNNE. He has formulated a plan which he is asking the five county medical societies to endorse. They should find it easy to approve, for it not only fits in well with their own desire to emphasize preventive medicine but also gives their members an opportunity to work as private practitioners with parents for keeping their children well. Many who have their children treated at clinics are able and willing to give a physician a moderate fee but are often apprehensive lest he charge more than they can pay. Dr. WYNNE's plan has been so detailed that parents will know in advance what the fee will be for health service. He believes in a health counselor for every family, and hopes in that way to bring patients of moderate means to their own doctors instead of leading them further to rely on public facilities.

The doctors who agree to join the experiment will notify the Department of Health that they will set aside a portion of one day a week when well children will be the patients. Their fee, which may be any amount they select, will be known to the department. No attempt will be made to standardize fees. The children will be examined and given inoculations necessary to immunize them against preventable diseases, and their parents will be advised about their feeding and general care. Medical authorities believe that most of the serious ailments of middle and later life may be prevented or greatly reduced by correction of defects and tendencies in childhood. If the health service through private physicians can be made habitual with parents, it gives promise of a coming generation of more robust citizens.

THE CLIMBING OF JONSONG.

The success of Professor DYHRENFURTH and his international party of Alpinists in climbing Jonsong Peak in the Himalayas, 24,340 feet, is a consolation prize for their repulse by storm and avalanche on the upper heights of Kanchenjunga. No peak so high in that sublime field of mountains had been conquered. As long ago as 1909 the Duke of the Abruzzi reached an altitude of 24,600 feet in an attempt to climb Bride Peak (25,110), which was frustrated by fog on the very edge of victory; in 1924 NORTON and SOMERVELL of the British party strained up as high as 28,200 on Mount Everest, and MALLORY and IRVINE perished at an even higher altitude a day or two later. In mountain-climbing it is the ascents that count by the rules of the game, and the internationalists of 1930, representing Germany, Austria, Great Britain and Switzerland, have made a record that some of them will probably break in a future campaign. They will be tempted to return to the Himalayas, which challenge with forty-two peaks "of and "above 24,000 feet in the whole of "Himalaya proper from Sikkim to "Kashmir, and thirty-three in the "Karakoram system alone," according to the Survey of India.

The determination and staying power of the campaigners of 1930 stamp them as the type of mountaineers whom DOUGLAS FRESHFIELD had in mind when he predicted that "Kanchenjunga and its loftier rivals "will one day have a flag on their "summits." In 1929, and again this year, that peak with its storm troops of snow, sleet, cold and gale drove assailants down its flank. On the eve of Professor DYHRENFURTH'S advance it was said that he must have 100 per cent of good weather to plant his flag on Kanchenjunga. Experts declared that Everest was not harder to climb. The international expedition made no excuses for its failure to climb the second mountain in height, but the truth is that transportation difficulties were almost insuperable on account of bad weather, with the result that assaults from the higher camps had to be made when the monsoon was overdue.

Another season with an earlier and better start, and with a few days of still, fine weather for climbing, what triumphs may not be expected? This year has been memorable for graphic and moving narratives of mountaineering in the Himalayas, reported in the special correspondence of THE TIMES. Geologists and cartographers of the expedition are prepared to make valuable contributions to the world's knowledge of the great Asiatic ranges, and the motion-picture records should be vivid and complete.

ENGLISH STAGE CENSORSHIP.

News that the Lord Chamberlain has refused to grant a license for a public performance of "The Green Pastures" in England will cause surprise here. Yet perhaps it should not. Although most reviews of the printed form of the play were enthusiastic in the British press, a difficulty in the way of presentation was seen from the first. This lay not only in the religious ideas of untutored Negroes, but in the form and language of their expression by the playwright. There are two fundamental verbotens in the rules of English theatrical censorship. One is that the royal family must never be attacked. The other is that nothing which may be thought blasphemous can be permitted. One can imagine the Lord Chamberlain reading "Gangway for the Lord God Jehovah," or, later on, "This being God is not a bed of roses," shaking his head in sorrowful astonishment and exclaiming: "It isn't done, you know."

Of course, there is such a thing as a censor's eye and ear being too sensitive about blasphemy. Where none is intended, none need be attributed. If the Lord Chamberlain had seen the production of "The Green Pastures" in New York, and had noticed the entire simplicity and sincerity with which the play was given, every temptation to introduce burlesque or a touch of ribaldry being resisted, he might have formed a different judgment of its attitude toward religion. Being, in essence, a Negro miracle-play, as if dating from the Middle Ages, it seems not a little absurd to apply modern and realistic standards to "The Green Pastures." Yet if it had been allowed production in England, it could scarcely have scored so great a success there as it has here. For one thing, it would have been hard to get together in London a company of Negro men and women and children who could have played so "straight," and with such perfect decorum, as does the New York cast.

When the new Shakespeare Theatre is opened in London, it is to be hoped that the Lord Chamberlain will not order the passage stricken out which tells of the way in which the dying Falstaff "babbled o' green fields."

"UNIVERSALITY."

Mr. FRANCIS P. GARVAN has backed his "belief in universality" by seeking to put within reach of the general public valuable private art collections which he has turned over to Yale University. His expressed wish is that they will not be "hoarded in Yale's halls," but be sent out through the country to be seen of many. Moreover, as was announced by President ANGELL to the Yale alumni last week, Mr. GARVAN expects to establish an institute of American arts and crafts at Yale as a base for assembling still other collections and for their nation-wide distribution.

That this Garvan gift is both large and of thoroughly considered purpose is indicated by President ANGELL's reference to it as one of "supreme importance not only to Yale but to the entire country." The proposed foundation will make mobile what has already been given and incidentally provide for carrying to universities and high schools and clubs whatever else may be attracted from the walls of private residences, closed for many months of the year, and from places of storage. This sort of "extension" art education has been going forward for years, but on a small scale. In New York a special effort, now having direction from the Art Centre, has recently been made to carry art in its varied forms to the outlying communities of the city. But the difficulties of finding proper places for exhibits, together with the risks, are always great. With ample funds and more widely organized effort, these obstacles can be overcome. Yale may lead the way and demonstrate that art can be brought within the sight and appreciation of men, women and even children as is now done with books.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art in the first article of its creed expresses belief in the universality of the love of the beautiful:

> We believe that every human being is born with a potential love of beauty, and whether his capacity lies dormant or springs into activity depends largely upon his education.

What is needed is the means to make universal the education which will in turn lead to the corresponding activity. If Mr. GARVAN'S "art on wheels" is able to reach communities all the way across America, he will be as much of a pioneer in this field as those who traveled in covered wagons over the Oregon Trail were in theirs.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The Admirals Deserve This Defense. The defense of the Admirals marked one of the most telling points in Senator JOHNSON's attack on Secretary STIMSON's statement about the naval treaty last week. In fact, regardless of opinions as to the rightness or wrongness of the Admirals, it is hard not to respect the California Senator's spirited words in their behalf.

The Admirals who testified before the Senate committee spoke not at their own request but because they had been summoned. A few frankly favored the treaty; the majority criticized it. Whoever is familiar with official life knows that it took courage for the opponents to say candidly what they believed.

For expressing their honest opinions these gentlemen were rebuked by the Secretary of State from the sanctuary of a radio loud-speaker. They are not permitted to reply. Senator JOHNSON's warm words in their praise and defense are wholly proper, though spoken with a view to discrediting a treaty which should be ratified as soon as possible.

Advertising New York. Favored by geography, climate and good luck, New York City has long accepted unique eminence as a metropolis and done little by way of organized community advertising. Lately there has been a change. The Merchants' Association has devised a booklet about New York as "The Most Interesting Vacation City in America." Conventions are being lured to town. Among others whom this has impressed is WALTER PARKER of New Orleans, who is to make it the subject of a broadcast. He believes that New York has formally joined the rest of the American cities in boosting itself:

> It has begun to follow in the footsteps of big towns and little all over the United States—to take lessons from them in community advertising and to tell the world of its advantages and attractions.

This Southern observer heartily approves the tendency and cordially welcomes New York City into the advertising union. It has often been said that roaming New Yorkers nearly always exhort ambitious inlanders to stay where they are, implying that the "game" here is too fast for them. This advice has been noted as coming usually from metropolitans whose own feet followed the plow through the furrows of rural America.

New Yorkers have frequently found their city accused of arrogance. Now that we are advertising like the rest, perhaps a note of greater cordiality will come from others than the New Orleans man.

One Book at Several Prices. In the battle of the dollar books it seems odd that no one has suggested the possibility of peace by agreement. This would not take the form of a compromise price somewhere between the old levels and the new dollar level, or of a classification of books into dollar books and books better than that. It would be an arrangement by which the same book might sell for a dollar or for three times the price, according to the choice of the purchaser.

There is an analogy in the theatre, in the opera house and in the symphony halls, where the same play, the same opera and the same piece of BEETHOVEN may be seen and heard from a $7 seat orchestra or a $1.50 seat family circle. The essential enjoyment is the same at either price; the distinction is in the greater measure of comfort and prestige purchasable at the higher price.

In books the parallel would call for the publication of the same books in different editions at different prices. The type form would be the same, but in paper and binding there might be several styles from the traditional multiple-dollar form down to the dollar book. As a matter of fact, the practice has always obtained in the matter of de luxe editions, special paper editions, signed and numbered editions and the like.

That most Americans would buy the dollar book though they could afford the $3 book is by no means certain. It does not lie in the national temperament.

Household Help for Outdoor Use. To readers of the news from Russia it sometimes comes as a surprise to run across mention of domestic servants. In Moscow and Leningrad, for instance, the number of such household workers probably runs into several hundred thousand. They are cited as a separate classification in Soviet census returns. The puzzle is in the fact that a régime which has abolished all forms of exploitation—that is to say, all forms of hiring for wages by private employers—should tolerate the one form of wage-relationship which most strongly smacks of "class rule."

The fact is nevertheless there, and the formal explanation is that the money-relationship not having been abolished in Russia, any wage-earner in government employ is free to spend his earnings as he pleases. He may hire a cook or maid for his family without violating Communist principles, because he is not making use of the hired person to produce goods or services for sale.

The real reason why domestic servants are tolerated in Soviet Russia is the scarcity of food and commodities, which necessitates waiting in lines before the supply shops. "I spend half my time," one woman grumbles to THE TIMES correspondent, "in a Moscow queue, waiting in lines, what with clothes and shoes and food and all." For any bourgeois family now serving the Soviet Government in some form of professional capacity, the possession of a maid to stand in line often means the difference between food and want.

Another Vote Lost.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why should there be so much speculation about the causes for the overriding of President Hoover's veto of the pension bill? It seems to me that the causes are very evident. Unfortunately for the country, there appear to be very few Senators and Representatives who are great enough to refuse to take advantage of what they think is a chance to make political capital with the voters in their districts.

I believe, however, that they are mistaken in imagining that they have, by their action, made themselves solid at their next election. I know that one vote will never again be given to one of those men. And I am confident there are many thousands of other votes that will be affected in the same way.

The President's reasons for that veto were so well founded in common sense and justice that I am sure they were accepted by the country at large. And many of those men who placed their own interests before the interests of the country will find they have committed political hara-kiri.

THE BEACON.

Against the deep green copse I see
The white light of a dogwood tree,
A torch of bloom that beckons me.

Hip-high the bracken where I wade
Across the gaping of a glade
To gain this sanctuary-shade.

Before me thither will have come
The worshipful wild bee to hum
And sip in gay delirium.

And likewise there I shall descry
The mourning-cloak—that butterfly
Which wears a dusky twilight dye.

And haply, too, I shall behold
The lunar-moth its wings unfold—
Its frail wings disked with fairy gold.

And if, moreover, there should be
A vireo in the dogwood tree,
Ah, what an added ecstasy!

And I will join them all and slake
My thirst for loveliness, and make
Obeisance for white beauty's sake!

CLINTON SCOLLARD.

ANSWERING MR. ABBOTT.

His Criticism of Mr. Morrow Held to Be Not Well Founded.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Lawrence F. Abbott's criticism of Mr. Morrow's position on prohibition in his letter to THE TIMES of June 17 requires an answer. Mr. Abbott makes three points:

1. After saying that Mr. Morrow is "opposed to the return of the saloon," and that repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment "would restore the status quo ante, and wet States would undoubtedly permit the licensed saloon," Mr. Abbott asks: "Is it logical to denounce the saloon and in the same breath advocate permitting each State to decide whether it will have the saloon or not?"

The answer to this is twofold: In the first place, a man who holds it fundamental, as Mr. Morrow does, that each State should have the power to decide for itself how it shall deal with such a question as the control of drink may, with entire logical correctness, advocate the restoration of that power, even though he may think that it will be used in a way which he himself does not approve; and in the second place, to assume that all wet States—in other words, all States opposed to bone-dry prohibition—will permit the old-time licensed saloon is to make the entirely unwarranted assumption that the lessons of the past ten years, in Canada and Sweden and other countries, as well as in our own, will be completely ignored by the people and the Legislatures of the several States.

2. After pointing out that Mr. Morrow says that perhaps the greatest evil of prohibition is the widespread enmity toward the Federal Government which it has excited, Mr. Abbott charges him with committing a gross blunder from that point of view because he "favors the exercise of the Federal power to the nth degree in protecting the dry States from the wet States." Here Mr. Abbott overlooks the central fact in the whole situation. The enmity that Mr. Morrow deplores arises from resentment against Federal dictation in home concerns; if Federal activity in the matter took the shape of protecting each State in the exercise of its own will, instead of overriding that will by the attempted enforcement of a cast-iron decree embedded in the Federal Constitution, the Federal Government would have the moral support of good citizens throughout the country, the absence of which is the root of the existing horrible situation.

3. Mr. Abbott winds up with an appeal to Shakespeare. "There is good authority," he tells us, "for saying that, as wise men, we should 'rather bear those ills we have than fly to others that we know not of.'" No quotation could be more infelicitous. The ills connected with drink, so far from being unknown, are matter of familiar experience and common knowledge; and it was from those known ills that we attempted to escape when we rushed into the wild adventure of nation-wide, Constitution-bound, bone-dry prohibition. The time for quoting Hamlet's remark about flying to ills that we know not of was then, not now.

OUR DECADENT MALES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the newspapers are any criterion, the present day men and boys of New York City must be a pretty sorry lot. One can hardly pick up a New York paper—THE TIMES excepted—which does not contain a tirade against the men of that community, and if one reads in out-of-town newspapers any article particularly denunciatory of modern men it is sure to have a New York date line. Most of these articles are written by New York women.

Now I hold no brief for the New York man, and less for the New York young man and boy who is the butt for most of the harshest jokes against present-day youth, but I do say that if New York women and girls are the finest examples of womanhood to be found anywhere, as they themselves assert, it is strange that their fathers and husbands and brothers and sons should be so inferior to the males in all other sections of the country. What is it that makes the girl grow up into a charming young maiden and her brother into a week-chinned youth? Why is it that your young women maintain their charm and innocence in the midst of a harsh environment, while your young men become cake-eaters, weaklings or roustabouts? Again and again have the woman journalists of New York asserted this. "Give a dog a bad name and he will keep it" is as true today as when it was first written, and the males of New York City have a bad name throughout the country.

New York City can think of its young men and boys as it pleases, but the rest of the country, especially the West and South, still believes in the manliness of its sons. Not long ago one of the Manhattan woman journalists migrated to Southern California and attempted to "write down" the men of that spirited community. She was told to go back to New York where such writing was in style and doubtless appreciated.

Twenty years ago New York City was developing young men who compared more than favorably with these from any section of the country. The metropolitan district alone had athletes who held championships in almost every branch of sports. There was a vigor about the young men of New York City, whether in business or sports, which could hardly be duplicated anywhere in the country. Contrast this with today.

It seems to me that all that can be said against New York men and youths has already been said. For the sake of the many decent men and boys living in that city, it seems to me there should be an end to the hostile comments of the woman journalist against the males of their community. She is probably too typical of New York to be banned entirely, but her views need not be emphasized.

FOR TAX REFORM.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The conference called by the national taxation committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation, to meet in Chicago on June 25, may mean much to all our real estate people. If "behind the plan is the thought that it eventually would make it possible to shift from the general property tax to the income tax as the chief means of support for State and local governments," its purpose is great.

In the State of New York, as elsewhere, taxation based upon net income is of permanent interest to every inhabitant. The source from which our tax money comes has a bearing upon the welfare of our entire people. Upon that source depends much which makes for our hope or our despair.

With the immense wealth owned by our people, our taxes should always build and never destroy; they should always feed and never starve; they should always clothe and shelter and never drive our poor from their homes and compel them to get along as best they can.

Any subject so far-reaching in its effect should be treated so that all may have the greatest opportunity to secure the common necessaries of life without impoverishment. Much less should we use a method of taxation that ofttimes drives our people to commit misdemeanors and crimes in order to live.

We all desire a good government, and under our form of government it may be had. From childhood we are taught that each and every person is entitled to life and to property, but life always came first.

To have life, we must have the essentials of life, and those come from old mother earth. So long as this is true, why permit our home lands and our sustenance-producing lands to be taxed as they are at present?

Our Federal Constitution provides a better way. Its makers assumed that a normal person desires to be a "somebody" worth while; that he desires to support his family humanely; that he desires to be loyal to his government and to his Creator. Human nature has not changed. What they assumed we may assume. They gave their best for equality in taxation. But what was equality then is not equality now. It is our task to produce that equality in taxation upon the basis as set forth by our 1913 tax amendment "makers."

That Sixteenth Amendment is now the guide for the State as well as for the nation. It provides that net income from whatever source derived may be the basis, and that any sum thus collected may be apportioned as the State desires.

The State of New York is using this right by collecting and apportioning approximately 10 per cent of its revenue in that way. Under that same right, I believe that our State should collect and apportion 90 per cent of its revenues and thereby do away with our general property tax for both State and local purposes. This can be done easily.

With less than 2 per cent of our people owning 60 per cent of the wealth, and 98 per cent owning less than 40 per cent, is it not an injustice to tax that 98 per cent, or any part thereof, so that part is compelled to pay much of that which the 2 per cent should pay? Should family after family in New York State be driven from their homes by a general property tax and be compelled to say: "Fate, drop the curtain, I can lose no more"?

By making net income the basis of all our direct taxing in the State, this would not occur. Our people would have their farms, homes and shops taxed upon the same basis as all other investments are taxed. The environment thus made would enable our people to obtain life's necessaries so much the easier, and much suffering and crime would be averted. Let us watch this conference and hope that out of it may come much benefit to us all.

Costly Passport Photographs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed an article about the reduction of passport fees. It sounds too good to be true. Other passport details need to be cleaned up. I refer to the "gyp" photograph studios that are advertised by perambulating men with the gaudy signs.

I was told that the proper charge for passport photographs is 75 cents for the set, and I never paid more. But yesterday my two daughters needed photographs and went to a studio located on Wall Street, where they were charged $2 each. I called on the studio this morning and called attention to the excessive charge and was laughed at.

At the passport office I was told that they could do nothing and that all passport photographers were "gyps" with the exception of one who signed an agreement to charge 75 cents and whose name was posted.

If they can post the name of one who makes an honest charge, it would be just as easy to post the names of those who have been reported as overchargers. A little headwork between the city and Federal officials would soon free the financial district of the "gyp" studio.

Keep Traffic Moving.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES editorial "Parking Still Blocks Traffic" is surprisingly accurate in expressing the fundamentals of traffic relief, because an editor is not supposed to be a traffic expert. As a city planner, I have studied traffic and my conclusions are in agreement. Movement is the remedy for traffic congestion, notwithstanding the various laments of civic organizations which demand the privilege of parking. It is also a logical sequence that the greater the traffic density the greater the movement impetus in any traffic relief plan.

IN FRAUDULENT MARRIAGE.

Bayonne Woman Causes Arrest of Cuban Doctor, Then Drops Charges.

HAVANA, June 22 (AP).—Miss Shirley Baron of Bayonne, N. J., caused the arrest here last night of Dr. Nunez Carrion of Santiago de Cuba. She appeared before American Vice Consul Sydney G. Gest and alleged that the physician had induced her to go through a fraudulent marriage ceremony with him last Wednesday night. The police said Dr. Carrion admitted her charge, saying the ceremoney was performed in a cabaret where the party had been drinking, and he supposed she understood it was a "joke."

Miss Baron is a buyer of ladies' wear for a New York department store. She said tonight she would not prosecute the charges against Dr. Carrion but would leave sometime tomorrow by way of Key West for her home.

AIRPORTS NEED GRASS.

Naked Fields Result in Annoying Clouds of Dust.

Lack of grass on newly constructed airports is a handicap armed with many complications. Whenever the wind rises, in dry weather, clouds of dust fly across the field, obscuring the pilots' vision and causing very unpleasant conditions.

Airmen say the dust is ruinous to motors. It is also, at commercial fields, very bad for business. At the Grand Central Flying Field, formerly known as Holmes Airport, in Jackson Heights, L. I., conditions in dry, breezy weather become very bad. At such times a veritable sirocco sweeps across the field, carrying clouds of sand several hundred feet high, which give a realistic desertlike effect to the scene. On such days the "ballyhoo" man who announces dollar airplane rides to the customers would probably fare better had he a herd of camels to tout than a fleet of planes.

The Grand Central port is new, and it is the intention of its owners to grass-seed it within a year, though such lawnlike perfection as exists at Bolling Field, Anacostia, Md., cannot be expected for several years. The former port was but recently a swamp, which has been filled in.

ALCOHOL KILLS A BABY.

Two-Year-Old Drank Wine at a Wedding Feast.

Alcoholic poisoning was diagnosed as the cause of death of a baby girl in Szaszvar, a Hungarian village, according to late reports of the Pesti Naplo.

While the wedding feast of the sister of John Tilcser, a farmer, was in full swing, his little daughter, Mariska, aged 2, got hold of a bottle containing two liters of wine, and, unobserved by the celebrating crowd, managed to consume a large portion of the beverage. She died a few hours later.

BISHOP PARTRIDGE DIES IN KANSAS CITY

Head of West Missouri Diocese of Protestant Episcopal Church Was 73.

WAS FORMER MISSIONARY

He Served for Twelve Years at Muchang, China—A Native of New York City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 22 (AP).—The Right Rev. Sidney Catlin Partridge, Bishop of the West Missouri Diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church, for years a missionary in the Orient, died here today after several days' illness. He was 73 years old.

Bishop Partridge was born in New York City. He was graduated from Yale in 1880 and from the Berkeley Divinity School at Middletown, Conn., four years later. The latter institution awarded him a D. D. in 1900. After his ordination as a deacon in 1884 he went to Shanghai as a missionary and for three years taught in St. John's College there and served as chaplain of St. Mary's Hall. He had been advanced to the priesthood in 1885.

From 1887 to 1899 he was rector of Boone School and a missionary at Wu-chang, China. On Feb. 2, 1900, he was consecrated Bishop of Kyoto, Japan. On March 8, 1911, he was elected Bishop of West Missouri.

Bishop Partridge delivered the prayer on the opening day of the Republican National Convention at Kansas City in 1928.

The Bishop married twice. His first wife, who was Charlotte Irene Mills of Brooklyn, died in 1886, two years after their marriage. They had a daughter. In 1900 the Bishop married Agnes Simpson of San Francisco. A daughter was born to this marriage also.

MINISTER LEAPS TO DEATH FROM HOTEL

Throngs on Near-By Chicago Roofs, Watching Airplanes, See Mysterious Suicide.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—As a squadron of army airplanes from the war show circled tonight over the Loop, Clarence E. Singleton, 45 years old, a Baptist minister of Faribault, Minn., stood on the fire-escape landing on the thirteenth floor of the Y. M. C. A. Hotel in South Wabash Avenue, where he had occupied a room for three days.

Roofs of the adjacent buildings were filled with spectators. No one paid any attention to Singleton until someone shouted, "Look out!" He had leaped into space.

His body turned over and over, striking a girder half way down. It rebounded on a wire screening protecting a skylight, and thence capapulted to the ground. Singleton was dead when the police arrived.

In his room was evidence that he had been struggling with some problem of conduct. There were two entries in a notebook. The first note read:

"I have confessed doubt in my wife. We are all either lost or saved sinners."

The other read:

"I have come to Chicago to suffer for my wife and baby. I have neither made my body or soul, nor destroyed them. I will atone for them. I have lived two lives. I still have my Bible and Creator. I will give myself into His keeping."

The Rev. George W. Kehoe, pastor of the First Baptist Church of aFribault, whose assistant Singleton was, said over the telephone that he could offer no explanation for the minister's act.

"Mr. Singleton was highly respected in the community and I always regarded him as unusually happy and contented," he said.

Mr. Singleton was also employed as an instructor at the State School for the Deaf. That he contemplated returning to Faribault was indicated by a ticket for one-way passage from Chicago bought today.

Two, Just 5, Hold Him in Boat When He Faints in Heat.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., June 22 (Canadian Press).—Two boys who have just passed their fifth birthdays, Kenneth Patterson of Owen Sound and Freddie Esner of Toronto, saved a 200-pound man from drowning near here today.

J. Cameron, 70, had taken the youngsters out boating when he was overcome by the heat. He toppled over the stern of the boat with his arms dragging in the water. He did not fall clear out of the boat because each of the lads gripped a leg and hung on for dear life. For fifteen minutes they clung to their benefactor, screaming at the top of their lungs for help.

William Porter, paddling champion of Balmy Beach Canoe Club, Toronto, heard their cries and paddled out to complete the rescue.

JEWISH NATIONAL FUND UP.

Increase of $65,428 Over Last Year Is Reported.

CLEVELAND, June 22.—Great progress in the work of the Jewish National Fund of America, of which Emanuel Neumann is president, is described in the annual report, to be submitted to the annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America, which will open here next Sunday.

The period under review, covering activities from last Oct. 1 to May 30 this year, has been "the most successful in the annals of the Jewish National Fund of America," the report states, listing the various activities carried on in behalf of the Palestine land fund in all parts of the United States.

The increased activities, notwithstanding the fact that they coincided with the period of economic depression in the United States and the tragic events in Palestine last August, resulted in an increase in the fund's income of $65,428.92 in comparison with the receipts for a similar period last year.

Notable efforts were undertaken on behalf of the fund in Michigan, where a $30,000 quota has been accepted at a State conference; in Texas, where a quota of $100,000 was accepted for establishing a "Nachlath Texas"; in Cleveland where a colony is being planned; the renewal of efforts in the Middle West and Southwest under the leadership of Professor Gustave Klausner, and the three-day bazaar held in Baltimore with the participation of fifty organizations.

Revenue from bequests totaled $24,303.30, as compared with $16,480 for the same period last year. Among the bequests received during this period were $10,700 from the estate of Dr. Hirsh Gordon Kliatschco, $5,098.99 from the estate of Nathan Rosenberg of San Francisco and a first payment of $5,000 from the estate of Herman Conheim of New York.

SCORE LOVESTONE WING.

Communists Say "Renegade" Section Has No National Standing.

Another attack on the "Lovestone section" of the Communist party was made during the second day of the Communist party convention yesterday in Irving Plaza Hall, Fifteenth Street and Irving Plaza. The report of the Central Control Commission, which supervises disciplinary matters within the party, declared:

"While these renegades had tried to split the party, the fact that they were unable to do so is shown in that during the period from March, 1929, only 220 were expelled for this organized opportunism. The fact that 137 of these were in New York shows that Lovestonism has little organization in the country anywhere."

TRUSTEE OF ESTATE VICTOR IN TEST CASE

LIMITS PERSONAL LIABILITY

Holds Lathers's Heirs, Not O'Gorman, Should Pay $68,384 Verdict for Injuries to Tenants.

In the first decision of the kind in this State, Surrogate Slater of Westchester County has decided that a trustee managing realty for an estate is entitled to be reimbursed for money he was compelled to pay personally because of injuries to persons on the property under his control, in which it appeared that he was in no way responsible and had not violated his trust.

By the ruling Richard O'Gorman, a lawyer, of 51 Chambers Street, as surviving trustee under the will of Richard Lathers, will recover from the Lathers estate $68,384 he paid out of his own pocket to discharge judgments against him obtained by Margaret Sitzler, known as Margaret Lee, an actress, and by David Miller for injuries received in a fire in the two old-law tenement houses known as the Princeton Apartments at 322-328 West Fifty-seventh Street, adjoining the former West Side Y. M. C. A. Building, on March 26, 1923. The judgments amounted to $10,000 additional, but this sum was covered by an insurance policy.

The unusual nature of the case was disclosed in the brief of Harold R. Medina, Henry B. Hammond, Thomas H. O'Gorman and Rufus C. Van Aken, attorneys for Mr. O'Gorman on his application to Surrogate Slater for reimbursement of the money.

Agent Was Put in Charge.

Richard Lathers died in 1903, leaving a will naming three executors, one of whom was Mr. O'Gorman. They were to hold his realty in trust during the lifetime of his wife and children. One of the executors, Richard Lathers Jr., his son, was directed to take charge of his country and city real estate. The property included the Princeton apartments, which were sold by the executors in 1907. In 1917 the executors were compelled to foreclose the mortgage and took back the apartments. Richard Lathers Jr. took over the management, Mr. O'Gorman merely attending to legal details.

Although Mr. O'Gorman was not consulted concerning the property, his attorneys said that he told the real estate agent who was put in charge that he understood tenants in the Princeton apartments were taking roomers, and instructed him to see that the fire law was complied with. The buildings were visited by Tenement House Department inspectors and no violations were on file against the premises at the time of the fire.

The Sitzler and Miller suits were brought against Mr. Lathers and Mr. O'Gorman as trustees but the complaints were dismissed on the ground that the law did not permit actions for personal injuries against trustees as such, and new suits were then filed against them as individuals. The complaints were again dismissed but the Appellate Division in Brooklyn ordered a new trial. Before this could be had Mr. Lathers died, leaving as the sole defendant Mr. O'Gorman.

On the second trial in June, 1928, a verdict for $12,000 was returned for Miller and of $60,000 for Miss Sitzler. They were finally affirmed by the Court of Appeals "on the ground that by reason of the use of the premises the passage to the fire escape was not free and unobstructed.

Surrogate Slater's Opinion.

After paying the judgments Mr. O'Gorman applied to Surrogate Slater for the reimbursement of $13,676 from each of five trusts in the estate. Surrogate Slater's opinion commented on the "dearth of reported decisions in this State upholding the right of trustees to reimbursement and indemnity following tort judgments," and said, "It has fallen to this court, in the first instance, to shape and develop the law of this State with regard to this complex question."

The Surrogate said he believed the tests as to the right of payment was that "where the trustee is without personal fault he is entitled to reimbursement, and it is only equitable that the trust estate should bear the loss."

The Surrogate then ruled that each of the trusts must pay its proportionate share of the $68,384 paid by Mr. O'Gorman.

Commenting on the unusual nature of the case, Mr. Medina said:

"It is most unusual to find a question which must have arisen many times in a most substantial way to have remained undetermined by the New York courts. Two such cases were found in the English decisions."

Mr. Medina pointed out that by the ruling of Surrogate Slater it is now the law that "trustees may employ competent and qualified agents to be in active charge of property and that so long as reasonable care is exercised in both the choice and supervision of the agent the trustee is not answerable for any loss occasioned by the negligence or dishonesty of the former."

YEAR'S AUTO DEATHS 466 IN CONNECTICUT

Those Injured Increased in 1929 to 13,607 and Property Loss to $3,288,510.

Special to the New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 22.—Intensive action to reduce automobile accidents, based on the information concerned with known causes, is recommended by Miss Ethel Usher, statistician of the State Department of Motor Vehicles, in an annual review of Connecticut accident and automobile statistics.

Study of records gathered in the last six years, she states, reveals a decided similarity in the causes of accidents, the number of accidents accredited to each cause and the conditions and circumstances surrounding them. Emphasis must be upon measures designed to reduce the known causes, she deduces.

A reduction in accidents is reported for 1929. The decrease was about 3 per cent, although there were increases of 8 per cent in registered cars, 12 per cent in licensed operators and 18 per cent in the use of motor vehicles on highways.

The same number of deaths, 466, was reported for last year as in 1928. The number of persons injured increased by about 6 per cent to 13,607 and the estimated amount of property damage increased more than 409,000, to a new high total of $3,288,510.

In spite of the decrease in accidents, a larger number of cars than ever was in accidents because collisions involving more than two cars were frequent in 1929. These multiple car accidents also account for an increase in the number of operators involved.

Inattention, reckless driving, failure to grant right of way, skidding, operating too fast for conditions, operating on the wrong side of the road, carelessness and driving while intoxicated were the leading causes of accidents in 1929. All traffic participants appear to be careless. The record of adult pedestrians was found particularly bad, in view of the fact that other groups were able to achieve reductions in "responsibility" for accidents.

RECALL PETITION IS VALID.

Detroit Officials Check Names on Petition Against Mayor.

DETROIT, June 22 (AP).—Employes of the Election Commission today completed checking signatures on the petition to recall Mayor Charles Bowles. They found 93,276 valid signatures of registered voters, or 3,596 more than the number needed to force a recall election.

There is still a possibility, however, that court action may prevent a vote. Supporters of Mayor Bowles yesterday obtained a temporary restraining order, forbidding City Clerk Richard Reading to set a date for the election. Tomorrow attorneys for the Mayor will go before Judge Arthur Webster, of the Circuit Court, asking a permanent injunction on ground that taxpayers' money would be expended for the election.

Leaders of the recall movement also will ask an injunction to prevent the Mayor and his supporters from using the taxpayers' money in their effort to prevent the recall election.

Pecans, Spanish walnuts, old as they are, are still bearing their rich, healthful fruits. Why not likewise men and women, unworn by age and heart, young and fresh, still bearers of the ripened fruit of experience and wisdom, to enrich and bless the world and to make life easier for those who come after them? We must not live altogether in the past, but strive heartily and constantly to shed around us for the younger set, a golden haze of hope to mark their path into happy new years.

B. M. T. IS SKEPTICAL OF CITY OPERATION

TEST LIKELY TOMORROW

Price City Is Ready to Pay Will Indicate Definitely Its Real Intentions.

WIDE VALUATION SPREAD

Company's Figures Are $70,000,000 Higher Than Those Worked Out by Municipal Experts.

Whether the city really intends to operate independently its $1,500,000,000 subway system now under construction and in the blue print stage will have an important bearing on the sum which it is willing to pay for the B. M. T. rapid transit properties which it now seeks to merge with its own lines in a unification plan, it was predicted yesterday.

Mayor Walker and John H. Delaney, chairman of the Board of Transportation, have indicated the city's willingness to embark upon municipal operation, but traction officials, and particularly those of the B. M. T. have let it be known unofficially that they are confident that no such program will be attempted.

Some inkling of the city's intention is expected to develop tomorrow at the third conference to be held among Mayor Walker, experts of the city's finance department and members of the Transit Commission and Board of Transportation, who will have before them a summary of valuations of B. M. T. properties, prepared by company, city and commission experts. The summary will show a "spread" of at least $70,000,000 between the city's minimum figures and the company's maximum valuations.

Figures applicable to the company's subway lines, depending on the particular recapture basis chosen, show a "spread" of some $10,000,000. In the case of the elevated lines there is a difference of some $52,000,000, with both the company and the city figuring on the basis of reproduction cost less depreciation. A $10,000,000 difference exists between city and company figures with respect to the company's power plant. The elevated lines and the power plant are not recapturable and must be acquired either by negotiation or condemnation proceedings.

Mayor's Advisers Differ.

It is known that considerable difference of opinion exists among Mayor Walker's transit advisers regarding the valuation tabulations. Samuel Untermyer, special counsel for the Transit Commission, adheres to his original contention that the company's elevated lines constitute an obsolete form of transportation, not to be valued at reproduction prices and, least of all, on the company's reproduction theory, which rests upon present real estate and material values. Mr. Untermyer has also pointed out to the conference that the law under which unification is authorized fixes reproduction cost as a maximum figure.

It is his belief that the B. M. T. is asking more than $100,000,000 in excess of the real worth of its properties. The majority of Mayor Walker's advisers, however, do not share this belief and hold that the accomplishment of unification is of sufficient importance to warrant some concessions to the company's demands, provided they are not exorbitant and do not imperil the chances of operating a unified system for a 5-cent fare.

The B. M. T.'s confidence that the city does not really intend to go into municipal operation is based upon at least two factors. The principal one is its belief that city transit experts do not seriously hope to operate a municipal system and still preserve a nickel fare in view of legislative restrictions requiring operation to be self-sustaining after the first three years. The second is the belief that no political administration will take upon its shoulders, except as a last desperate resort, the responsibility for human safety involved in so tremendous an enterprise.

Holds City Operation Feasible.

Mr. Delaney has worked out a plan of municipal operation, however, and is still building up an operating staff. The new Eighth Avenue line will be ready to operate next year and additional units of the new subway will reach the operating stage at short intervals thereafter. If unification has not been achieved by that time the city will have its choice between municipal operation or placing the lines under the same sort of lease-contract operation as now exists in the case of B. M. T. and Interborough subways which the city originally consructed. Mayor Walker and his advisers conceded that such a course, in view of past experience with the companies, contains strong elements of political danger.

Municipal operation on a 5-cent fare is entirely practicable, Mr. Delaney believes. It is understood that he has convinced Mayor Walker that this is so. Nevertheless, those who have observed the Mayor's attitude during the past three years, when unified legislation was vainly sought at Albany, do not expect him to ignore the part which the 5-cent fare issue has played in the past and may play in the future.

SPEAKS AT HILL SCHOOL.

Dr. Coffin Gives Baccalaureate—Cornerstone Laying Today.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., June 22.—The Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin of New York preached the baccalaureate sermon this morning to the graduating class of the Hill School, which includes sixty-six members.

Commencement exercises will take place in Memorial Hall, with the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman of New York as the speaker.

French Naval Aviator Breaks Four Records in Flying Boat

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 22.—Lieutenant Paris of the French naval aviation section had broken four world's records for seaplanes when he came down in his flying boat this morning at St. Laurent de la Salanque after 20 hours and 20 minutes in the air. He had covered 2,853 kilometers (1,771.7 miles) over a closed circuit and set the following records:

Carrying a load of 1,100 pounds: Distance—the former mark of 2,525 kilometers was established by the Americans, Connell and Roodd in August, 1927.

With a 2,200-pound load: Speed record, with an average of 147 kilometers hourly—the former record of 130 kilometers hourly was established by the Americans Corton and Boatswain in July, 1928; distance—the former record of 2,150 kilometers was established by Corton and Boatswain in July, 1928; endurance—the former record of 17 hours and 55 minutes was established by the Americans Soucek and Maxson in May, 1928.

A. P. CHOATE DEAD; HAD LOST FORTUNE

Former Wall Street Broker Dies in Bellevue of Starvation and Injuries.

BEGAN AS NEWSPAPER MAN

Worth More Than a Million at One Time—Had Interests in Central America and Europe.

Arthur P. Choate, a Wall Street speculator whose fortune had apparently melted away in recent years, died on Saturday night in Bellevue Hospital, where he became a patient on June 15, after being removed from a rooming house at 144 East Fifty-fifth Street, suffering from senility and starvation, and the effects of a fall downstairs that fractured his skull and two ribs.

TORONTO, June 22. — Arrangements were being made today for the funeral of Mr. Choate in Peterboro, Ont. It probably will take place on Tuesday.

Mr. Choate was born in Warsaw, Ont., near Peterboro, sixty-eight years ago. He was the son of the late Thomas George Choate, who carried on a milling and furniture manufacturing business and at one time was warden of Peterboro County. He entered the newspaper field as a reporter on The Peterboro Review and later became financial editor of The Toronto World and of The Mail and Empire.

In stock market operations, he was remarkably successful and his coups, particularly in railway stocks, brought him a fortune considerably in excess of a million dollars before he retired. For a quarter of a century or more, he was active in financial and industrial operations, one of his important ventures having been a fruit enterprise in Central America. He also had European interests and lived for some time in England.

Mr. Choate returned to Peterboro, where he purchased a home and lived for several years, but on the death of his parents sold this property and again engaged in Wall Street operations. In recent years his ventures were attended by varying success, but latterly he had suffered heavy losses.

Mr. Choate is survived by a sister, Mrs. William Payne of Peterboro, and by many relatives in Peterboro County, Toronto and Montreal.

DISCOUNTS KENLON RUMOR.

Fire Chief's Doctor Doubts He or Martin Will Quit This Summer.

Reports that Fire Chief John Kenlon and Assistant Fire Chief Joseph B. Martin intend to retire from duty this Summer because of poor health were discounted last night by Dr. Herman L. Reis, who has been the personal physician of Chief Kenlon.

"There have been similar rumors from time to time," Dr. Reis said, "but so far as I know neither Chief Kenlon nor Assistant Chief Martin has any definite intention of getting out."

Report had it that Chief Kenlon was too ill to continue on active service, but Dr. Reis, who examined him on Friday denied this. Dr. Harry Archer, who has been Mr. Martin's physician, was out of town last night.

SCOTS TO HONOR BURNS.

Memorial Exercises Will Be Held in Central Park Saturday.

More than forty Scotch organizations will assemble at the Mall in Central Park Saturday afternoon to participate in the annual memorial exercises in honor of Robert Burns. The 1,200 representatives of the participating organizations will march to the Mall from the New York Caledonian Club, Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, dressed in kilts and accompanied by bagpipers.

The program, which will begin at 3:30, will include pipes, brass bands and singing, all the selections being from Burns's songs and marches. Former Governor Harry A. Moore of New Jersey will deliver an address. John Knox will be the conductor, Miss Mary Stuart, Scotch soprano, will sing in costume, and there will be choral singing by the Select Scottish Choir of Greater New York.

GIRL CHAMPION SPELLER.

Margaret Brown Will Represent Putnam County at Syracuse Bee.

Special to The New York Times.

GARRISON, N. Y., June 22.—Putnam County school authorities announced today that Margaret Brown of Brewster, obtaining 100 per cent, is the champion speller of the county's school children.

In a contest in which thirty pupils were entered she stood first. But five students tied for second place. These were Mildred Baker, William Larkin, Joan Fenaughty and Fred Goosen of Brewster and Donald Miller of Mahopac, all receiving 99 per cent.

Miss Brown will represent the county at the spelling bee at the State Fair in Syracuse early in September. A further test will have to be made to determine her alternate.

FRENCH LINE ORDERS SHIP 991 FEET LONG

SHARPENS THE RIVALRY

Americans, British, Germans and Italians Also Bidding for the North Atlantic Trade.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 22.—Orders have been placed by the French Line for the building of a new giant Atlantic liner with the St. Nazaire Shipbuilding Works, where a slip of the large dimensions required has been under construction for some time.

The new liner is to be over 60,000 tons displacement and will be 991 feet long and with a beam of 110 feet. Her turbines will produce 120,000 horsepower and her speed will be 28 knots.

It is hoped that the new vessel will be commissioned by April, 1933.

Announcement of plans for a new super-liner to replace the Ile de France as flagship of the French Line's fleet has been expected for several months in shipping circles, although there has been much curiosity about its dimensions and other details.

With the launching last April of the 40,000-ton Atlantique, destined for the French line's service to South America, the shipyards at St. Nazaire were freed for the laying of the keel of the new giant of the seas.

The announcement of the French Line's plans marks a new stage in the international rivalry for the transportation supremacy on the North Atlantic, in which the appearance of the Bremen and the Europa was the most recent development.

The White Star Line's Oceanic, which is being built in the yards of Harland & Wolff at Belfast, is designed to eclipse the German giants. She is to cost about $25,000,000 and will be ready for sailing in 1932, the first 1,000-foot liner. The Cunard Line has been reported as planning two ships even larger than the Oceanic.

The United States Lines have also committed themselves to plans for two super-liners to run with the Leviathan and to surpass in speed and luxury anything now afloat, while each of the three Italian lines operating out of New York expects to build a huge motorship capable of making the run between here and Naples in six and a half days.

PARACHUTE FAILS MAN AS CROWD LOOKS ON

Jumper Is Seriously Hurt at Barren Island When Device Only Partially Opens.

Harold Hardy, 25 years old, a parachute jumper, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon at the Barren Island airport when a parachute in which he leaped at a height of 3,000 feet failed to function properly. He landed on his back with only the partially opened parachute to break his fall. He was taken to Unity Hospital, 1,545 St. John's Place, Brooklyn, suffering from internal injuries. Hardy's home is at 1,530 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx.

A crowd of nearly a thousand persons saw the accident. Dr. A. Dankberg of Unity Hospital gave the injured jumper first-aid and had him taken to the hospital, where last night it was said that his chances for recovery were fairly good.

Hardy went up in a monoplane, owned and piloted by his friend, George Herman. When he leaped the parachute failed to respond immediately to the rip cord. As the watchers on the ground gasped, the jumper struggled to get the device open, and it partially opened when 700 feet from the ground.

Detective Cross of Vanderveer Park Precinct was assigned to investigate the cause of the accident. He called at the airport last night and claimed Hardy's parachute, which is being held for an examination today by officials of the Aeronautical Division of the Department of Commerce.

LAW THREAT SHUTS MOVIES.

Houses in Mississippi Close on Sunday After Suit.

NATCHEZ, Miss, June 22 (AP).—Under an ouster threat, movie theatres in Mississippi today observed the Sunday blue laws and canceled performances scheduled.

The closing orders were given out from the New Orleans headquarters of the Publix Theatres Company, Inc., after a suit had been filed here yesterday by Attorney General George T. Mitchell, seeking to oust the chain of theatres from Mississippi on the ground of alleged "persistent violation" of the Mississippi Sunday closing laws. The movies had been operated here after church hours for the past two Sundays.

Dan Burgum, local manager of the Publix Theatre at Greenville, who last Monday paid court fines assessed for the Sunday violations and announced that the house there would be operated again, said today after the suit had been filed that the Sunday shows were called off. Shows were canceled also at Biloxi, where they have been operated for a year after paying a few fines, and at Vicksburg.

HOSIERY MEN TO MEET.

Group at Philadelphia Will Discuss Slack-Time Problem.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 22.—One hundred delegates to the annual convention of the American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers, opening here tomorrow, will consider how best to meet conditions growing out of the present slack time in the silk stocking industry and try to prevent the overdevelopment of the industry.

Since the present national contract between the union and the employers expires in September, the convention is expected to authorize its officers to negotiate a new contract.

Union officials disclosed that plans were under consideration which if adopted would give all the workers in the industry some employment, even if on drastically reduced schedules, while at the same time it would enable manufacturers to economize without cutting wages.

New Zoo Elephant Steals Thunder and Peanuts From Peter the Great Simply by Acting Cute

Peter the Great passed an unhappy Sunday face to face with the certainty that his declining years are to be spent in penury. Peter is, of course, the statuesque hippopotamus in the Bronx Zoo. Long ago he lost his figure. Yesterday even food was disappearing.

The answer to the riddle that confronted Peter and that likewise confronted Head Keeper John Toomey, was Runga, the elephant. Runga arrived at the Zoo last week, having been escorted thither and duly donated by Commander George M. Dyott. He (the elephant) is small and thus is of an appealing nature. Elephants are inclined to be ponderous, but not Runga. He weighs only 700 pounds and is just fifty-three inches high.

At all events, the newest addition to the elephant house was put in a cage just across the hallway from Peter the Great. Peter was not impressed at first, but he reckoned without human nature. He did not realize that the long lines of peanut owners who formerly had stopped before him now would cross the corridor. He did not think that his public would forget. But he was wrong.

So it was that yesterday he sat alone. Ordinarily on a hot Sunday he would have lain in his tank, head out of water and mouth open to show a receptive mood. He tried that earlier in the morning, but no one noticed. He was just a bump on the surface, merely a detached head. Runga, across the way, was cute. He accepted peanuts coyly, with obvious pleasure, with a manner that plainly showed that the givers of peanuts were gentlemen and ladies all. He bowed and he scraped.

Peter stood it until afternoon and then, when he saw he was getting nowhere, decided to show himself. He left the cool of the water for the heat of land. He parked all his tons just back of the front bars, and he opened his mouth. But the public seemed a little bored and continued to lavish peanuts on Runga.

Late last night Peter was still trying to figure it out. Something was obviously wrong, but he did not know what. His soliloquy was like Hamlet's, only more impressive.

SOCIALISTS DRAFT STATE PLATFORM

CONVENTION ON JULY 19

Committee Scores Governor's Policies—Would Provide Electricity at Cost to Public.

An outline of the platform to be presented at the biennial Socialist convention at Schenectady, N. Y., on July 19 and 20, was discussed by the State executive committee, which met yesterday at the People's House, 7 East Fifteenth Street.

The first draft of the platform, which includes a severe criticism of Governor Roosevelt, was prepared by a committee including Morris Hillquit, Norman Thomas, Harry W. Laidler and Louis Waldman. The conference was attended also by Herbert M. Merrill, New York State secretary of the Socialist party. Mr. Merrill announced that the Socialists would stress two general issues as the most vital: Unemployment and social service, and water power and public utilities. Discussing the latter, Mr. Merrill said that the Socialists would take issue with Governor Roosevelt and with the Republican party.

"Each time we Socialists write a platform on water power, the Governor learns something," he said. "The development of Governor Roosevelt's so-called power program can be traced to the Socialist platforms. In taking our program piecemeal, he has given the appearance of progressivism. Actually, his program falls far short of any comprehensive scheme for using water power for the public good. The Governor now favors State ownership and development of water power for the production of electricity. He stops short at State distribution. That is where the Socialist platform will differ. We will favor State ownership of power sites, State development and State distribution of electricity to the consumers at cost. Mr. Roosevelt would have the State lease its power to private distributing companies. In our campaign we will show that the gains of public ownership and development would be dissipated by private distribution, such as the Governor favors."

Charging that there is a "working agreement, if not total subservience, to Tammany Hall," Mr. Merrill said that Governor Roosevelt will be sharply held to task at the convention. "Governor Roosevelt," he said, "has been compelled by his party connections and his political ambition at every point to give Tammany what it wanted. He has appointed machine candidates for every important office, including even the judiciary. He has investigated every possible case of Republican dereliction up-State, but has steadily ignored all requests for investigation of the most specific and direct charges against the Tammany-Cooey ring in New York City. He has vetoed laws looking to more honest elections and a fairer apportionment of legislative districts.

"To please his machine allies he vetoed a law forbidding in the future such a salary grab as disgraced the Walker Administration, thus encouraging Tommany to make another brazen raid on the public treasury to the extent of $500,000 annually."

The proposed platform will call for unemployment insurance and for a thorough revision of the old-age pension act passed at the last session of the Legislature.

WAGNER BILL KNIFED, LA GUARDIA ASSERTS

House Committee Destroyed Effectiveness of Employment Measure, Says New Yorker.

HE CALLS ON HOUSE TO ACT

Minority Report Urges Passage of Public Works Planning Bill as the Senate Adopted It.

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Charging that the effectiveness of Senator Wagner's bill to provide advance planning and regulation of public works to prevent unemployment during business depression was destroyed by the House Judiciary Committee, of which he is a member, Representative F. H. La Guardia, in a minority report made public today, criticized the committee's action and urged enactment of the measure in the form in which it passed the Senate. He also deplored the failure of action on Senator Wagner's national employment agency bill.

"It is discouraging to be compelled to observe the insufficient thought and practically no action taken by Congress to meet the unemployment situation," Representative La Guardia said. "It is necessary to provide ways and means to meet the unemployment situation in this country before we are confronted with a serious crisis.

"I deplore the action of my committee in eliminating from the Wagner advance planning bill sections which are necessary and vital to make the plan effective. There can be no reason for Congress to fail to act on the national employment bill.

"While I admit that these bills in and of themselves will not solve the problem, they are the necessary steps to an effective and constructive solution of our unemployment problem. There is nothing before Congress of greater importance.

"National legislators must have vision to see ahead. One who does must contemplate with horror what will happen if we fail to provide by uniform labor laws a shorter working day and a five-day week and legislation for unemployment, child labor and old-age pensions.

"I expect to devote the greater part of my energies to bringing about constructive legislation to meet changed conditions in industry and commerce. No one desires to stop progress. On the other hand, we must so change labor conditions as to give labor an equal benefit of improved methods of production in the mechanical age in which we are living."

GAS FROM STILL KILLS 3.

Parents of Eight Children and Friend Die in Newport (Ky.) Home.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, June 22.—Eight children, ranging in age from 15 months to 15 years, are orphans today because of the death of their father and mother from fumes which escaped from an unlighted gas jet under a 500-gallon still in the basement of the family home at Newport, Ky. A friend visiting the home also was killed.

The dead were August Remenosky, 39, his wife, Mathilda, 38, and Anthony Sendelbach.

Remenosky had the still in an air-tight concrete room. Neighbors reported that he had been out of work for two months. He was an expert brass finisher.

Police found the Remenoskys and Sendelbach dead. Sendelbach's hand clutched a gas valve which he had succeeded in closing. This saved the children upstairs.

VAUSE IS EXPECTED TO GO ON THE STAND

Counsel Relies on His Appearing at Trial, Which Will Be Resumed Wednesday.

EX-JUDGE IS NOW RESTING

Cheered by Rosenbluth Ruling—Perlman Plans Long Cross-Examination of Cruso.

If his health continues to improve, former Kings County Judge W. Bernard Vause is expected to take the witness stand in his own defense in the trial, which is scheduled to be resumed on Wednesday before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe.

Under the mental strain which he said resulted from the publicity in connection with the charges that he was guilty of mail fraud and conspiracy in the operations of the now defunct Columbia Finance Corporation, he appeared to be near collapse at sessions of the trial last week.

Nathan D. Perlman, defense counsel, has placed his reliance upon Mr. Vause's ability to draw a convincing word picture on the stand. The condition of the ex-jurist had handicapped him in setting forth his side of the case, he held.

Mr. Vause's brother Louis and the five other defendants are hopeful that the improved health will enable him, as a key witness, to furnish testimony impressively contradictory to much that has been presented in the investigations conducted by District Attorney Crain and United States Attorney Tuttle.

The decision Saturday of Magistrate Abraham Rosenbluth in Tombs Court on the charge that Judge Vause had accepted free passage to Europe on the United States Lines is understood to have relieved the mental strain of Mr. Vause, who is now resting in seclusion. Magistrate Rosenbluth dismissed the charge that he had violated the State Constitution.

When the trial is resumed Wednesday morning, Mr. Perlman announced, he would cross-examine at length Solomon Cruso, former president of the Columbia Finance Corporation. Cruso has admitted on the witness stand that he has been a perjurer and has violated the law in other matters.

ATTACKS INEQUALITIES IN CITY SALARY RISES

Allen Says $519,000 Increase Could Buy Five Playgrounds or Help the Underpaid.

The $519,000 salary increases for higher city officials, voted recently by the Board of Estimate and in which the Board of Aldermen is expected to concur tomorrow, were criticized again yesterday by William H. Allen, director of the Institute for Public Service. Mr. Allen declared that this amount of money would provide increases for thousands of poorly paid civil service employes, supply enough teachers for backward children, or buy five playgrounds.

"Part-time commissioners will receive increases of $5,000, more than full-time heads of branch libraries receive," he said. "Park Commissioner Herrick, who practices law as do many others, will get $15,000, while the full-time director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art gets for his rare training and capacity but $7,500. The Markets Commissioner, who has not been able to stamp out graft, waste and incompetence, will get $8,250 more than the executive director of the Museum of Natural History. The Controller's stenographer will get more than the chief of his bureau of municipal investigation and statistics, who, if supported, could have been saving the taxpayers $50,000,000 a year.

"The Mayor's secretary, within two months of his appointment to represent Tammany Hall at City Hall, will get almost $10,000 more than the director of civil service examinations for the city. Within two months after his appointment to a new post, Tax Commissioner Patten will get a $2,000 increase and a salary of $11,000. Incidentally, his salary is almost four times that of the chief of branch libraries for Queens, with its population of over one million.

"These pay increase show that instead of uprooting the weeds which Chairman Curley, of the aldermanic committee, said were in every garden, the city administration is specially cultivating weeds."

COPELAND AND WAGNER TO ADDRESS TAMMANY

Gov. Roosevelt Will Be Away and Unable to Attend July 4 Celebration Here.

Governor Roosevelt will not attend the annual Fourth of July celebration of Tammany Hall this year, in spite of his previously announced acceptance of the Wigwam's invitation to make one of the "long speeches" this year, it was announced yesterday by John R. Voorhis, 101-year-old Grand Sachem, and Surrogate James A. Foley, a member of the Board of Sachems of Tammany.

Mr. Voorhis said that the Governor's prior acceptance of the invitation had failed to take into consideration the fact that the annual conference of Governors would be held at Salt Lake City, Utah, June 30, July 1 and July 2, thus not permitting him to get back to New York in time for the Independence Day observance.

According to the rearranged schedule announced by Mr. Voorhis, the two "long speeches" will be delivered by Senators Royal S. Copeland and Robert F. Wagner.

Several other speakers remain to be announced. A grand opera singer is to sing some solos and there will be other music. The exercises, to be held in the main auditorium of the Wigwam in Fourteenth Street, will be open to the public, and will be broadcast over station WNYC. Loud speakers will carry the proceedings to the expected overflow crowds in Union Square Park.

This year's celebration will mark the 141st consecutive observance of the Tammany Society. Last year Governor Roosevelt was one of the speakers, and the year previously Governor Alfred E. Smith, who had just been nominated by the Democratic party as its candidate for President, was the orator.

Mr. Rogers Finds It Difficult To Get Even Cheap Money Now

To the Editor of The New York Times:

CHICAGO, Ill., June 22.—What's become of the old fashioned fellow that over in the left hand corner of the paper every day used to say, "Don't sell America short"?

All the financial papers are talking about how cheap money is now, with the Federal Reserve banks about two and a half per cent. I don't see why they don't say it's half of one per cent, for there is no way getting any of it, anyway.

I'll bet Mellon would have trouble digging up enough collateral for a present day loan. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

GRAND JURY TO RULE ON WALSH THIS WEEK

Expected to Hand Up Findings in Appeals Board Inquiry, as He Refuses to Appear.

HEARINGS END THURSDAY

Crain Will Seek Tomorrow to Get Federal Testimony on $30,000 Loan Charge.

Despite the continued refusal of William E. Walsh to appear before the New York County grand jury in its investigation of the Board of Standards and Appeals, of which he is chairman, the jurors are expected to take action tomorrow or next Thursday. These two days have been reserved for the concluding testimony.

Mr. Walsh continued yesterday, as far as could be learned, to ignore the request of District Attorney Crain that he waive immunity and give his version of a transaction in which he is alleged to have received $30,000 from John A. McCarthy, a Bronx politician and dealer in building materials. The District Attorney announced that he would move before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe tomorrow to be permitted to examine the minutes of the Federal grand jury in its investigation into the same charges.

If the petition is granted the testimony will be turned over to the county grand jury for consideration. According to United States Attorney Tuttle, the $30,000 was received at a time when McCarthy had a petition before the appeals body and was with Logan & Bryan, brokers, of placed in its entirety in an account 42 Broadway.

Efforts to bring Mr. McCarthy before the county grand jury have failed so far. Mr. Tuttle's investigators found him in the Presbyterian Hospital and questioned him there. It was not learned yesterday whether there was any prospect of his being in good enough health to appear tomorrow or Thursday. A subpoena has been issued for him.

Another angle of the investigation still to be looked into by the jurors is the allegation that Mr. Walsh has occupied an apartment at 25 East Eighty-sixth Street for the past three and a half years at a rental of $1,500, whereas similar apartments in the building rent at $4,000 annually. Witnesses have been subpoenaed to tell of this arrangement.

The witnesses scheduled to appear tomorrow are William F. Kane and Louis V. Sterling of Logan & Bryan; Raymond Allen, who has an office with the brokers and through whom Mr. Walsh is said to have opened his account there; Robert Cook, manager of the Flatbush branch of the Corn Exchange Bank, and Joseph Gallagher of 511 Manhattan Avenue, Mr. Walsh's chauffeur.

The new code is modeled after the code of motion picture ethics adopted by the Hays group last April and has for its avowed purpose "to make certain that motion picture advertising shall reflect the same high ideals and aims which inspired the new code for production." DEMOCRATIC HARMONY SOUGHT IN WESTCHESTER

Foley Would Resume County Chairmanship if Coyle Gets Insurance Post.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 22.—Harry T. Foley will accept re-election as chairman of the Westchester County Democratic Committee if John B. Coyle of this city is appointed State Superintendent of Insurance by Governor Roosevelt, his friends declared today.

According to Mr. Foley's closest friends in party councils, the leader who resigned when John E. Mack obtained the Supreme Court appointment which Mr. Foley sought for Mr. Coyle, has taken the stand that if the insurance post is offered to Mr. Coyle, Westchester Democrats will have won a victory, after all.

Although no official announcement has been made at Albany in regard to the appointment, it was learned that the Governor had considered naming Mr. Coyle in recognition of his services and in an effort to stop the party quarrel in the county.

The affair has not yet been smoothed over, for Mr. Coyle has indicated to Democratic leaders that he is not enthusiastic about accepting the appointment in the face of the events of recent weeks. Party leaders, however, expect to be able to persuade him to accept if he is appointed.

SCORES MILLARD DRY VIEW.

Women's Moderation League Chief Calls Candidate's Stand "Bunk."

Miss M. Louise Gross of Harrison, N. Y., national chairman of the Women's Moderation League, declared yesterday that the statement issued last week by Supervisor Charles D. Millard of Greenburgh, in reply to her question as to his stand as Republican candidate for Congress on prohibition was so much "bunk" and unsatisfactory to the anti-prohibitionists. Mr. Millard's views on the prohibition question, as announced in the statement, were:

"I believe the Eighteenth Amendment to be a failure and I will vote for its repeal as soon as some concrete proposition to take its place is submitted to Congress."

PIPGRAS VICTOR ON MOUND

Gets Verdict in First Game Over Coffman, Mates Aiding With 5-Run Attack in Fifth.

By JOHN DREBINGER.

The Yankees made two gigantic strides in the American League pennant race yesterday, but unfortunately they were made in opposite directions.

They moved majestically to the fore by winning the first game of the day's double-header with the Browns by a score of 5 to 4, and this threw a vast assemblage of 56,000 spectators into a transport of enthusiasm. But then they lost the second engagement, 5 to 2, thereby leaving the same crowd filled with exasperation.

Just how the Yanks contrived to drop this nightcap doubtless would defy the most expert exposition. They pummeled George Blaeholder for an even dozen hits, threatened to blast George from the mound almost any minute from the first round on, received the additional benefits of a pass and an error, and yet when the event finally had run its full course George was still on the mound and the Yanks had amassed exactly two tallies. A trio of singles by Combs, Reese and Ruth had given them their first run in the first inning, and a triple by Combs followed by Reese's sacrifice fly had given them their second one in the seventh.

Gehrig Makes Stellar Catch.

But, despite this gross inefficiency on the offensive, the Yanks fought heroically. Lou Gehrig broke up a Brown rally in the fourth by plunging headlong into the box seats behind first to make a sensational catch of a foul ball.

In the same round Combs deprived the St. Louisans of at least three more tallies by picking Goslin's potential homer out of the field boxes in left, and in the fifth Babe Ruth made a great running catch of a blow by Hale, crashed into Harry Rice and stretched himself unconscious on the green.

There was a great to-do in the arena when this occurred. Attendants, players from both dugouts and even the pitchers from the bull pens rushed out in battalion formation to where the Babe lay prone upon his impressively convex stomach. But to end the suspense, let it be said the Babe was quickly revived and soon resumed play amid thunderous applause.

Pitching Duel Develops.

The opener was something of a tempestuous pitching duel between George Pipgras and Dick Coffman in which Pipgras was returned the victor on the strength of a spirited five-run rally which his comrades exploded in the fifth.

Up to this throbbing moment, Coffman was holding a slight edge over the Yankee right-hander, leading by a 1—0 margin, but in this round the Brownie hurler's well-laid plans became terribly scrambled.

With one out Wuestling shot a triple to left which evaded the clutches of Goslin. Then, after Pipgras had been retired without doing any damage, Combs beat out an infield to Melillo and Wuestling counted. Followed a high fly to right centre by Reese which Gullio might have caught, but for some unsolicited assistance on the part of Badgro. The result was a three-base muff for Gullio which scored Combs.

Then Ruth, with the Brownie infield playing deep and the Brownie outfield playing still deeper, executed a bunt with the delicacy of a Hoppe draw shot and Reese had time to come home in a brisk walk. Followed a triple by Gehrig, a single by Rice and the Yanks had five for the inning.

Cleveland Hurler Wins 11th Game of Season—Jamieson Clouts Three Doubles.

CLEVELAND, June 22 (AP).—Cleveland bats, impotent through seven losing games, rang lustily today as the Indians hammered out a 4-to-2 victory over the league-leading Philadelphia Athletics. Shores and Rommel were pounded for a dozen hits, while Ferrell was allowing only seven in winning his eleventh game of the season.

Jamieson marked his return to the Indian line-up by cracking out three doubles in four times up. Twice Cleveland rallies were nipped on double plays from the outfield. Miller and Haas caught short flies and threw home in time to nip runners trying to score from third.

TIGERS WIN TWICE FROM THE RED SOX

Gaston and Whitehill Pitch Splendidly in First Game, but Receive Poor Support.

BOSTON, June 22 (AP).—Detroit took a double-header from the Boston Red Sox by 5 to 3 and 4 to 2 today. The second game was called at the end of the sixth inning because of the Sunday sports law.

Milt Gaston for the Sox and Whitehill for the Tigers pitched gilt-edged ball in the first game, but their support was poor, all runs scored in the game being unearned.

Gehringer's home run with Johnson on base in the fifth inning decided the abbreviated second game in Detroit's favor.

BALTIMORE, June 22 (AP).—The Orioles took both ends of today's double-header with the Montreal Royals and moved back into first place.

Baltimore scored a 5-to-4 victory in the night cap when Vince Barton hit a home run in the final frame with two men on bases. The opening game was won by a 6-to-5 count, Danning featuring with two home runs and a single, to bat in all of the Oriole runs.

CARDINALS TRIUMPH OVER PHILS TWICE

Grimes, in Debut With St. Louis, Victor in Nightcap After Rhem Scores in Opener.

ST. LOUIS, June 22 (AP).—The Cardinals hit hard behind first-rate pitching today and conquered the Philadelphia Phillies, 12 to 3 and 9 to 3.

After a rather shaky start, Burleigh Grimes settled down in the nightcap and had no trouble winning. It was his first start since coming to the Cardinals from Boston. Grimes allowed thirteen hits, but they came when they did little damage. In the opener Flint Rhem let the visitors down with five hits. Jim Bottomley, Cardinal first baseman, who had been at bat twenty-five times previous to today's games without getting a hit, hit safely on his first three trips to the plate today, one of the blows being good for a home run.

In the second game George Fisher hit a home run inside the park and Catcher Davis of the Phillies was ejected from the game for protesting a decision at the plate.

HERMAN'S 2 HOMERS HELP ROBINS WIN

GAME DECIDED IN EIGHTH

Lopez's Double Breaks Tie and He Scores on Out—Frederick Then Gets Circuit Clout.

By ROSCOE McGOWEN.

Batting power such as the Robins have not displayed for several days sunk the Pirates at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon while a crowd of 22,000 fans assembled for a brief glimpse of their favorite ball club before it headed west again last night. The score was 9 to 6.

Babe Herman, slugging right fielder of the Dodgers, stole most of the spotlight, while Wright, Frederick, Gilbert, Finn, Lopez and Luque came in for a goodly share of the applause.

Herman's first exploit was a homer off Larry French into the distant left-centre field circus seats to tie the score at 3-3. His second exploit was another circuit clout, this time over the right field barrier with two on to tie the score at 6-6.

Glenn Wright's single to start the eighth paved the way for Lopez to drive in the winning run, and Johnny Frederick topped off his best hitting day in weeks with a home run over the right field wall for the Robins' ninth tally.

Wright Makes Stellar Play.

The Robin captain contributed the most spectacular fielding play seen in a long time when, in the eighth, with Luque pitching, Wright went behind second to get Bool's bounder and throw him out while still off balance. Luque's good relief work gave him his seventh victory of the season.

Something resembling old-fashioned baseball put the Robins in the lead by the end of the third inning, a pair of singles and two stolen bases sending two well-earned tallies across the plate. In the second inning Wright singled after Bissonette had fanned, stole second standing up and came home on Al Lopez's clean smash to left.

Similar procedure produced the second tally in the next frame. Frederick singled and Herman, after forcing Frederick at second, duplicated Wright's base pilfering and scored when Rube Bressler slashed a hard drive off Engle's foot.

Clark, holding the Pirates scoreless for the first four innings, had the breaks go against him in the fifth. Bissonette muffed a throw and Bool followed with a single. A sacrifice put the Pirates on second and third. Frederick and Finn came together in short right centre to allow Engle's fly to drop for a double. Flagstead singled and three runs were in.

Pirates Regain Lead.

Herman hit his first homer in the fifth to tie the score, but the Pirates moved ahead again in the sixth on hits by Suhr and French, combined with an infield out, and in the seventh scored twice when Flagstead singled, Paul Waner tripled and Traynor singled.

But in the seventh, after Flowers fouled out for Clark—his first failure in nine pinch-hitting attempts—Herman hit his second homer to score Frederick and Gilbert ahead of him and tie the score at 6—6.

Lopez drove Finn home with the winning run in the eighth with his double and scored from second, while Suhr was retiring Luque on a tricky roller. Frederick then clinched matters by hitting over the right-field wall.

Cantlon, Detroit Auto Racer, Wins 100-Mile Event in Ohio

AKRON, Ohio, June 22 (AP).—Shorty Cantlon of Detroit won the 100-mile automobile race on the Cleveland-Akron Board Speedway near here today. His time was 1:27:31.15. Russell Snowberger of Philadelphia finished second and Chester Gardner of Douglas, Ariz., third.

Between 12,000 and 13,000 persons watched Cantlon outdrive nine other starters. Seven drivers finished. Billy Arnold of Chicago, winner of the Indianapolis and Altoona races, lost a chance to clinch the driving championship when he became ill and turned his car over to Eugene Haustein of Detroit, who brought it in fourth.

BRAVES BEAT CUBS IN FINAL OF SERIES

Frankhouse Holds Champions to 5 Hits in 7 Innings—Cantwell Also Effective.

CHICAGO, June 22 (AP).—After losing four games in three days to the Cubs, the Boston Braves came back today to defeat the champions, 3 to 2, in the final game of their series. The defeat shoved the Cubs two and one-half games from first place, as the league-leading Brooklyn Robins defeated Pittsburgh.

Frankhouse, recent pitching acquisition from the St. Louis Cardinals, limited the Cubs to five hits during seven innings, and Cantwell, who relieved him, was effective.

Both Cub runs were scored on home runs in the fourth inning, Grimm getting one and Hack Wilson collecting his twenty-first of the year, to take the lead in the circuit clout race.

The Braves hit Charlie Root early for their runs.

N. E. League Ends Operations.

LYNN, Mass., June 22 (AP).—Officials of the New England Baseball League, meeting here tonight, voted to suspend operations for the remainder of the season.

GIANTS' LATE DRIVE OVERCOMES REDS

Blanked, 3-0, by Frey for Six Innings, McGrawmen Pound Him Hard Thereafter.

VICTORS TIE SCORE IN 7TH

Tally Thrice and Get 3 More Runs in 8th, Spoiling "Frey Day" for Cincinnati Pitcher.

By WILLIAM E. BRANDT.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, June 22.—"Benny Frey Day" lasted six innings here today, during which time the young Cincinnati mound ace was the lion of the hour. Then in the seventh and eighth the Giants jumped on Benny and ground out enough hits to win the opening game of their series here, 6 to 4.

Frey blotted out the Polo Grounders in those first six innings in a fashion that charmed the 14,000 fans, including 500 tourists from Frey's home town, Jackson, Mich.

The Jackson contingent, headed by the Jackson Police Band, marched across the field at the start of play and presented young Frey with a radio set and two horseshoes, one made of iron and the other of flowers.

Frey a Puzzle at First.

Then for six innings Frey was every inch a hero, holding the Giants to three hits. The score stood 3 to 0 in favor of Frey. Sharing the spotlight with him were two former New York players, Curtis Walker and Bob Meusel.

Curt, former Giant, crashed Hubbell for a triple in the first inning and again in the third. Meusel, formerly of Yankee fame, pounded a double in the first and another in the fifth.

Hubbell's first two pitches became a triple and a double, Meusel's two-bagger driving home Walker. Meusel went the rest of the way on an infield out and a sacrifice fly. Walker's second triple opened the third, but Hubbell cowed the next three Reds. Meusel's second double was followed by a single and a sacrifice fly.

Frey Weakens in Seventh.

The intense heat affected Frey's pitching when the seventh inning dawned. The Giants bunched four hits and tied the score. Hogan's single knocked home two runs. Then Hogan scored all the way from first base on Jackson's two-base drive to right.

The winning three-run rally in the eighth included hits by Leach, Terry and Ott and a sacrifice fly by Lindstrom. Frey paved his own downfall by walking Critz, the first batter up in this inning.

Hubbell gave way to Heving in the sixth. The first two Reds in the eighth made hits. Then Crawford came to bat for Durocher and McGraw put in Pruett. Manager Howley countered by sending a right-handed hitter, Dressen, to bat in place of Crawford, but the only run of the inning was driven home by Gooch's double.

Walker opened the ninth with a single; then Meusel bounced to Lindstrom for a double play and Pruett sailed through to success.

42 YACHTS, RECORD, SAIL FOR BERMUDA

Schooners, Ketches and Sloops Leave From New London in 660-Mile Ocean Race.

SOME CARRY GENOA JIBS

Duckling and Zena Are Smallest in Fleet—Dorade Away First in the Initial Group.

By JAMES ROBBINS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 22.—Racing canvas bulged from forty-two strongly hulled yachts as they started this morning on the 660-mile contest to Bermuda. Schooners, ketches and sloops, some with modern triangular sails on tall pole masts, and others with old-fashioned gaff rig, went away at 9:10 A. M. on the long thrash across the Gulf Stream and out to the land of the lilies in mid-Atlantic.

Some had dories nested on deck and others naught but small dinghies, but all were provisioned with water and food for an emergency, such as prolonged calm, that would keep them out longer than the four days and some hours in which many of them are expected to make the trip.

It was the greatest number of boats that ever competed in an ocean race. Two years ago there were twenty-seven starters, which had been a record number. As they reached away through the Race, through which the Long Island Sound waters pour, and headed out past Montauk Point, they covered the horizon like a flock of great birds.

Their billowy canvas was of such varying size and shape that they also made an odd appearance. Some of the schooners had triangular mainsails on both masts, others had triangles on their main and gaff rig on their foresticks. Still others were dressed the opposite from that.

All Light Sails Set.

There was only a light northwesterly breeze of six miles an hour and the water was as smooth as a landlocked pond. Under those conditions, all the light sails the craft had aboard, except spinnakers, were set. There were big ballooners, fishermen's staysails on the schooners, and even the freak new Genoa jibs on a few of them.

These Genoas, set forward and sheeted two-thirds of the way aft on the boats, never had been carried to sea before. How far they would be carried was guessed pretty generally by those who went out on other craft to see the start. Certainly there never was such a variety of wind catchers.

Smallest of the fleet were the little sloop Duckling, owned by Charles W. Atwater of Port Washington, L. I., and the Bermuda yawl Zena, owned by C. H. Marsters, which came here to race back home. They both are less than 40 feet long. Duckling, which is 37 feet 6 inches, had stanchions around her deck aft, with a wire stretched through them, to keep those aboard on board in a sea. They and several others not much larger did not give an impression of being ocean rovers. All were solidly built, however, and can stand a lot of weather, if comfort is squeezed down along with size.

Leave in Two Divisions.

The fleet was sent away in two divisions, the largest starting five minutes after the small group. Of the first lot, the yawl Dorade, owned by O. J. Stephens of Scarsdale, N. Y., was away first and to windward of the others, which were strung out along the line, with R. W. Ferris's schooner Malay of Marblehead, Mass., on the leeward end.

R. Grinnell's yawl Rugosa II, of Providence, R. I., winner of the 1928 Bermuda race, led the second division in the windward berth. P. S. Sprague's schooner Lion's Whelp of Boston was to leeward. The schooner Teal, owned by P. G. Bigelow of Norfolk, Conn., was second over, with the schooner Blue Goose, owned by P. T. Buckler of New York, last of the bunch.

Blue Goose was not last to start, however, as R. H. Williams's yawl Daphne of New York, which had been late in getting ready, came up after the others. She crossed the starting line between Alfred Masury's motor yacht L'Apache and Sarah's Ledge Buoy and gave chase.

By mid-afternoon the whole fleet was well out to sea. Some then had gone on a wind-hunting expedition in hope of getting a favorable slant of air. With a favorable breeze aft, they were laying the course to Bermuda.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 22.—Fils de la Lune, owned by Mme. S. Fockenberghe, with J. Belmondo up, today won the classic Grand Steeplechase De Paris at the Auteuil race course.

Bright sunshine favored a parade of fashions at the celebrated jumping race, which is the French Grand National and marks the opening of the Grande Semaine, a colorful week that closes the social season in Paris. The "Great Week" terminates with the running of the Grand Prix at Longchamps next Sunday.

Nearly all the skirts of Summer frocks worn by the mannequins of leading Parisian dressmakers touched the ground.

YACHTS STARTING FROM NEW LONDON YESTERDAY ON THE ANNUAL 660-MILE OCEAN RACE TO BERMUDA.

ENTERPRISE JAMS ON MARINE RAILWAY

America's Cup Yacht Has One of Centreboards Torn Out While Going Overboard.

SERIOUS DAMAGE AVERTED

Boat Is Released at Bristol With Aid of Diver—Put Under Sail and Will Race Today.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 22.—Enterprise, the America's Cup yacht sailed by Harold S. Vanderbilt, was jammed on the marine railway today at the Herreshoff Shipyard in Bristol, R. I., where she was built, and serious damage to her was narrowly averted.

One of her centreboards was torn out and she was freed in the water only after a diver had been secured and he had aided in releasing her.

The big cup boat had been hauled out yesterday to have her underbody cleaned for the three races off here starting tomorrow. Plans were made to put her overboard again at 6 o'clock this morning. Everything was inspected and found shipshape.

The yacht was started on her way back into the water, and when she reached it she suddenly stopped short. A hurried examination of the railway showed that to be all right. There was a scurrying about to find what was wrong. It was apparent that the boat was jammed somewhere underneath.

Suddenly it was discovered that the line, or painter, that held up one of the two centreboards in the racer had been released and that the board had dropped.

It projected down through the trunk below the keel, and as the boat moved down the railway it tripped over the ties between the rails and finally jammed, holding fast the yacht.

Diver Hurriedly Secured.

The diver was secured hurriedly, and after he had made an examination a consultation was held as to means of freeing the boat. The board was damaged beyond use and it was decided to let it go and get the racer into the water without any possible further risk to her keel. Shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon she was freed and slid out clear of the cradle.

It was decided to race here tomorrow despite the accident. She was put under sail and came down Narragansett Bay along with Resolute, the old defender.

Meanwhile, Weetamoe, the Morgan-Nichols Cup aspirant, which was also at the Herreshoff yard, was held there at anchor, it having been discovered that her mooring in Brenton Cove here was missing.

Moorings were put down for all the cup boats. The can buoy of Weetamoe's disappeared. Men went out in a small boat to grapple for it, hoping to pick up the chain and attach another can to it. They could not locate the chain, but found some heavy object that they could not budge. It was thought to have been the Mushroom anchor itself. A diver will be sent down tomorrow morning to locate the chain.

Weetamoe will be in the race tomorrow, along with Enterprise, Yankee and Whirlwind. Yankee, which will be sailed by Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, and Whirlwind came on here from New London today under sail. She made the run around Point Judith under canvas as a tuning-up spin.

Two Old Boats to Race.

Vanitie also is here, so that the four new and two old cup boats will compete. It will be their first race off here, but the start will not be nine miles southeast of Brenton Reef Lightship, as that of the international contests will be. The start will be at the lightship.

There will be races tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday, and a thirty-mile course will be sailed each day. Officials of the Eastern Yacht Club of Marblehead, Mass., which will hold the races, decided tonight to make the first contest one of fifteen miles to windward and return if the wind direction makes that possible.

With a southwest breeze, fifteen miles on the wind can be had to the whistling buoy off Clay Head, Block Island, with a run back.

DRAGON TRIUMPHS OVER RIVAL YACHTS

Ten-Meter Sloop Takes Manhasset Bay Yacht Club Race Off Execution Light.

GITANE IS 8-METER WINNER

H. S. Morgan Sails His Craft to Easy Victory Over Rangoon and Psyche.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., June 22.—Dragon, Horace Havemeyer's big black ten-meter sloop, was home first in a fleet of eight boats off Execution Light this afternoon in the special Sunday race sponsored by the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club.

Dragon had only one rival in her class, Albert Johnston's Nachvak. It was expected that many of the larger boats, from the Class M sloops to the eight-meter, would compete, but several which had gone to New London to the Harvard-Yale crew races last week had not returned in time for the contest. Besides the two ten-meter boats there were one New York thirty, three open eights, a one-design eight-meter and a Class 3 boat.

Henry S. Morgan sailed his Gitane to victory in the eight-meter class, defeating Rangoon and Psyche by about seven and nine minutes, respectively.

The boats started on a broad reach from Execution Light to Weeks Point Buoy. The fair northerly wind permitted use of spinnakers, genoa and balloon jibs. Dragon was first to make the turn, followed two minutes later by Gitane.

The next turning mark, the buoy off Blue Fish Shoals, was a windward beat. Nachvak went ahead of Gitane on this leg, to follow close behind Dragon. On the run home Dragon kept in the lead.

BOBBILL TRIUMPHS IN INTERCLUB RACE

WINS DESPITE FALSE START

Goeller's Craft Returns to Line and Then Defeats Poppy by More Than a Minute.

Special to The New York Times.

LARCHMONT, N. Y., June 22.—Bobbill, piloted by R. W. Goeller, was the winner of the second interclub class yacht race for the Royal Bermuda Yacht Club trophy off the Larchmont Yacht Club today.

Competing in a fleet of a dozen entries, the Goeller craft, despite a false start which necessitated a return to the starting line, was handled efficiently and came through to defeat Poppy, skippered by Drake H. Sparkman, by a little more than a minute. The winner's time was 2 hours 20 minutes and 51 seconds.

The race was conducted over a triangular course, nine and one-half miles in length, starting at the club, extending to Parsonage Point, from there to Mott's Point, and back. A fair northwest wind prevailed and none of the twelve boats in the event encountered any difficulty.

Nine of the boats got off to a good start, but Bobbill, together with Alberta, owned by R. Sparks, and Anne, owned by Walter Pierson, went ahead before the signal and had to turn back. Poppy jumped into the lead from the outset and set the pace until less than 500 yards from the end. There Bobbill, after a strong come-back, passed the Sparkman yacht and slipped through to victory.

Ariel, owned by Miss Marie Iselin, was third, and Alberta managed to capture fourth place.

Bowden Beaten by Bowman in Clay Court Net Final; Wimbledon Play Opens Today

BOWMAN ANNEXES CLAY COURT FINAL

Gains Posession of Travers Island Cup by Beating Bowden in Eastern Tourney.

AYDELLOTTE ALSO SCORES

Paired With Rockafellow, He Gains Third Doubles Title by Victory Over Dawson-Feibleman.

Herbert L. Bowman, captain of the New York A. C. tennis team, gained permanent possession of the Travers Island Cup by scoring his third victory in the Eastern men's clay court tennis tournament when he defeated Frank Bowden in straight sets, 6—3, 6—2, 6—2, at Travers Island yesterday.

Aydelotte and Rockafellow also triumphed for the third time when they took the doubles championship from Edgar F. Dawson and Ed Feibleman, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4.

Bowman was at his best against the clean, hard opposition of the University Heights player. He combined a tricky serve with splendid baseline work and forced Bowden away from the net by terrific drives that scored point after point. He lost only one game on service, that early in the first set.

Play on Even Terms.

Bowman and Bowden played on even terms for the first six games of the initial set, each winning three of them. Bowman then took the next three to capture the set, Bowden's unsteadiness costing him several points in the last three games.

Bowden captured the first game of the second set, but Bowman evened matters on his own service. They each won their next services, making the score 2-all. Again Bowden faltered and the champion ran out in straight games to add the second set to his credit.

Bowman continued his rapid pace in the third set and rolled up a 2—0 lead before Bowden could win a game. In quick time the New York A. C. captain ran the score up to 5—1. Twice Bowman had match point, but Bowden rallied and finally pulled out his second game of the set. However, the runner-up's stand was short lived, as Bowman captured the next game to triumph.

Noted Names on Cup.

The cup which Bowman receives bears the names of Tilden, Hunter and Gregory Mangin, as well as Bowman's. Bowman won in 1927 and again in 1929.

The doubles champions had a harder fight against Dawson and Feibleman, but the team-work of the Rockafellow-Aydelotte combination finally broke down the opposition.

WIMBLEDON TENNIS WILL OPEN TODAY

One of Strongest U. S. Contingents in Years to Compete for English Titles.

TILDEN TO FACE FYZEE

Allison Will Oppose Moon, Doeg Will Meet Sharpe and Van Ryn Faces Duff.

By FERDINAND KUHN JR.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 23.—One of the strongest tennis teams that ever has represented the United States abroad will swing into action on the Wimbledon courts tomorrow. A galaxy of champions and potential champions bristles from the list of American players.

William T. Tilden, in superb form this year, will once more attempt to wrest Henri Cochet's crown from him—and by the luck of the draw has a better chance to do it than for five years past.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody is believed certain to chalk up another women's championship, while in the men's doubles the United States has strong representation in John Doeg and George Lott and John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison.

Behind the headliners stands a phalanx of younger American players, both men and women, whose assault will be felt by every other nation competing in England's annual tennis festival.

Draw Favors Tilden.

It has been years since Tilden has had such good fortune in the draw. Not only is he in the opposite half from Cochet, but he should have fairly smooth sailing right to the semi-finals.

Tomorrow he is to meet Dr. A. A. Fyzee of India, while in the second round Van Ryn may give him trouble. Jacques Brugnon will be Tilden's only French rival until he comes to Cochet. The draw might, in fact, have been made for Tilden, and if he is ever going to come back as champion, this is the year for him to do it.

Doeg, who this year is included among the eight seeded players, will have a difficult assignment in the opening round. Against him will be Nigel Sharpe, dogged British player, who will refuse to be blinded by Doeg's dazzling service and smashing drives. If Doeg can overpower him tomorrow, he will find Christian Boussus of France blocking his way in later rounds.

Easier Schedule for Lott.

Lott, third seeded American, will have an easier time, for he ought to breeze through H. L. Soni of India tomorrow and then have little difficulty with C. H. Kingsley of Britain, H. O. Hopman of Australia and P. D. B. Pence of South Africa, his probable opponents later.

Allison tomorrow will have the biggest chance of winning tennis glory. The Texan was not chosen among the seeded eight in singles, and his place was taken by E. F. Moon, Australian. So there is a touch of poetic justice in tomorrow's schedule, which brings Allison and Moon face to face for the day's first match on the centre court. If Allison wins, he probably will have to conquer E. C. Peters, the Englishman who once upset Tilden; H. Satos of Japan, G. L. Rogers, giant Irishman, and Daniel Prenn, German champion, to reach the last eight.

Gregory Mangin will meet the sturdy little Japanese, Y. Ohta, in tomorrow's round, while Van Ryn should dispose of the Canadian, W. A. H. Duff, without much trouble. Berkeley Bell will face an Englishman, A. W. Vinall.

Neither Cochet nor Borotra should have any struggle, although Cochet's endurance may be tested by H. Timmer, phlegmatic Dutch champion who can play a steady game from the base lines. Timmer's tactics may work against an impulsive opponent, but against Cochet's coolness they haven't a chance.

113 Golfers From 32 Colleges Start Play In Championship Tourney at Oakmont Today

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.

Special to The New York Times.

OAKMONT, Pa., June 22.—With additional entries augmenting the total to 113, the most representative field that has ever competed in the intercollegiate golf championship is ready for the first eighteen-hole qualifying round over the historic links of the Oakmont Country Club tomorrow.

These young golfers are standard-bearers for thirty-two colleges and in their midst are a number of likely contenders for the individual crown.

Although Tommy Aycock, who brought the victory to Yale last Spring, is no longer in college, and Maurice McCarthy Jr., who won in 1928, also is among the absentees. There are a number of leading aspirants for the title. The East enjoys the greatest share, but the other sectors of the country also have representative quotas.

Among the principal bulwarks of the East are Phillips Finlay, the long-hitting Harvard captain; George T. Dunlap Jr., the brilliant Princeton player; Marshall Forrest of Yale, who was runner-up for the title last year; Forbes Wilson, also of Yale; Al Brodbeck, Pennsylvania's captain, and Fred Brand Jr. of Penn State, who recently led the players in this district's qualifying for the national open.

The Far West has sent Allen Moser of Southern California and Vincent Dolp of the University of Oregon. The Middle Westerners are led by R. B. Martin of Illinois, the Big Ten champion, and Robert Kepler of Ohio State, while the South pins its chief hope on Sam Perry of Alabama.

Princeton is regarded as likely to retain the team title. The qualifying play tomorrow and Tuesday will serve to determine the team championship before match play starts Wednesday.

FALL RIVER ELEVEN LOSES TO RANGERS

Scotland's Champions Beat U. S. Titleholder, 6-1, Before 12,000 at Polo Grounds.

SMITH TALLIES FOUR GOALS

Stark Saves Losers From Shut-Out—Glasgow Team Ends Tour With 14 Victories and No Defeats.

Defeating the Fall River Club, the United States soccer champion, by 6 to 1, the Glasgow Rangers, champions of Scotland, brought their second North American tour to a brilliant close before a crowd of 12,000 at the Polo Grounds yesterday.

The famous tourists, who came back to New York for their second appearance without a defeat in thirteen games, earned a well deserved victory. In their first game here they defeated the New Englanders by 3—2 on Decoration Day.

James Smith, a six-footer, who officiated in the pivotal position for the invaders, carried off scoring honors with four tallies. The other two were netted by James Fleming.

It marked the fourteenth victory in as many games for the famous tourists. It also was their second appearance in this city, for they defeated the New Englanders here on Memorial Day by a 3-to-2 score.

After fifteen minutes of hard play, Smith forced the first corner of the game off McGill. Fleming, after getting around McAuley, sent one in at short range, Harper bringing off a magnificent stop. A second corner for the Scots was forced by McPhail off McGill. A low twister from McDonald was taken rather luckily by Harper.

Then came the first goal for the Rangers as Brown quietly shoved the ball to Smith, who scored with an unstoppable drive, seven minutes from half time. Before ends were changed, Fall River gained a corner on the right.

Nicholson replaced Morton on the left wing in the second half. A pass by the newcomer to Smith yielded the Rangers a second tally in eighteen minutes. Just one minute later Archie Stark of Fall River headed in a cross by McNab.

The Rangers widened their lead at twenty-three minutes when Nicholson passed to Fleming, who tallied with a low, hard drive. Next came a corner for the Rangers on the right which was cleared. Eight minutes from full time Smith turned in McDonald's pass right after Harper had made a good stop of McPhail's try. In the time remaining Fleming scored off Nicholson and Smith finished a good day's work with a brilliant solo effort. At the close Fall River had a corner on the left wing, but Best drove the ball to the top of the net.

The line-up:

Glasgow Rangers (6)		Fall River (1)
T. Hamilton	G.	Harper
Gray	R. B.	McGill
Buchanan	L. B.	R. McAuley
MacDonald	R. H.	McPherson
Meiklejohn	C. H.	Priestley
Craig	L. H.	Ballantyne
Fleming	O. R.	McNab
Brown	I. R.	Nilsen
Smith	C.	Stark
McPhail	I. L.	White
Morton	O. L.	Best

Goals—Smith 4, Fleming 2, Stark.
Substitution—Nicholson for Morton.

Hakoah Soccer Team Blanked, 2 to 0, in Rio de Janeiro

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 22 (AP).—The New York Hakoah eleven was defeated by the Vasco da Gama soccer team today, 2—0. It was the Americans' second defeat of their South American trip, Sao Paulo beating them, 3—1, on Thursday.

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—Primo Carnera, giant heavyweight from Italy, and George Godfrey, Philadelphia Negro, will meet in a reinforced ring at the Phillies' ball park at 10 o'clock tomorrow night before an anticipated crowd of 30,000, which will include, it is expected, Max Schmeling, newly crowned heavyweight champion. The bout will be over the ten-round distance.

Godfrey ruled a slight favorite tonight. Although his weight of 250 pounds will be surpassed by at least twenty pounds, and he will be handicapped four inches in height by his 6-foot 6-inch rival, Godfrey's boxing technique and ring experience are expected to count in his favor.

Chairman Frank Wiener of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission promises a good battle, having taken precautions against an unsatisfactory performance or finish. Carnera has had seventeen straight knockout victories in previous American starts.

Six-ounce gloves will be worn by Godfrey and Carnera. Seconds will be forbidden to throw towels into the ring or to climb to the ring platform during the progress of the bout. The contest will be entirely in the hands of "the best referee on the staff of the Pennsylvania board," according to Chairman Wiener, although his identity is a secret until tomorrow night.

LONG BEACH, L. I., June 22.—Four spills and one badly wrecked boat marked the first official Long Beach outboard motor boat regatta, held today on Reynolds Channel before a crowd of 15,000.

William Crawford of New York was in two of the spills, the first in the opening heat of Class C and the other in the second heat of the Class D competition.

In the latter heat Crawford, well in the lead on the second and final lap of the two and one-half mile course, took the west turn at a high rate of speed and his craft capsized. The accident cost him the victory, as he had finished first in the opening heat.

Miss Alice Hallewell of Jackson Heights was thrown into the water in the first heat of the Class B event, and Richard Weir's boat turned over in the first heat in Class C.

Peterson Has Narrow Escape.

Walter Peterson of Brooklyn narrowly escaped serious injury in the ten-mile open competition when the propeller broke loose from his boat and the craft veered off the course and rammed into a fisherman's shack, located on the water's edge. Peterson was badly shaken up, but otherwise suffered no ill effects. His boat, however, was badly damaged by the collision.

Two heats each were held in Division 1 and 2 of Class B, C and D, the winners being judged on point totals. In Class A and the open class only one heat was held.

Crawford, after experiencing two spills, came back in the first heat of the Class D competition and won after losing about a quarter of a mile at the start for beating the gun. Crawford whipped around quickly, retraced his route and then took up the chase of the field. Once around and he was in the lead, never to be headed.

Langdon Captures Honors.

Ellsworth Langdon, winner of the second heat in Class D, carried off the best time honors, having an average speed of 44.44 miles per hour for the two and a half miles. Langdon, however, was extended all of the route by S. Olendorf Jr., who finished second.

The silver trophies and medals were presented by Mrs. Frank Frankel, wife of the Mayor of Long Beach. The events were held under the auspices of the Middle Atlantic Outboard Association and the Long Island Associated Racing Squadrons. The American Power Boat Association rules governed.

Secretary Adams Will Watch Crew Races From a Destroyer

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 22.—Navy officials announced today that Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, would again watch the regatta from a destroyer, as he did last year. In the official navy party will be Admiral C. F. Hughes, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, and Admiral S. S. Robison, commandant of the Naval Academy.

It was learned also at the navy quarters that Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd was expected as a luncheon guest at quarters this week on the occasion of his trip to Albany for State honors to be paid him.

WISCONSIN EIGHT HOLDS TIME TRIAL

Conditions Not Fast as Badgers Row 4 Miles in 23 Minutes—Other Oarsmen Rest.

WASHINGTON SUFFERS BLOW

Schoel of the Varsity Injures Muscle and May Be Unable to Row on Thursday.

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 22.—Today was comparatively peaceful along the Hudson for the crews in training for Thursday's regatta. For all but one of the camps the day furnished a complete lay-off. Only Wisconsin, which is shorter on work than any other navy in camp, rowed.

Wisconsin went out this evening, paddled up to the start, and came down over the course against the watch. It rowed under conditions that were not especially fast. Only in the last half-mile did the Badgers have any sort of wind following them, and this was about offset by some bad swells which were encountered. The time for the four miles was 23 minutes.

The most encouraging part of the trip for Wisconsin was the fact that it rowed the second two miles of the course quite a few seconds faster than it did the first two. Now and then through the closing two miles the crew had a good swing and plenty of length in the water. But a good part of the time it had a tendency to shorten up.

However, the showing was not at all bad for a crew that had never before this season raced over a four-mile course.

The most important bit of news from the camps today was a piece of hard luck which landed at Washington's door. Lawrence Schoel, one of the biggest man in the boat, whose 6 feet 3 inches and 191 pounds have been fitted in nicely at 5, pulled a shoulder muscle in last night's time trial. The injury came fairly early in the test, but Schoel finished it to help the Huskies to the fastest time that has been heard of here yet in the trials.

Going over the course late in the evening, under conditions that were against it so far as wind was concerned, Washington turned in a time of 20:20 last night, but it may have cost the crew Schoel. It is undecided as yet whether he will be able to race, and it will not be settled definitely until Tuesday.

Miss Marion B. Carstairs—Speed Boat Racer

By VERNON VAN NESS.

All Rights Reserved.

MISS MARION B. CARSTAIRS.

MISS MARION B. CARSTAIRS has come back to America to make her third bid for the most cherished of all speed boat prizes, the famous Harmsworth Trophy. Unless the fates intervene the English girl will flash over the waters of the Detroit River on Aug. 29, 30 and Sept. 1, fighting it out with the grizzled veteran Gar Wood for the coveted cup.

Tomorrow or the next day, in preparation for this event, Miss Carstairs will don a racing helmet, strap a life preserver across her shoulders and, at Gravenhurst, Ont., begin the final tests of the boat she will drive in the water classic.

But before she has completed these trials, before she has demonstrated to her own satisfaction that her boat, Estelle IV, and her other challenger, Estelle V, are worthy seekers for the trophy which first was hung up in 1903 by Sir Alfred Harmsworth, later Lord Northcliffe, she will sit down to a drafting board and put in a few additional details on plans for another boat—a sailing vessel. And therein lies the story of the real Marion Carstairs.

Last Saturday night, when she stepped down the gangplank of the Berengaria, completing her nineteenth crossing of the Atlantic and her third in quest of the Harmsworth Trophy, which is emblematic of the international speed championship, she had all her plans for the big race and for the campaign leading up to it mapped clearly in her mind, and yet it wasn't about the race that she wanted to talk. It was of her sailing vessel.

Is Building Three-Master.

"It will be a three-master that can sail the seas in any kind of weather and can take me all over the world and let me rest and have quiet," she explained.

"For ten years all I have been doing is building and racing speed boats, and now, it seems to me, all the thrill is gone from the sport. There is just one more lure, the Harmsworth Trophy, which I hope this time to take back to England, where it originated.

"After that speed boats will never beckon to me again. Especially the big ones. They cost frightfully and, as my good friend Malcolm Campbell puts it, there isn't much satisfaction in building a boat or an automobile at a terrific cost, just to get five minutes of high speed out of it. Besides, after you have gone seventy-five or eighty miles an hour in a speed boat a few times, the feeling of flying through the water disappears and the great speed becomes commonplace. In other words, the thrill departs."

Drove Ambulance in War.

As a matter of fact, Miss Carstairs has been surfeited with thrills of speed. Over shell-torn battlefields in France she drove a careening ambulance during the war at the age of 17, and over the Solent and the Thames and Lake Windermere and the Detroit River she has driven high-powered and fleet racing hulls and now she wants not more speed but less, and rest and quiet.

This English girl has lived half her life in America. She now is 30 years old and makes no effort to conceal the fact.

She was born in England, but when she was 6 months old her parents brought her to this country. Her mother was an American woman, née Estelle Bostwick, the daughter of Abel Bostwick, one of the founders of the Standard Oil Company.

Lived in New York City.

For several years Miss Carstairs lived in New York City and then later was sent to a private school in Hartford, Conn.

She was attending this school when, in 1916, the urge to go to war became too strong to resist. She went back to England and later reached France as an ambulance driver. After the United States entered the war she was attached to the American Ambulance Service and served until the armistice was signed.

Going back to England she became interested in motor boats and soon made the acquaintance of old Sam Saunders, owner of S. E. Saunders, Ltd., a famous ship-building yard in England.

Every day she had free she spent in the yards, watching boats being planned and built. Finally she became a designer herself and decided she would build boats for her own use. And when she had built one she wanted to race it, and so began her remarkable career as a speed-boat pilot.

Harmsworth Trophy Her Aim.

She has raced for the Duke of York Trophy, the King's Cup and a dozen other highly sought prizes. But it was not until three years ago that she decided that the greatest prize of all would be, for her at least, the Harmsworth Trophy.

She challenged through the Royal Motor Yacht Club and built two boats, Estelle I and II—named after her mother. They failed to satisfy her in tests and she withdrew her challenge. But six weeks before the scheduled races she repented and re-challenged.

That was a fateful year for Harmsworth racing craft. Just prior to the date of the race Gar Wood's defending boat, Miss America VI, capsized in the St. Clair River. Wood had to do a rush job to build Miss America VII.

Then when the race finally was staged, Miss Carstair's boat, Estelle II, was hit by the wake of Wood's boat as the latter sped to the front, causing Estelle II to turn over.

Miss Carstairs and her mechanic, Joe Harris, were thrown out and stunned. When rescued by a patrol boat Harris was unconscious and Miss Carstairs was swimming feebly to his assistance. Later it was found that the English girl had sustained two fractured ribs.

But that accident did not deter her from trying again, and last year she appeared with Estelle IV. It contained three motors and it was found necessary to remove one of these, the apex one. The craft, unbalanced, failed to prove a worthy rival to Wood's Miss America VII and the veteran commodore of Detroit retained the trophy.

Will Drive Estelle IV.

"I should have stopped then," Miss Carstairs remarked on Saturday evening as she sat on a big black trunk on the Cunard pier while the passengers and baggage were being removed from the Berengaria.

"But I thought I would make one more effort. It seemed that England had at last gathered together a team, with Major Segrave and myself with fast boats, and then came the tragedy to Major Segrave.

"That left nothing for me to do but use both of my boats, Estelle IV and Estelle V. I will drive the former, which will be powered with two 950-horsepower Napier engines.

"Estelle V probably will be driven by Herbert Hawker, who designed the boat. Estelle V will be powered with two air super-charged Napiers developing 1,500 horsepower each. With these two boats we will have a fine chance of winning, but, win or lose, it will be my last race with the big boats."

Her plans for a trip around the world in her three-masted schooner have been under consideration for several years, but she will not make the voyage for at least two years more.

Enjoys Being a Sailor.

"It will take at least two years to complete plans, build the boat and outfit it," explained Miss Carstairs. "Then I will set sail and be a regular sailor.

"As a matter of fact, that is what I enjoy being more than anything else. I have no bent for art or for such accomplishments as one usually associates with girls. I love the water, the being a sailor, with the free, soothing sea beneath me.

"I don't say that I will never drive another speed boat, but I do say that I have obtained about all the thrill out of such sport that I can. Now I want to sail more calmly and leisurely and get some real rest and enjoyment out of life."

Tonight Miss Carstairs entrains from here for Gravenhurst, on the Muskoka Lakes, where her ever-faithful Joe Harris, long her chief mechanic and shipmate, will meet her and help her in the final tests for the last big race of the plucky little English girl.

FOOTBALL RULES ISSUED RECODIFIED

Regulations Entirely Rewritten to Clarify Meaning—New Guide Just Off Press.

In contrast with other years when changes often were many and of a far-reaching nature, the football rules committee has made only minor alterations for 1930, largely of a technical nature, to make for uniformity and simplicity. Instead of altering the regulations to an appreciable extent, the committee has rewritten the entire code and made an entirely new classification.

The recodified rules governing the game are published in Spalding's Official Intercollegiate Football Guide, which has just been issued. The plan for recodification was proposed some time ago by E. K. Hall, chairman of the group, and the entire code has now been reconstructed. The phraseology employed and the arrangement, it is hoped, will help in clarifying the meaning and intent of the rules.

Officials, coaches, players and writers aided the committee with advice in the recodification. Annoying cross-references and ambigious wording, which were found in the old arrangement of rules, have been eliminated. Included in the new arrangement are supplemental notes and approved rulings. The scope and spirit of the rules are clarified in the supplemental notes and the application is explained in the approved rulings.

The order of rules, as now arranged, is a logical sequence, Rule 1 dealing with the field, Rule 2 with the ball, Rule 3 with definitions, Rule 4 with the conduct of the game, and Rule 5 with the players. In all there are thirteen rules, the last concerning the officials, their jurisdiction and duties.

One of the rule changes deals with backward passes and fumbles which go out of bounds between the goal lines. Without exception, the ball will belong to the team whose player last touched it in the field of play or end zone, at the point where it crossed the side line.

On huddle and shift plays, the pause for players has been made at least one second instead of approximately one second. In the supplementary note it is suggested that the referee carry a split-second watch to see that the shift rule is complied with. If a watch is lacking, it is suggested that the period be measured by a rapid count from one to six.

Under the 1930 code, the duties of officials with respect to fouls are made concurrent, with the referee acting as the final judge in the event of any conflict. In addition, on a free kick following a fair catch, the opponents must stay behind their restraining line until the ball is kicked. The pressure of the ball has been limited to a minimum of 12½ pounds and a maximum of 13½ pounds.

In a special note on equipment, the committee deprecates the use of head protectors or jerseys which are so similar in color to the ball that they give the wearers an unfair and unsportsmanlike advantage over their opponents.

It is suggested that if such head protectors are worn, the solid color be broken by at least two cross stripes of a markedly contrasting color at least two inches in width, and that the solid color of jerseys be broken definitely by stripes or numbers of markedly contrasting color. The committee, it is stated, contemplates making the suggestions as to head protectors and jerseys mandatory in the 1931 rules.

The football rules committee is composed of E. K. Hall, chairman; W. S. Langford, secretary; T. A. D. Jones, W. W. Roper, H. J. Stegeman, A. A. Stagg, M. F. Ahearn, Ray Morrison, H. W. Hughes and W. O. Hunter. W. R. Okeson, F. A. Lambert and A. W. Palmer form the advisory committee on officials, and W. A. Alexander, J. B. Sutherland, G. S. Warner and R. C. Zuppke make up the advisory committee of coaches.

DEULBERG ANNEXES MOTOR-PACED RACE

Takes First Place in Title Series by 40-Mile Victory at Uptown Velodrome.

HARRIS HORDER ADVANCES

Wins Quarter-Mile Event at Newark to Gain on Walker in Sprint Competition.

Franz Duelberg of Germany went into the lead in the race for the motor-paced championship of America last night when he captured the 40-mile title event at the uptown Velodrome. He was given a stirring battle by Franco Georgetti, defending titleholder, who finished second, and George Chapman, veteran American cyclist, who finished third.

Alfred Letourner of France was fourth, Charlie Jaeger of Newark fifth and Freddie Spencer of Plainfield, N. J., sixth.

Deulberg now leads in the championship series with 18 points. Letourner has 16 points, Chapman 14, Jaeger 10, Georgetti 7 and Spencer 1.

Deulberg took the lead early in the race, while Georgetti, Chapman and Letourner expended their efforts in a battle for position. From the 30-mile mark, it was a contest between Deulberg and Georgetti. Twice the Italian star attempted to pass Deulberg, but to no avail.

CAYUGA HOLDS LEAD IN YACHTING TRIALS

Loses 2 of 3 Races to Thisbe, but Retains Point Margin in Canada's Cup Series.

FARLEY'S CONEWAGO TRAILS

Close Finishes Feature the Day's Competition at Rochester Yacht Club.

Special to the New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 22.—Although her closest rival scored two victories out of three starts today, Cayuga, 8-meter yacht built by public subscription, retained her lead in the Rochester Yacht Club's series to nominate an American defender for the Canada's Cup.

The Thisbe, which is owned and sailed by W. P. Barrows, took first honors for the day, winning the first two races and finishing second to Cayuga in the third to gain a point in the standings.

Walter L. Farley's Conewago, the third of the trio of boats seeking the honor, was third in each event. The moderately heavy sea and continually strengthening wind were too much for her.

Each of the three races developed into a parade after the first legs, although all of the finishes, with the exception of the first event, when Conewago was badly distanced, were close.

Thisbe won the first six-mile race over Cayuga by 36 seconds, the second by a minute and 6 seconds, and trailed the stern of the Cayuga by a minute and 15 seconds in the final race. The point totals are: Cayuga 113, Thisbe 111, Conewago 68.

Eastcotts Eliminate Hitchcock's Four in Meadow Brook Polo; Shelburnes Win

BOSTWICK GETS 3 GOALS

J. H. Whitney, Injured Week Ago, Plays at Back—Shelburnes Defeat Ramblers, 10-6.

By VERNON VAN NESS.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., June 22.—Tommy Hitchcock's Greentree four was eliminated from the Meadow Brook Challenge Cup tournament in a fast and furious battle on Fleischmann Field today, bowing to the Eastcott riders in their second match by a score of 11 to 9.

Eastcott advanced to a semi-final match with the Shelburne poloists, who forced their way into that bracket by defeating the Meadow Brook Ramblers, 10 to 6, at Meadow Brook. This latter game was halted yesterday when a storm swept the field in the fourth period with Shelburne leading, 6-3.

In gaining the second round by beating the Army team last Thursday at Mitchel Field, Eastcott's winning goal was scored by Tommy Ewing Jr. and today Ewing again played a leading part in the victory. He brought Eastcott to the front at 9-8 in the seventh period with a long side shot just before the bell, and putting in the final goal near the end of the eighth session. He also served as a capable feeder to Cyril Harrison, who, with Earle W. Hopping, led the attack for Eastcott.

Harrison and Hopping Star.

Harrison and Hopping also figured largely in the triumph, each making four goals, but it was not so much the number they made as it was the manner in which they scored their goals.

In total number of goals, Captain Hitchcock led all the riders with five, but he missed a number of other fine shots that, had they gone right, would have changed the complexion of the outcome entirely.

His miss of a side shot in the eighth period and his miss on a foul shot in the seventh cost the Greentrees two goals. However, Hitchcock played a fast, skillful game and in the eighth period he was thrown from his mount when bumped during a scrimmage near the Eastcott goal.

Jock Whitney, who was hurt in last Sunday's game, again was in the Greentree line-up at back and played a good game. Pete Bostwick, riding at No. 2 for Greentree, played the most spectacular game. He made three goals and in addition made hard, long smashes every time he hit at the ball, which was frequently.

Whitney Scores Goal.

Harrison opened the scoring. Hopping shot in a goal a little later and Whitney counted for Greentree. Harrison and Hitchcock each scored in the next period. Hopping added two for Eastcott in the third period while Captain Hitchcock made one. Hopping shot a foul in the fourth. Bostwick got a long shot between the posts and Whitney registered out of a scrimmage in the same period.

Bostwick tied the score in the fifth on a pass from Captain Hitchcock. Captain Hitchcock put Greentree in front in the same period with a foul shot.

Richards evened the count for Eastcott in the sixth session and Harrison put the team a goal ahead with a side-shot goal. Captain Hitchcock made it 8—8 in the seventh by a scrimmage shot and then tallied on an Eastcott drive. But he missed a foul try, which Ewing followed with a goal, to make the count 9—8.

On top of Captain Hitchcock's foul in the eighth, which tied, Harrison added a counter to break the deadlock and Ewing recorded the final score of the game.

One game in the tournament is to be played tomorrow at Meadow Brook, when Sands Point faces the Meadow Brook Foxhunters in the final second-round match. The winner of that contest will meet Aiken in the semi-final bracket.

Gus Moore, a Negro, national cross-country champion, who runs under the colors of the Brooklyn Harriers A. A., gained the fast-time prize, although he finished thirty-sixth. His time from scratch was 39:41.

Registering a total of 32 points, the Good Shepherd A. C. representatives captured the team trophy.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By JOHN KIERAN.

THE Sharkey-Schmeling wrangle left the heavyweight situation under a pall. Now comes the comic relief. The meeting between Carnera the Carnivorous, the escaped soldier of France, and George Godfrey, the Leaping Leopard of Leiperville, should bring back memories of those framed locomotive collisions at old-time county fairs.

The debate between these two dainty little chaps, one weighing something more than an African elephant and the other slightly less than a finback whale, will be held in the ball park where the Phillies usually disport themselves. On one side of this ball park is the new Philadelphia subway. Just a bit beyond the opposite wall is a railroad cut. It is a dangerous place in which to put on a battle of behemoths.

If by any chance Primo the Ponderous should fall in a northeasterly direction, he might carry the whole park with him into the railroad cut. If genial George, the ebony elephant of the prize ring, should collapse and crash in an opposite direction, Broad Street might give way under the strain and the new subway, of which the citizens of Philadelphia are justly proud, would be blocked with crushed beams and tangled tracks.

This Way for the Big Show.

It is to be hoped that this affair will be run off in the proper style. There should be a parade in the afternoon, with a brass band and trappings. There should be white horses and red uniforms. One huge float should carry Primo, chained and manacled to keep him from leaping off the platform and devouring innocent bystanders as appetizers. Soldiers with pikes should surround this float and guard the populace from danger in case of escape.

The next float should be a huge cage with George Godfrey therein, straining at the bars and uttering deep growls. One fearless keeper could lean carelessly against the cage just to show that the race of brave men has not died out entirely in this country.

In the evening the main entrance to the ball park should be flooded with colored lights and there should be side-shows, pink lemonade stands, balloon venders, fortune tellers and shooting galleries along the sidewalks. At the very entrance there should be a clarion-voiced barker shouting in old-fashioned style:

"The big show, ladies and gentlemen! It is about to begin to commence. Step up and see the voluminous Venetian, Mussolini's personal man-mountain, the mastodonic mauler imported at terrific expense to entertain you this evening in a death-defying, hand-to-hand, gorgeously gripping, kaleidescopic struggle with none other, ladies and gentlemen, than the huge, overwhelming, devastating denizen of the Pennsylvania foothills, the Leaping Leopard of Leiperville. A jousting of giants! Don't miss it! Watch the fearful struggle and do not faint at the terrible crash. Move up. Step in. This way for the big show!"

An Added Danger.

There is an added danger, however, that the spectators may die laughing. The Carnera tour of the country was largely humorous, and, with his green skullcap and blacksmith's tunic, Primo will rock the spectators even if he fails to hit his opponent through the whole evening. George Godfrey is a natural comedian with a rollicking disposition.

After the sad affair at Miami and the sour spectacle at the Yankee Stadium, this affair has a great chance for success. It might be good. It is almost sure to be funny. Even a loud laugh would clear the heavyweight atmosphere, which is overcharged with skullduggery, bitterness, cheap cheating and bad sportsmanship.

As Mr. Havey Boyle, one of the Pennsylvania boxing commissioners, quite justly put it, the fans know all the circumstances and conditions that led up to this bout. They know that Godfrey had his chance against Risko and showed little as a real heavyweight contender. They know that Carnera's tour was farcical. They are not being fooled. They just want to see the circus.

Ruth on the Pennant Race.

Turning to the pennant race in the American League, for there is a pennant race in the American League this year after all, the eminent G. Herman Ruth wishes to file a dissenting opinion in a general controversy. With most authorities stating that the Washington club was strengthened by getting Heinie Manush and Alvin Crowder in exchange for Goose Goslin, the Bambino says "No!" in a deep, rumbling voice.

"How come they're strengthened?" he asked. "You've got to have somebody to drive in runs, don't you? And Goslin will drive in more runs than Manush any day. Why, a couple o' years ago they had Goslin in there when his arm was so bad he had to throw underhand and the shortstop had to run out to ferry the ball in on every play. But he was driving in a pile o' runs. They couldn't do without him. Crowder? He's just another pitcher. They'll miss Goslin, sure, and Manush won't make it up. That trade should help us."

Perhaps so, but Bob Shawkey thinks highly of Crowder as a pitcher and Manush was hitting much higher than Goslin when Al Munro Elias checked in with his last batch of statistics.

More Dope From the Bambino.

How did Ruth figure the Athletics now?

"They're weakening," said the Babe. "Give us fair-to-middling pitching and we'll beat 'em out. We've got the hitters. Our pitching was what let us down for a while."

Here he checked off a list of games in which the Yankees had big leads and lost because their pitchers couldn't hold them. He seemed to remember every play and every ball that was pitched.

"But the A's haven't got the pitching they had last year," he continued. "They couldn't expect it. It was too good to last. Earnshaw isn't going anywhere. Walberg—he's uncertain. Grove—he can beat certain clubs and he's no good against others. He can beat Boston and St. Louis, but he is lucky to finish against Cleveland and—why, they don't start him against us any more. We club him right. He's our dish."

That's the Babe's opinion, but he may be a bit prejudiced. To a certain extent, a good ball player should be prejudiced in favor of his own team and its possible chances in a pennant race. However, there is no doubt that the Mackmen are not getting the pitching they got last year and it is all for the best, for it is providing a real pennant race in place of what was expected to be a walkaway for the world's champions.

TRACK TITLE WON BY BRONX Y. M. H. A.

Scores 28 Points in Meet of Met. League of Jewish Community Associations.

The Bronx Y. M. H. A. scored 28 points to replace the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A. as the team champion in the sixteenth annual track and field meet of the Metropolitan League of Jewish Community Associations held at Macombs Dam Park yesterday. The defending titleholder finished in the runner-up position with 21 points.

Samuel Lisson of the Newark Y. M. H. A. was the lone double winner, placing first in both the 100-yard dash and broad jump. However, the Newark Y. M. H. A. did not figure in the point score, as the organization is not included in the Metropolitan League.

Max Beutel of the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A. worked his way up from the scratch position to win the two-mile A. A. U. handicap walk. Miss Mary Thompson of the Jacob H. Schiff Centre triumphed in a special 50-yard dash for girls and also placed third in the special basketball throw for girls.

BULLWINKLE FIRST IN 1,500-METER RUN

Swedish-American A. C. Athletes Capture Scandinavian-American Track Crown.

By ARTHUR J. DALEY.

George Bullwinkle took his final training fling yesterday at Ulmer Park in a special 1,500-meter race at the eighteenth annual Scandinavian-American track and field championships, prior to leaving for an invasion of European tracks. The farewell race of the intercollegiate one-mile champion was a fitting omen for success on the Continent, for he sped over heavy cinders, that were almost ankle deep in stretches, in the splendid time of 4:04.

The City College star had no solo flight around the loggy surface at Ulmer Park. He was forced to his best by the close battle that Gene Venzke gave him, the latter finishing five yards behind after clinging to Bullwinkle's rapid pace for all but the last 100 yards.

This race was an added feature to the regular championship program, the team title going to the Swedish-American A. C., which both Bullwinkle and Venzke represent. The Swedish-American combination tallied 29 points to 22 for the Norwegian Turn Society and 21 for the Kaleva A. C. One championship record was equalled when Ed Becker of the Swedish-American A. C. went over the 120-yard high hurdles in 0:16:8 to tie the mark established by Eric Almlof.

BATTING HONORS WON BY GRAUPNER OF PENN

.500 Average Gives Him Eastern Intercollegiate League Title—Myllykangas Leads Hurlers.

William S. Graupner of Pennsylvania won the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League individual batting championship and a replica of the Charles H. Blair bat, finishing the season with a .500 average by making 19 hits in 38 times at bat in the Red and Blue's ten league games, the figures announced yesterday show. Graupner's 19 hits also gave him the distinction of leading the league in total hits and in addition the Pennsylvania star scored 15 runs to tie for scoring honors with Robert A. Rolfe of Dartmouth, last year's batting champion.

Louri E. Myllykangas of Dartmouth led the league pitchers with four triumphs and no defeats and also batted in more runs than any other individual, accounting for 14.

Base stealing honors were shared by Graupner, Eugene Maiorana of Cornell and Albie Booth of Yale, each of whom stole six times during the season. Booth tried to run his total to seven thefts in the second Princeton game, but failed.

Pennsylvania captured the team batting laurels with an average of .330, with Dartmouth second with .291 and Yale third with .290. Cornell was the best team afield, leading with a .969 average. Dartmouth followed with .965 and Princeton was third with .936.

RADICAL FEATURES MISSING

New Lines Stress Wearability—Fur Trimmings Notable—Seasonal Orders Small but Numerous.

Showing of Fall lines of coats and dresses gathered momentum during the week and overshadowed other developments in this field. Retail turnover did not make much progress, with the result that volume reorders on seasonal lines were lacking, although numerous small orders were received. While presenting nothing radically new, the Fall garment lines are credited with attractiveness and wearability. Street dresses maintain their present length. Coats are more form-fitting, with waistline definitely indicated. There is a notable use of fur trimming. Black leads in colors, with browns, greens and reds following. A good deal of the immediate business is concentrated on sports wear and beach apparel. Fabric handbags continue active among the accessories. Liquidation of manufacturers' stocks continues in piece goods. In men's neckwear for Fall blues and greens are the favored shades. Printed crêpe squares are expected to be volume selling items in the new mufflers.

Following are the major style and merchandising trends as noted by leading resident buyers here:

McGREEVEY, WERRING & HOWELL, INC.—"The better ranges of street dresses maintain their present length. Evening dresses are ankle length or longer. Novelty sleeves are being strongly developed. Manufacturers are concentrating exclusively on Fall lines, and it is increasingly difficult to fill special high-price Summer merchandise orders. Evening apparel is becoming more and more elaborate and elegant. Evening flowers are being used in threes, one above the other, from the belt up in front of the gown. Enormous feather fans are being revived. Although black and brown are the outstanding shades in the new coat lines, the new red tones are creating considerable enthusiasm. High waisted and princess effects, often belted, are dominant. Junior dress manufacturers are working on small groups of new models for the next two or three weeks' business. Few Fall lines have been exhibited thus far. In children's wash dresses opinions vary on correct sleeve lengths, and manufacturers are showing both short and long sleeve models."

Blues and Greens in Neckwear.

AFFILIATED CLOTHIERS, INC.—"Blues and greens apparently are to be the leading colors in men's neckwear for Fall. Various shadings of both colors predominate in the representative neckwear lines. The wide popularity that reds have enjoyed will not be repeated as the demand for this color has waned considerably. There is a decided absence of bizarre effects, the keynote being small, neat designs. Stripes are shown to a greater extent than last season, although this type is noticeably in the minority. Persian designs are noted in warp prints. The Ascot style in mufflers is not meeting with the anticipated response. Squares predominate in both plain colors and small print designs. Printed crêpe squares will be the leading item in the popular price field, foulard twill squares in the medium price field and silk jacquard satins and brocades in the higher price ranges. Persian designs are very noticeable. White on black and black on white continue the most popular combinations."

FELIX LILIENTHAL & CO.—"Women's sportswear continues to be the outstanding item. White, contrasting with sunburned skin, is the most popular color. Suits of shantung, crêpe, linen and pique with soft frilly blouse in pastel shades are the outfits for spectator sportswomen. For afternoon and dinner wear, plain and printed chiffons with matching jacket and velvet coat, or in pastel shades, from $22.50 up are featured. Brown chiffon dresses tailored with tucks, pleats and touches of lace and lingeries as trimmings are meeting a good response as travel dresses. In the dress coat collection, the bolero bloused belt line seems to be the outstanding model. Plain colors are in good demand, since they can be utilized for both dress and sportswear. Long haired furs are holding their own as trimmings on sportswear. Berets of all descriptions are being ordered freely."

JOHN M. BIGGINS, INC.—"Fabric hand bags in linen and shantung, white and eggshell predominating, are being accorded considerable importance. Ladies' fabric gloves in white and also eggshell are still in demand and difficult to obtain for immediate delivery. Monotone travel coats and white flannel sport coats have been outstanding during the past week and are being featured locally. Printed silk crêpes and chiffons are being purchased at exceptionally low prices, with attractive merchandise available. Rough-weave silks, including shantungs and piqués, have quieted temporarily and manufacturers have reduced prices considerably. Silk manufacturers are seeking to liquidate stocks of seasonable merchandise at attractive prices."

Jacket Dress Call Active.

JAX, FLANAGAN, MESIROW COMPANY—"Jacket dresses and dresses developed in both plain and printed Shantung continue to be the volume item. Wash crêpe jacket dresses were requested all through the week and we expect to see even greater popularity for this type with the approach of the July Fourth holidays. Flowered chiffons are much in demand. Manufacturers now have available for immediate delivery unusually attractive models in new prints with silk slips. Black chiffons with silk slips are selling in volume as well as navy georgettes. Both these items will be in demand for the next few weeks to come. Desirable $3.75 dresses in wash crêpes, prints, flowered georgettes, &c., can be purchased at from $3 to $3.25 on a 10-10 basis."

MERCANDISE REPORTING COMPANY, INC.—"Apparel for beach and resort wear has been very active during the past week and we have received numerous orders on knitted sports suits in pastel shades. White sleeveless sweaters are also prominent. White coats in the lower prices are meeting with favor. The better dress market is in a very healthy condition. Many manufacturers ordinarily producing $16.50 lines went into the $10.50 range, as the season advanced, and those still manufacturing $16.50 dresses have cut with great discretion. Several large firms who made dresses at this price entered the $16.50 field and they, too, exercised great caution, so that there remains no great quantity of distress merchandise."

WILLIAM M. VAN BUREN—"The new Fall coats look very attractive and wearable. In general they follow the natural lines of the figure, with the waistline definitely indicated. The garments are more form-fitting and feature molded hiplines with low-placed fullness and no extreme flares. Back styling has come in for special attention with intricate seaming and unusual cut, giving coats a distinctly new look. The luxurious furs used include some border treatments. All types of pelts are represented. The sleeve treatmnts are ristinctly novel. Outstanding are the 'muff cuff' created by the couturiers, Martial et Armand, and the cape cuff. In colors black is leading, with brown, tan, green and red tones following."

BEN F. LEVIS—"In popular priced dresses, we have had quite a number of reorders for shantung ensembles in white, natural and flesh colors and prints. Sleeveless washables, crêpes, piqués, prints and Shantungs are popular. New numbers in navy georgettes are being shown and will enjoy a seasonal demand. In the better grades of dresses, Summer sheer frocks for afternoon and dinner wear in floral patterns, with long full skirts and even hemlines are meeting a good response. In basement dresses, printed rayons to sell for $2.98, in small and large sizes, are being reordered. Brimmed models of the fabric hats in white, pastel colors and black and white combinations are popular for sports dress wear. The Fall coat that is being featured is the form-fitting model with slightly flared bottom and bolster collar."

JACK HARTBLAY, INC.—"A considerable decrease in mail orders received during last week in boys' and men's clothing and furnishings was noted. Fewer buyers appeared in town. We have begun to place orders for boys' and men's clothing. In men's overcoats, the single-breasted box model fleece coat is popular, and in men's suits the two-button peak lapel, toned in the new tans, blues and greens is outstanding. The four-piece, two-knicker suit, in tweeds and cashmeres, patch pocket model, is receiving the call in boys' clothing. Camel-pile fabric coats, both men's and boys', have been discussed freely, although very few orders have been placed for this style. We expect, however, that this model will be outstanding, as the majority of buyers are placing sample orders for it."

PLAN NEW ACTION FOR COAL RATE CUT

TO AFFECT NORTHERN LINES

Move May Be Joined With That Attacking Eastern Rates, Now Before the Commission.

Special to the New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, June 22.—Western Pennsylvania coal operators will in the next few days file with the Interstate Commerce Commission a petition asking for a reduction in rail rates from the Pittsburgh and near-by coal districts to all northeastern points, beginning at Harrisburg and ending at Bangor, Me.

The petition will be the second stroke of local coal interests in their general fight against high rates. The operators say the rates are crippling the local coal industry by restraining its markets virtually to a small triangle north of Pittsburgh. The first stroke was the new Lake cargo complaint upon which hearings were held in Washington last week and will be resumed in Chicago Oct. 6.

Central Pennsylvania producers and those of Western Maryland have already petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission for lower eastbound rates, and hearings will be held in Washington Sept. 8, in Concord, N. H., Sept. 22 and in Boston and Washington later.

Consuming interests in the East, including the State of New Hampshire, have attacked the Eastern rates from the other end. They assert that they pay $70,000,000 a year for bituminous coal and the producers receive only $40,000,000, the rest going to railroads in freight charges.

The Western and Central Pennsylvania petitions probably will be joined in one case. The Western Pennsylvania operators, through the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau, which is fighting the Lake cargo case, will take part in the eastern hearing already set.

The Eastern case is similar to the Lake cargo case, but presents a situation even more unjust in some respects to Pennsylvania producers, they say. They have slightly lower rates to the Great Lakes than Southern competitors, but these do not, the Pennsylvania men assert, fully reflect Pennsylvania's nearness to the Lakes. In the Eastern territory, competing mines move coal many hundreds of miles further, in some cases twice as far, for the same rate, or less, as is paid by the Pennsylvanians.

The latter also complain that Eastern coal rates are higher than those on other commodities. The Central Pennsylvania producers say that it costs $66 to move a carload of cattle to New York from Pittsburgh and $191 to move a carload of coal.

ASKS NEW GAME LAW.

State Fish, Game and Forest League Outlines Program.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 22 (AP).—A survey of the State's natural resources with recommendations for their fullest utilization under present safeguards is one of the nine steps in a program presented to directors of the New York State Fish, Game and Forest League at Syracuse by the president, W. C. Dapping of Auburn.

Other recommendations in the program were:

A request that all organizations committed to conservation unite to employ and sustain on a pro rata basis a legislative representative in Albany.

A State law that will enable the conservation commissioner to fix regulations governing seasons, bag limit and similar restrictions on fish and game.

Creation of a stocking crew for instruction purposes to aid local clubs in proper stocking of streams, lakes and ponds.

A drive to create better relations between sportsmen and land owners by having the league sponsor drastic measures against the lawless element.

A movement to enlist general activity on the part of sportsmen to destroy vermin.

Continued support of reforestation on the grand scale initiated under the present program of the State Government.

Fulfillment of the league's slogan "A game refuge in every county."

SURVEYS TEXTILE ABUSES.

Council Queries Reveal "Astounding Number" to Be Considered.

An "astounding number of textile abuses and problems that require the attention of the industry as a whole" are revealed in replies to the recent questionnaire sent to a large number of textile associations by the recently formed Council of Textile Association Executives, it was announced yesterday. These have been analyzed and assigned to specific committees for consideration prior to making definite recommendations, it was added.

The committees are: Plan and scope, headed by H. C. Oppenheimer of the Clothing Cotton Converters' Association and C. H. LeRoy of the Rayon Fabrics Institute, vice chairman; trade abuses, Henry Lauten, Converters' Association, chairman, and J. R. Corbett, spun silk research committee, vice chairman, and cooperation and expansion, of which H. S. Morgan of the National Upholstery Textile Association is chairman. The latter committee will seek cooperation with those associations not members of the council, which is headed by Charles L. Bernheimer.

LIVE STOCK IN CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Cattle prices are the lowest for this time of year since 1924. Hogs are the lowest since 1924, with the exception of 1927, and are about $1.30 under last year's average, while cattle are $2.25 lower than last year on fancy steers. Sheep and lambs are the lowest in ten years. Liquidation in live stock has been as drastic as that in grains.

The top price on fancy beef steers last week was $12.75, the same as the previous week, while the lowest level for common grades was $7.50, or 75 cents under the preceding week's low level. Average of beef steers here for the week was $9.85, the lowest since last January, showing a decline of 80 cents from the previous week and compared with $14.55 last year. Net losses on the general run of steers, cows and heifers for the week was 50 to 75 cents, while stockers and feeders were off 50 cents. It was not a case of excessive supplies, as arrivals of 39,800 cattle at Chicago were 5,000 fewer than in the previous week and 2,000 fewer than a year ago, but of inadequate demand.

Hog prices are within 25 cents of the low level of the year. The best figure of the week was $9.75, prevailing on three days. The close was $9.85. The average for the week of $9.65 showed a loss of 15 cents from the previous week and $1.20 from a year ago. Supplies so far during the Summer season at eleven markets have been 3 per cent smaller than last year, while during the Winter they were 4.3 per cent under 1929.

Larger supplies of the general run of lambs made an average of $11.65. This, however, was 10 cents higher than in the previous week but $3.30 below last year. Sheep averaged $2.85, compared with $3.25 the previous week and $5.85 last year.

There is a heavy consumption of lambs and mutton. Prices for dressed lambs were the same as the previous week, 12 to 26 cents. Fresh dressed beef averaged 1 to 1½ cents lower at 14 to 20 cents, while pork loins were 1 to 1½ cents lower at 15 to 22 cents in the wholesale market.

CHICAGO SEES TRADE GAIN IN SEPTEMBER

Increase in Buying of Dry Goods Expected This Week From Rotary Convention.

BUSINESS IS "FAIR" NOW

Decline in Steel Operations Is Laid to Drop in Buying by Auto Manufacturers.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Business is reported fair here in all lines, and careful forecasters are looking for no marked improvement until the middle or last part of September. The volume is about the same as in 1928.

In the steel industry operations have suffered another decline, being around 70 per cent of capacity in the Chicago district. Leaders expect a continuation of the present volume. Decline in the automobile industry is given as the real reason for lessened buying of steel. Implement schedules also have fallen off, and railroads are doing little new buying. Oil interests are furnishing the best tonnage schedules for steel tanks and pipe lines. Production of pig iron is lighter. There has been no blowing out of furnaces hereabout, but stacks are not being crowded, and supplies are greater. Lake iron is cutting an important figure, with about 12,000 tons on the docks here selling at $17 to $18 and Chicago furnace men are holding No. 2 foundry at $18.50.

Leading consumers of coal are not in the market for supplies, although their stocks have been reduced. Lessened activity is apparent among lumber mills in about all districts, owing to lessened consumption. Building activity in the Chicago district is more animated, giving employment to larger numbers, while factory jobs are furnishing less work. There is said to be about 149,000 unemployed in the Chicago district.

Buying of dry goods among wholesalers fell off, but this week is expected to increase activity, as the annual convention of rotary clubs is to be held here, and buyers from all over the world are scheduled to attend and to make large purchases. Pre-inventory sales, it is estimated, will bring a greater distribution of all merchandise.

COMMODITY PRICE INDICES.

Decreases Here and in England and Italy Are Shown.

NEW HAVEN, June 22.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of commodity prices, based on 100 as the average of 1926, is 86.2, which compares with 87.0 a week ago, 87.6 two weeks ago, 87.8 three weeks ago and 88.4 four weeks ago. The average of Jan. 24, at 90.2, was the highest of the year to date and also the highest since the last week of October; last week's average is the lowest. The highest average of 1929 was 99.2 on July 2; the lowest was 92.2 on Nov. 22.

Crump's index number of British commodity prices, as cabled for the past week and also based on 100 as the average for 1926, is 78.0, which compares with 79.3 a week ago, 79.8 two weeks ago, 80.1 three weeks ago and 80.4 four weeks ago. The average of Jan. 2, which was 87.5, was the highest of the year to date; last week's average was the lowest. The 94.4 of April 5 was the highest in 1929; the 88 of Dec. 27 was the lowest.

The index number of average Italian prices, compiled and cabled by the Chamber of Commerce at Milan and based on 100 as the average of 1926, is 63.4. This compares with 63.8 a week before, 64.0 two weeks before, 64.2 three weeks before and 64.3 four weeks before. The average of Jan. 3, which was 69.9, was the highest of the year to date; last week's average is the lowest. FINANCIAL MARKETS

The Fall in Stocks and the Reduction of Staple Prices.

The three incidents which stood out forcibly in last week's financial picture—the renewed and rapid fall in price for many staple products, the violent break on the Stock Exchange, and the fixing by the New York Reserve Bank of the lowest discount rate in its sixteen years of history—were in many ways inter-related. Fourteen commodities, including not only nearly all the agricultural products but such materials as copper, zinc, lead, tin, silk and rubber, went under the present year's previous low prices, many of them selling for less than at any time since the deflation of 1921. The stock market, which had not been prepared for these fresh reductions and which could not see clearly what their effect would be on business activities or profits, readjusted its own values instantly to a lower level. Confronted with evidence of progressively lighter need for credit facilities in trade, both because of the lower prices and because of greatly reduced activity, rates on the open money market had been falling to exceptionally low figures; the cut in the bank rate followed.

For the recent fall of staple prices there were reasons in current developments. With wheat and cotton, the existence of a wholly abnormal surplus of supplies over current requirements has been notorious for a year, but producers and the markets had been reckoning vaguely either on short harvests in 1930 or on drastic world-wide reduction in planted acreage, whereby the new supplies would fall far short of current requirements as they did in 1924. This has not occurred. With certain foreign materials foreign overproduction has apparently played a part. It has been greatly emphasized by the progressive and world-wide shrinkage in consuming power as the reaction in business activities appeared to be emphasized. In the case of many other commodities it had been thought that the recent absence of accumulated inventories was a safeguard against precipitous declines. But what the markets of 1930 appear to teach is that overstimulated consumption of "boom times" can make the position almost as vulnerable as outright overproduction.

In all these products, the recent heavy break represented a determined effort to reach such values as would enlarge the slackening consumption and correct the unbalanced markets. At some point in a fall of prices, this new demand is certain to appear, but it is slow in developing while a decline continues. Back of all such considerations stands the fact that, although the depreciated currencies and reduced productive power which followed the great war have been removed as influences, and although prices have already been lowered substantially since 1926 and 1928, the general average is still 25 per cent or more above the pre-war figure.

The fall in stocks this month has been precipitated partly by the stock market's own previous mistaken views, even in recent months, regarding the immediate course of trade and therefore the earnings of producing or transporting companies. The miscalculation was apparently made worse by the fact that last year's wildly extravagant ideas of intrinsic values had not been absolutely corrected. It is never easy to shake off instantly the whole of such misconceptions, or to dismiss the notion of another uprush of Stock Exchange prices similar to those of 1925 or 1927. In proportion as radical change in the underlying position comes to be recognized, the level at which real support of the market can be attracted is necessarily reduced.

On the whole, and notwithstanding the discouraging influence of such a pace of downward readjustment, for financial as well as for industrial values, it is quite as well that the markets should have chosen the surest and quickest course for reestablishing equilibrium and getting in touch again with the realities. When that has been effected, low prices and low money rates become highly important contributory causes to sustained recovery. The remarkable chapter of post-war financial and economic achievement in this country did not begin in 1919 or 1920, but at the lowest point in the subsequent deflation.

LONDON OPTIMISTIC ON MONEY MARKET

Sees New York Bank Rate Cut as Easing the Demand for Gold There.

STOCK SLUMP ANALYZED

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 22.—The reduction in the New York bank rate has taken the London market by surprise. More or less official hints of the coming change had been given out in the preceding few days, while abundant credit supplies and the business depression provided sufficient ground for the action, which probably also was based on international as well as domestic events.

It is unlikely that the fall of the New York rate will affect the Bank of England's rate, which is low enough, having regard to the bank's own position and the unfavorable condition of foreign exchanges, but the reduction of the American rate should tend to divert foreign borrowing to New York and possibly lessen the gold demands upon London. In any case the effect on foreign exchanges should be favorable.

The approach of the end of the half-year has placed additional pressure upon exchanges, but this will diminish when the present month is turned. Already the fall of the New York rate has had a favorable effect upon sterling, while the reduction of the German bank rate has also assisted in changing the general position to London's advantage.

Money Market Pressure.

Within the next few days the money market will be experiencing the customary pressure at the conclusion of the half-year. Anticipations of this and the steady increase in recent weeks in the supply of treasury bills has resulted in a material advance in discount rates, but expectations of a further rise in the market rates will probably not be fulfilled in view of the favorable influence which the cut in the New York rate is likely to have on the international monetary situation.

The slump in Wall Street found full reflection in the London stock market last week. To the apprehension aroused by the weakness of the security market in New York were added the fears aroused by a simultaneous relapse in commodity prices. Much liquidation has been necessitated by these events, and rumors of financial difficulties have circulated freely. These difficulties, however, are considerably exaggerated, and no failures are expected on the Stock Exchange.

The week closed with some show of returning confidence. The rally in Wall Street, reduction of the New York bank rate and recovery in certain leading commodities are the principal factors helping to place a better complexion upon affairs.

As viewed here, Wall Street is awakening to the fact that there is a real business depression, yet it is not regarded as an altogether unsatisfactory development, painful though its immediate consequences may be. It is set forth that as long as the stock market continued to move upward in the face of increasing weakness in nearly all other directions of financial and commercial activity there was an overhanging danger of collapse. Now that this has come and the seriousness of the business situation and outlook is realized, there is prospect of more stable conditions, which are badly needed to restore confidence, it is argued.

America's decision at such a time to indulge in a wholesale upward revision of tariffs is regarded here as the height of folly, and it is impossible to determine what the ultimate effects of this policy will be; but if the essential result is to bring about a marked revulsion of feeling toward such hindrances to trade, then something may actually be gained.

Factors in Wheat Decline.

Meanwhile the general effect of the stock market frenzy and the tumbling commodity prices in America has produced weakness abroad which cannot be cured by any change for the batter which may occur in Wall Street. The view here of the American stock market, however, is that it must and will conform to the business situation as it actually is and not as it has been falsely represented to be. There may be some lessening of current pessimism, but there is no room yet for optimism, and this will be the ruling influence for some time to come, it is held.

The American stock market slump and the generally more favorable crop reports were the main factors in last week's wheat market relapse. Latest reports regarding European crops were not, however, sufficiently promising as to suggest that it will not be necessary to import larger quantities than last year. It is obvious, in fact, that European harvests will be less favorable and that more wheat than last year will be required from other countries, although import duties may tend to keep purchases below the apparent requirements. North America is expected to have more wheat at the end of this season's harvest than can conveniently be handled and financed, while it would appear that the increased visible supply of old wheat in the United States will about make up for any decrease in this year's harvest.

Industrial Stock Index Down.

Beerbohm has estimated that the world's surplus at the end of the crop year will be approximately 25,000,000 bushels, against 40,000,000 bushels at end of the previous year. The Ministry of Labor estimates the cost of living at the end of May at 54 per cent above July, 1914, against 55 a month ago and 69 a year ago. Unemployment during May showed a further increase, the percentage out of work among 12,100,000 working people on May 26 being 15.3, against 14.6 the month before and 9.7 a year ago.

The Financial News index of thirty industrial shares on June 19 was 80, against 81.6 the previous week, 86.6 at the beginning of the year and 103.5 at the end of June last year.

New capital issues since the flotation of the German loan have been limited to comparatively small industrial offerings. The general condition of the markets does not favor any immediate increase in new capital offers, but arrangements are making some progress in connection with loans for Hungary and Austria. The Hungarian issue probably will come first and be an international issue for £12,500,000. It is believed, however, that a certain amount of restriction is still being imposed upon the issue of foreign loans in the London market and that these will be confined to more important and urgent requirements.

LOWER BANK RATE FORECAST IN BERLIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 22.—The reduction in the Reichsbank's discount rate by only one-half of 1 per cent, made on Friday, caused some disillusion.

A reduction of this amount was inevitable after the flotation of the mobilization loan, even if other central bank rates remained unchanged, and the unexpected cut by the New York Federal Reserve Bank on the preceding day, therefore, led optimists to predict that the Reichsbank would cut its rate by 1 per cent to 3½. This would have brought the official rate only into accord with the private discount rate, which last week was reduced to the record low level of 3½ per cent. Conservative judges, however, considered that the New York Federal Bank's cut was tentative and probably aimed at checking the Wall Street decline, and that it might be soon followed by an increase, all the more so because some authorities expect that America may be compelled to resume the export of gold. The Reichsbank's president, Dr. Luther, therefore shrank from a 1 per cent cut. If, however, Paris and other centres follow New York's example, the Reichsbank may within the next few weeks cut again. The present 4 per cent rate is below the average rate of pre-war years.

That the Reichsbank remains out of touch with the private money market is shown by the fact that day loans all week were available at from 2 to 4½ per cent, while first-class borrowers got funds at one-half of 1 per cent.

Easy Credit to Continue.

Berlin sees no prospect of dearer money and expects also a general international cheapening of capital. This is indicated by the flood of new projects for home and foreign loans and by the report that the Mitteldeutsche Kraftwerke Corporation negotiated an American-Swiss-Dutch loan of $4,000,000 on exceptionally favorable conditions: 6 per cent issue at a price of 98½. This makes a favorable contrast with recent foreign loans where an effective interest rate reached around 8 per cent.

The reason for the improvement is not only the liquidity of international capital but also the impression made on foreign capital by the remarkable improvement of Germany's trade and payment balance. The official balance of foreign payments shows that Germans in 1929 bought foreign stocks and bonds to the value of 1,266,000,000 marks, whereas foreigners bought German stocks and bonds to the amount of 1,417,000,000. The investment account, therefore, nearly balanced. This disposes of the legend that Germany is paying its reparations by transferring large capital values abroad. As against 329,000,000 marks in long-term loans from foreign sources in 1929, Germany lent 153,000,000 on long-term credits, and against 1,650,000,000 marks in short-term foreign credits she lent 498,000,000 on short terms.

In most other respects the payment balance greatly improved, but the net interest liability on foreign loans rose to 873,000,000 marks, against 563,000,000 in 1929. This increase was mainly due to the rise in interest rates on short credits.

Business Not Improving.

The business situation has not improved. Authorities increasingly identify the present world stagnation in business and stock markets with the fall of the prices of commodities and comment significantly on the fact that Wall Street's collapse was simultaneous with a new fall in American prices.

The exceptional severity of the fall of prices in America as compared with Europe is attributed to the fact that in Europe prices of numerous staple commodities, such as iron, steel and cereals, are kept up either by State measures of syndicate control or both together. One instance is Germany. Here since 1928 the average prices of controlled commodities have risen 5 per cent at a time when the average prices of commodities with free markets have fallen nearly 20 per cent.

German alarmists predict that the American fall of prices ultimately will increase the wave of American competition with Europe. This fear is a powerful factor behind the German Government's new propaganda for a reduction of industrial working cost.

Railroad traffic has fallen sharply. Receipts from freight traffic in April were 21.5 per cent below those of April, 1929. For the first five months of the year total receipts were 260,000,000 marks below those of the corresponding months of 1929.

Unemployment Increased.

The percentage of unemployment among members of labor unions at the end of May was 19.8, against 9.1 on the same date in 1929. This increase is largely due to the exceptional stagnation in building. It is estimated that one-third of all unemployed are in trades dependent on building.

Steel output in May was 1,034,088 tons, against 1,421,319 tons in May, 1929, and in the first five months of the year was nearly 1,200,000 tons less than the figure for the same months in 1929. The output of rolling mills was 700,000 tons less. Home and export markets for steel show no improvement. The paper industry, which hitherto has been active, begins to show a sharp decline. Unemployment in it in May was double that of May, 1929.

The government is expected to put in force a new import duty on aluminum, which hitherto has been duty free, on July 1 and simultaneously to abolish the present import prohibition.

Exports of optical instruments show a big increase, particularly to Russia and the United States. In the first four months of 1930 the export value exceeded that of the exports for the whole of 1913. The big export surplus of 266,000,000 marks in May was mainly a consequence of the record low imports of 831,000,000 marks, which was 300,000,000 below the normal import figure for May. The fall in imports of raw materials to 454,000,000 marks from 614,000,000 marks in May, 1929, was due to the stagnation of home trade. While imports fell heavily, exports increased, particularly those of manufactured goods. This also was a result of the poor home trade, which compelled manufacturers to export their products at any prices obtainable. The foreign trade position is precisely as it was in 1926 when home trade was stagnant, imports fell and the trade balance became heavily active.

Europe's Crop Prospects.

Central European crop prospects are very good. The general diagnosis points to better European crops than in 1929, with the exception of France and Italy. Russia is offering rye in considerable quantities. The Hungarian crop outlook is reported good. A farming crisis in Hungary is reported to be inevitable in consequence of the enormous disparity between agricultural and industrial prices, the index for the former having fallen to 83 against 126 for the latter.

Early last week the Berlin Boerse was entirely under the influence of the Wall Street collapse on Monday, which was taken as a premonition that the American trade depression will last longer than was earlier expected. This led to heavy foreign selling, including American, of German stocks, and as home buyers held aloof, quotations dropped sharply. Wall Street's decline on Wednesday had no immediate effect in Berlin and the market on Thursday recovered, but on Friday, although the cut in the Reichsbank rate induced initial gains, these were lost later in the day.

The Frankfurter Zeitung's index of stocks on June 13 was 107.90, against 109.47 on June 6. At the middle of last week the stock average was at about the lowest point of the year and the lowest since 1926.

SELLS WHEEL FACTORY.

Motors Disposes of Wooden Plant—Gets Wire Wheel Patents.

Alfred P. Sloan, president of the General Motors Corporation, announced yesterday that the corporation had sold to the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Corporation the plant and manufacturing facilities of the Jaxon Steel Products Company, formerly engaged in the manufacture of wooden wheels and rims.

"Incident to these negotiations," Mr. Sloan said, "General Motors has acquired the necessary patent rights covering the manufacture of wire wheels and the production of such equipment will be set up in one of the other divisions of the corporation, where it is believed it can be carried on to the best advantage."

BOURSE DEPRESSED BY WEAK MARGINS

MONEY PLENTIFUL IN PARIS

Bank of France Shows Further Reduction in Circulation—Gold Reserve Increases.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 22.—Money is still extremely abundant here. The proceeds of the German loan have not yet been paid into the Treasury by the banks that received subscriptions and the money remains available in the market, but will be withdrawn soon.

The Bank of France's return for June 13 shows a further reduction in circulation by 622,000,000 francs. The Treasury account increased 355,000,000 francs and the caisse amortissement account 163,000,000. Private deposits rose 65,000,000 francs. No other noteworthy change occurred except an increase of 82,000,000 francs in the gold reserve, arising from gold purchases made in London by Paris. The ratio of reserves to liabilities rose from 50.92 to 51.05 per cent, a record figure.

The Bourse was very bad last week, the slight recovery noticed at the end of the week being without much significance. The real cause of the crisis was that the market was much more heavily engaged than had been reported. There still remained bull commitments of speculators who were unable to cover marginal losses and who had to be sold out at the June 15 settlement. Authoritative financial circles do not believe that a general upward movement is possible, but that, on the contrary, certain speculative securities may fall still lower.

German Loan Well Received.

The German loan was well received by the public, but foreign slices are still being offered, though they do not seem to meet the same favor here. As already reported, the French Government is said to be considering the taking of a major part if not all the German bonds, to be issued in 1931, with a view of offering to exchange bearer French rentes when the latter are convertible, but nothing here has indicated the making of a decision in the matter.

Trade and industry continue to feel the effects of the general crisis, although certain industries, particularly that of metallurgy, had hitherto been almost untouched. The luxury trades complain most. An all-around fall in commodity prices, it is said, would be logical, but the large extent to which taxes enter into cost prices must be taken into account here. Despite a slight decrease in the rates, taxation is still a heavy burden on costs. Moreover, there seems no prospect of reduction in wages just now. America's new tariff is expected here to act as an obstacle to lower internal prices.

Decline in Tax Receipts.

May tax receipts were 3,172,000,000 francs, a decrease of 32,000,000 francs, compared with 1929. Direct taxes were 507,000,000 francs, an increase of 108,000,000; indirect taxes, 2,652,000,000 francs, a decrease of 141,000,000, and national property taxes, 13,000,000 francs, a decrease of 1,500,000. Although tax collections for May were slightly smaller, the prospect is considered satisfactory. The only fears expressed are that Parliamentary leanings toward demagogic measures are dangerous for budget equilibrium.

The April industrial index was at 144 points, against 144 in March and an average of 139 last year. The index of the mechanical industries was put at 161, compared with averages of 161 in March and 138 last year; metallurgy 129, compared with 132 and 139, respectively; textiles, 86, compared with 85 and 92; mining, 124, compared with 126 and 117; building, 129, compared with 123 and 130; leather, 116, compared with 114 and 119; paper, 145, compared with 141 and 119; rubber, 908, compared with 913 and 861; automobiles, 685, compared with 686 and 657.

DECLINE BEGINNING IN DUTCH CONDITIONS

Agriculture Suffering From Low Prices—Cotton Goods Industry Hurt by Japanese Competition.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, June 22.—The financial situation in Western Europe is still far from satisfactory, finding expression in the weak course of the stock markets. Dutch stocks have declined considerably lately, especially industrials including rubbers. Philips Incandescent is quoted at 340 against 465 on Jan. 2 and Amsterdam Rubber at 113 against 161.

A decline in general economic conditions in Holland, which, until now, have been rather satisfactory, is beginning. Dutch agriculture especially is suffering severely from low prices, and government help has been asked. The cotton goods industry also is suffering depression, chiefly from Japanese competition.

The chief problems of Europe, of course, are in commodity prices and unemployment. Measures to cure the latter have proved useless. Still, the Dutch banking world is not pessimistic, and the opinion is that wholesale prices probably have reached bottom, inviting slight recovery in the early Autumn. Indeed, there are some better symptoms, such as the growth of foreign trade in Great Britain during May and the decline of unemployment in America in May. Moreover, bankers, being in close touch with the security holders, state that present holdings of stocks are in strong hands and therefore under no selling pressure. Definite improvement in the woolen goods factories is another symptom. The German Norddeutsche Wollkaemerei, though passing its dividend, reports better position than in 1929 and more orders. Still, confidence in Germany here is not great.

The Dutch syndicate on the German international loan on Wednesday only placed 40 per cent of the amount offered. The German loan also was dealt in in London at a discount.

European confidence in the American market again was shaken by occurrences last week and this week. The still lower level caused English and Dutch buying to a fairly important extent. The problem is not about the possibility of the recovery of America, but when. The general impression is that many American stocks are still too high, but that economic recovery is sure to come within not too long a time.

BERLIN PRESS PESSIMISTIC.

Shares Views of Reichsbank Head on Lowered Bank Rate.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 22.—The financial press shares the pessimism of Dr. Luther, head of the Reichsbank, as to the stimulating effect that the reduction of the official bank rate to 4 per cent, the lowest since July, 1914, may have on the economic situation. The papers hope, however, that, together with other governmental measures, it will help to revive an enterprising spirit and prevent a further spreading of hopelessness.

Announcing the reduction before the central committee of the Reichsbank, Dr. Luther said that since May 19, when the bank rate was reduced to 4½ per cent, the liquidity of the international money markets had increased despite the emission of the Young Loan, and therefore the reserve exercised by the Reichsbank was unfounded. However, "as much as the Reichsbank strives to relieve the economic situation and give it further impulse, recovery depends on other strong factors beyond the Reichsbank's reach," he concluded.

WESTINGHOUSE UNIT IS FORMED IN SPAIN

DIRECTORS ARE ELECTED

75 Per Cent of Stock Goes to Spanish Groups to Make It a National Enterprise.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company announced yesterday that through its subsidiary, the Westinghouse Electric International Company, it had joined Spanish financial and industrial leaders in the formation of a new company, the Constructora Nacional Maquinaria Electrica. The new company, which is capitalized at 12,000,000 pesetas, will manufacture electric generators, motors, transformers and other electrical apparatus in Spain. The announcement says:

"Arrangements have been made whereby the new company will collaborate with both the Westinghouse Electric International Company and Le Materiel Electrique S-W, the French company formed recently by Schneider-Crousot and Westinghouse interests. These arrangements secure for the Spanish company engineering, manufacturing and research information, the granting of exclusive patent rights for Spain and the technical guidance of the Westinghouse Company.

"The new company will be a national Spanish industrial enterprise in every respect. Seventy-five per cent of its stock has been subscribed for by a Spanish group consisting of Banco de Bilboa, Sociedad Espanola de Construccion Naval and Sociedad Española de Construcciones Electric Mecanicas. The remaining 25 per cent has been taken by its French and American associated companies.

"The new company has taken over the electrical business of the Electro Mecanicas organization (which, however, retains its extensive copper interests) and has acquired from 'Naval' an existing plant in Cordoba and ground on which it will build a new factory in Reinosa.

"At the first constituent general meeting, held in Madrid June 18, the following directors were elected: Don José Joaquin de Ampuero, chairman; Julio de Arteche, José Aresti, Count de Gamazo, Alejandro de Calonje, Alfredo Bauer, Lino Arisqueta, Señor Palle and I. F. Baker. The first six members of this board are all prominently identified with Spanish commerce and industry, each being associated, as director or officer, with a number of banks, railroads, steamship companies and industrials. Mr. Arisqueta is an attorney; M. Palle represents Le Materiel Electrique S-W, and Mr. Baker represents the Westinghouse Electric International Company."

DECLINE IN BANK STOCKS.

Total Drop Here Since April 1 Put at $2,000,000,000.

Aggregate market values of New York City bank and trust company stocks have shown a decline of more than $2,000,000,000 from their high prices for the current year, according to an analysis prepared by The American Banker.

This is the extent of the drop since the first of April, when the average of twenty leading issues was at the high point for the year. Total market valuations of 100 Manhattan, Brooklyn and Queens national and State banks, trust and holding companies' shares actively traded in the over-the-counter market at present amounts to $5,701,517,874. Of this sum $5,455,955,374, or more than 95 per cent, is accounted for by twenty-five of the largest banks on the list.

The high mark for 1930 for the twenty-five largest was a market valuation of $7,471,329,800 in April, so that the last week's valuation of the identical twenty-five capital stock issues of $5,455,945,874 represents a decline of $2,015,384,426, or more than 36 per cent, says The American Banker.

WILL WAR ON STOCK FRAUD.

District Attorneys of Massachusetts Unite for a Drive.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., June 22.—Attorney General Warner and the District Attorneys of Massachusetts announce a drive against perpetrators of stock frauds, who are said to be swindling Massachusetts people out of $50,000,000.

It will follow up the prosecutions, now under way in Middlesex County, where eighteen defendants will go on trial soon.

The drive is aimed not only to protect the public against fraud, but also to safeguard the interest of reputable investment houses, banks and brokers.

The situation revealed during an investigation of the sale of Page & Shaw and interlocking corporations stock is one reason for the present action.

UTILITY EARNINGS.

American Commonwealths Power.

Gross earnings of the American Commonwealths' Power Corporation and affiliated companies for the twelve months ended May 31 amounted to $27,053,570, compared with $20,157,758 in the preceding twelve months. Net earnings available for dividends and reserves were $5,244,404, against $2,355,659. Frank T. Hulswit, president, said that the improvement in earnings may be considered as a striking commentary on the state of business in the territories in which the operating companies furnish gas and electric service.

CORPORATION REPORT.

Exchange Buffet.

The Exchange Buffet Corporation reports for the year ended April 30 net profit of $550,000 after depreciation, interest, Federal taxes and the amount set aside under its profit-sharing plan, equivalent to earnings of $2.21 a share on the number of shares outstanding on Dec. 31.

END APPEARS NEAR IN STEEL DECLINE

PRICE SHADING CONTINUES

Demand for Line Pipe Will Probably Keep Mills Busy for Several Months.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, June 22.—Predictions are fairly general for a business revival in the Autumn, but the time and the extent of the revival are left largely to the imagination. If there was an excess of confidence in the steel trade early in the year, leading to stocking up, one would suppose the liquidation would have been completed before this time. Whatever deficiency occurred in production in November and December of last year was made up by the January-February bulge, and production in the four months after the stock market broke was no smaller than that for which the industry appeared to be headed before that surprise came.

Steel production has decreased more rapidly in the last couple of weeks than formerly, the rate last week having been about 65 per cent of total ingot capacity. The rate of decline is likely to be less rapid in future, as the usual seasonal low point is being approached, but the appraisal made a week ago, that July might show a 65 per cent rate, must now be dismissed. The chances are rather that July will run under 60 per cent rather than over. The lower the rate, however, the easier it will be for some sort of recovery to occur.

From what can now be seen, the automobile industry does not promise any progressive improvement. The average distribution of automobiles prior to last year was approximately 55 per cent in the first half of the year and 45 per cent in the second half. The first five months of this year conformed closely to the usual seasonal distribution, while now there are reports that July will show a larger dip than usual.

The farm implement industry ran extremely well in the first five months of the year, and the present tapering off is seasonal. No definite information is available regarding prospects after the usual lull.

Structural fabricating shops are in position to maintain their high operating rate. Their peak order book for several years was found last September, but since then the loss has been only slight. Freight car shops, on the other hand, are nearly out of orders, but they do not take a great deal of steel at any time.

Line pipe is the most promising steel item. Production was small in the first three months of the year, while it is reasonably certain that all available capacity in the larger sizes will be fully occupied for many months. This, however, does not account for a great deal of steel. A part of this capacity was in the old days well occupied making casing for new wells, and demand in that direction now is very light.

As to prices, no one doubts that bars, shapes and plates will undergo a downward readjustment from the levels now quoted, as the prices are chiefly for carload orders and there has been erratic, occasionally deep, shading for weeks.

YOUNGSTOWN OUTPUT DOWN.

Steel Schedules for This Week Indicate 60 Per Cent Capacity.

Special to the New York Times.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, June 22.—Declines in steel production this month are accentuated in schedules announced for this week, which indicate an average operating rate of 60 per cent. The Carnegie Steel Company reduces operations 10 per cent to an average rate of 58 per cent, its lowest in several years. Until the reduction annnounced for this week the Carnegie company has maintained schedules at 70 per cent in this district.

Of fifty-one independent open-hearth furnaces twenty-eight are scheduled, with Bessemer steel output at 60 per cent. There is an increase in the number of active sheet mills in the valley to sixty-three of 120 total, against forty-seven rolling the week before. Not all of the mills, however, are scheduled for a full week's rolling.

Both of the larger independents, the Republic Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, are maintaining 65 per cent average. These two companies expect to get into production during July on recent steel pipe awards in which they shared liberally.

Independent tin plate mills are averaging 60 per cent, while strip mills are closer to 65 per cent, which represents a moderate gain in output.

Joins the Community Trust.

The Bankers Trust Company has become one of the trustees of the New York Community Trust, which administers bequests under living trusts or wills for educational, charitable and philanthropic purposes, it was announced yesterday. Henry J. Cochran, president of the trust company, will represent it on the trustee's committee of community trust and H. F. Wilson Jr., vice president, will act as his alternate.

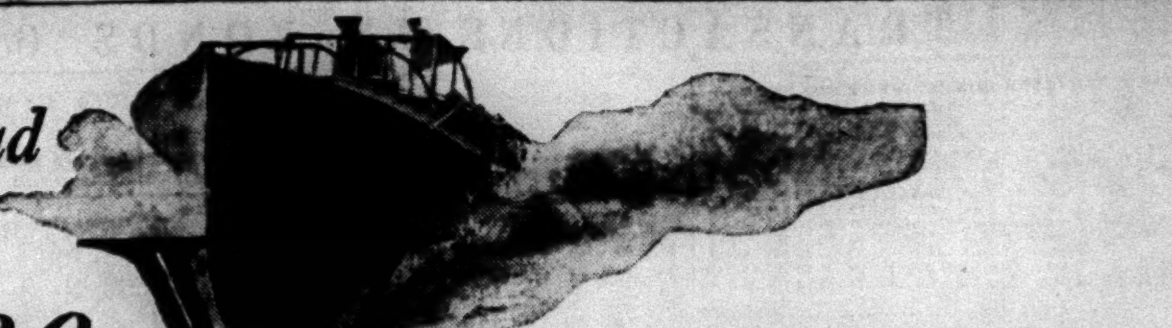
A Care-free VACATION



THE IRVING TRUST COMPANY
announces a new service unit
. . . Vacation Financial Service

MANY MEN of large financial responsibilities often accept worry about their investments as a necessary vacation evil. And it is true that protection against the hazards which arise when a man is away from his base of operations has always been a problem.

To such men, Irving Trust Company now offers Vacation Financial Service, through a special service unit in each Banking Office.

• • •

IF YOU WILL MAKE KNOWN your problems to the official in charge, he will recommend what facilities you require. Among those available are the following:

1. CUSTODY SERVICE: You can place your securities in custody under a letter of instructions which may authorize such action as their exchange, or their sale at a stated price, or the exercise of rights.

You may request wired or cabled information of new developments affecting these securities and your return instructions will be immediately executed.

2. FINANCIAL ARRANGEMENTS: Naturally you can make arrangements for such routine requirements as letters of credit, travelers' checks, and foreign currencies.

3. SPECIAL AIDS: Payment of maturing obligations . . . tax details . . . many similar services may be arranged if you require them.

If you expect to be out of touch this summer, consult the official in charge of this new service unit at the nearest Irving Banking Office.

Some men seem to need active sports . . . with the thrill of danger . . . as relief from business routine. Read at the right how the Irving gives you relief from financial routine.

Other men prefer the wilderness . . . but almost all can find, in the service facilities of a progressive bank, aid in making a vacation carefree.

Golf brings relaxation . . . if the mind is free of financial cares. Investigate how the Irving can help you this summer.

Discuss your financial problems frankly with any Irving officer . . . benefit from his experience in helping solve the problems of others. The new Irving Vacation Financial Service is only one of a broad range of services created to meet the modern needs of men of affairs.

DECLINES IN COTTON FAIL TO SPUR SALES

WEATHER GOOD FOR CROP

Lower Quotations for Stocks and Securities Blamed Partly for Setbacks.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, June 22.—Price fluctuations were wide and irregular in fairly active trading in cotton last week.

Heavy liquidation in the July position in the first few days of the week was attributable to trailers, but its great scope led many traders to believe the cooperatives were getting rid of some July commitments, although this was denied by those managing the deal for them.

Despite the heavy liquidation, it is held that a large short interest still remains uncovered in the July position, and consequently rather heavy issues of notices are looked for next Wednesday, the first July notice day here and in New York. The certificated stock now exceeds 730,000 bales at delivery points, including about 220,000 bales in New York. This stock takes in cotton tendered on May contracts held by the Farm Loan Board through the cooperatives and is not expected to be available for delivery on July contracts.

While the probable disposition of the July deal is still a live issue, it figures less in market calculations than it did. It is assumed that all contracts not liquidated in the meantime will be represented in the notices to be issued next Wednesday and that the cooperatives, backed by the Farm Loan Board, will absorb the bulk of, if not all, the cotton tendered on July contracts.

It is the general understanding, however, that the Farm Loan Board, having cared for the July contracts, will keep out of the contract market thereafter until it is seen whether the new crop is moved normally and at reasonable prices. This is expected to permit the market to resume its normal state and to put an end to the situation that has existed for several months, with the price of old-crop contracts virtually pegged.

The market was more or less influenced last week by conditions other than the liquidation of July. The weather played an important part, and as it was on the whole favorable to the crop, the general impression prevailed that the crop had made satisfactory progress. The crop as a whole is now in a fair state of cultivation. It is said to be decidedly late in Texas and Oklahoma, but with the hot, dry weather prevailing all over the belt it is hoped the plants will make up for lost time.

The usual private reports of insect damage are beginning to filter in, and boll weevil are reported to be doing injury in Texas and in parts of the eastern belt. Disposition has been to ignore the weevils as a possible menace to the crop, but the voracious little insect will probably have to be reckoned with before the season is over.

Another and important influence in the cotton market last week was the depression in the stock market and the decline in grain. It is contended on the one hand that the drop in securities has been due to the decline in commodities, and on the other that commodities have weakened as a result of the slump in stocks.

Another important factor in the decline in prices was the dullness in cotton goods trade, both at home and abroad. The domestic demand for cotton goods has been sluggish. As a result the mills have increased curtailment of production, and this has been reflected in the shrinkage in the demand for raw cotton. Foreign markets have been as dull as, if not duller than, those on this side of the Atlantic. Unrest in India, leading to a boycott of foreign goods, and the decline in silver, influencing unfavorably Oriental trade generally, have caused British mills to cut production and consequently to curtail the demand for American cotton.

PROTESTS TO HOOVER ON VISITORS' VISAS

Trade Board Forwards Complaints That Foreigners Are Questioned Unnecessarily.

The New York Board of Trade has written to President Hoover protesting against the alleged attitude of the employes of some American consulates in submitting applicants for visas to visit the United States to unnecessarily severe questioning, thus discouraging travel. President Hoover has referred the protest to the Department of State.

The Board of Trade recently started a campaign to encourage foreigners to visit this country, and its survey of deterrent factors revealed that foreigners seeking visas are closely questioned as to whether they are bona fide tourists or immigrants. A. P. de Malglaive, representative of the French Line in the United States and Canada, was one complainant to the board.

"Such investigations," he said, "are very unpleasant to many people who do not like to be treated as suspicious characters. It is obvious that if all the countries of the world had laws as drastic as those of the United States it would be practically impossible to enjoy traveling as it is done now."

The Board of Trade, in its letter of protest to President Hoover, says: "According to information received at this office, many applicants are scrutinized very carefully and closely questioned as to whether they are bona fide tourists or immigrants. It is certainly not the desire of this Board of Trade that the vigilance against undesirable immigrants be relaxed, but we do feel most emphatically that our foreign representatives are the first American contacts that these prospective visitors have and they therefore have the responsibility of creating the first impression of America upon those who desire to come.

"We believe that evidences of cordiality, good-will and welcome could be extended without in any manner appearing less vigilant in enforcing the immigration laws. May we respectfully suggest that a policy of welcome be formulated to bona fide tourists and our representatives abroad be so notified."

PROVISIONS IN CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Foreign buying of lard has been liberal of late but below trade expectations, considering the decline in prices. July lard, which sold early in the season at $11.40, was down last week to 9.32½, a drop of practically 2 cents a pound. This decline, however, failed to bring in the demand that packers expected. Net losses for the week were 12½ to 23 cents, with the close on July lard $9.40, September and October $9.55 and December $9.37½.

Bellies are off nearly 1 cent a pound for July, taking the season's high, and show losses of 12½ to 25 cents for the week. July closed at $13.85 and September at $12.75.

GRAIN MEN BEARISH DESPITE LOW PRICES

Quotations Smallest in Years, With Rye at Levels Not Reached Since 1901.

BIG DROPS IN THREE WEEKS

Wheat Off 17c, Corn 10 to 12c, Oats 4 to 6c and Rye 16 to 18c.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Lowering of prices has intensified the bearishness of the grain trade in general and brought no responsive buying of consequence. The situation is contrary to any experience in recent years, as most traders are looking at conditions rather than at prices. Liquidation has been drastic, with all prices the lowest in years, rye being down to the level of 1901. Commodity prices in general are lower, and business surroundings present nothing bullish outside the fact that prices have declined.

At the inside levels yesterday wheat prices showed declines of virtually 17 cents in three weeks. Corn is off about 10 to almost 12 cents, oats are 4 to 6 cents lower and rye is down 16 to 18 cents. From the season's high, July rye has declined 58⅝ cents, September more than 40 cents and December 19 cents. While yesterday's closing prices were within a fraction of the lowest on the downturn, which has been on, with few intermissions, for two weeks, wheat showed a net decline of 6⅝ to 7 cents in Chicago from a week before. Kansas City was 6¾ to 7¼ cents off and it is expected to decline more as the pressure of the new grain movement becomes greater. Liverpool, which a short time ago was relatively lower than Chicago, lost only 4½ to 6¼ cents compared with a week ago.

Drastic losses resulting from the steady, uninterrupted decline in wheat have resulted. On Saturday some good sized lines were unloaded by brokerage houses that showed losses of 45 to 50 cents a bushel. At the same time a few large traders who have been active in stocks were credited with pressing the selling side of both wheat and corn here and in Winnipeg.

Predicts Wheat at 85 Cents.

One leading operator predicted that should the Northwest have intermittent rains throughout the season wheat will sell at 85 cents. This is simply a good indication of the way speculators feel. They have given up sentiment and are down to a supply-and-demand situation. They regard supplies as too excessive for the maintenance of high levels of values, and the chief argument is that prices must be lowered to a level at which American wheat is on a world's parity and supplies can be reduced to where they are adjusted to requirements, domestic and European.

In the last six months there has been a reduction of 100,000,000 bushels in the available supply as figured by Bradstreet's. On Jan. 1 the total supply was 400,000,000 bushels and now it is down to around 300,000,000 bushels. In the same time last year the decline was a little more than 70,000,000 bushels. This large reduction in the last six months attracts no attention from the trade. As a matter of record, the visible supply last year increased from June 29 to the end of the year. It is not expected, however, that this situation will be repeated the coming season. Those who are selling wheat short believe moisture in the Spring wheat sections of the American and Canadian Northwest will be sufficient to make a good average crop, if not more. Canada is expected to have around 350,000,000 bushels in the three Provinces if moisture is plentiful. Last year these Provinces raised 274,000,000 bushels and the remainder of Canada 228,000,000 bushels, setting a record of 502,000,000 bushels. Canada is officially estimated to have a carryover of 72,000,000 bushels, while 135,000,000 bushels is the figure set by private Winnipeg estimators. All indications are that Canada will be unable to export sufficient wheat in the next five weeks to reduce the carryover to normal proportions.

Change From a Year Ago.

The difference between now and a year ago is that speculators and all business interests then were happy and making money. Now conditions are down to normal, and speculators have suffered severe losses in everything in which there is any volume of business, and few have surplus funds, so that prices cut little figure.

Stock traders, particularly those in the East, have endeavored to hedge against losses in stocks by selling wheat short and have put out millions of bushels, according to popular estimate. Above all, there is the outstanding factor as to what the government wil do with the new wheat, which is to move in good volume from now on. In the last week the Santa Fe Railroad increased its grain loadings. Its loadings on Friday alone were 597 cars, against 464 a year ago. Wheat in interior Kansas, however, is selling around 65 to 70 cents, although latest estimates on production in that State are for an average crop of around 135,000,000 bushels.

In all, a heavy volume of business was handled in wheat, with prices on the down grade on virtually five out of the six trading days. The open interest at the close on Friday was 126,185,000 bushels, compared with 128,226,000 the previous week.

Primary receipts of wheat last week were 4,586,000 bushels, the previous week 3,865,000 and the week last year 6,546,000. Shipments respectively were 4,745,000, 4,879,000 and 4,424,000 bushels.

July wheat in Chicago closed Saturday at 92½ to 92¼ cents, September 95¼ to 95⅛ cents and December 99⅞ cents to $1.

Corn Sales Are Not Pressed.

Corn prices are down to levels at which careful traders are indisposed to press the selling side, especially for December, which is under the 70-cent level, the close yesterday having been at 68½ to 68¾ cents. Near-by deliveries, with July 75 cents and September at 73⅜ to 73¼ cents at the close, tempt short selling by professionals. The average corn speculator, however, is inclined to conservatism until crop prospects are more certain.

The outlook suggests a large crop, but many things can happen between now and November, and traders consider the risk of selling corn greater than in wheat. Marketing by the country to terminal markets this month has been disappointingly small, and cash corn has commanded good premiums, especially white, which is scarce.

Closing prices were at net losses for the week of 1½ to 3¼ cents, July showing the most strength.

Open interest in corn at the close on Friday was 41,807,000 bushels, compared with 47,890,000 a week ago.

Primary receipts of corn last week were 3,865,000 bushels, the previous week 5,253,000, and the week a year ago 6,405,000. Shipments respectively were 3,669,000, 4,351,000 and 2,295,000 bushels.

Prices of oats are down to around a level at which there is said to be little money for the speculator in selling futures short, and no one but the largest cash handler and a few specialists care to take the buying side in a liberal way. Crop prospects are for a good average yield, and there will be a fair carryover at the end of the oats year, August 1. July closed at 35¼ to ⅜ cents, September 36½ to 36⅜ and December 39½ to 39⅜.

Rye prices have declined to where it is almost possible to buy two bushels of rye for the cost of one bushel of wheat. A large percentage of the speculation in futures is in buying the near-by months and selling December at profitable spreads, 4¼ cents between July and September and 10½ cents between July and December. The close on the July option was 46½ cents, September 50¾ and December 57.

WINTER WHEAT IRREGULAR.

Quality Good in Southwest Threshings—Coming Crops Need Rain.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Cutting of Winter wheat is well advanced in Texas and Oklahoma and is starting in Southern Kansas, Missouri, Southern Illinois and other States of the same latitude. Threshings in the Southwest reveal irregular yields, with quality generally good and test weight average or better. Spring wheat prospects in the American and Canadian Northwest are promising, but frequent rains throughout the season are regarded as necessary to produce a good average crop. Wheat is jointing in the southern part of the American Spring wheat section of the Northwest.

Barley and oats are doing well throughout all sections. Rye is heading and commencing to fill. Rains will be an important factor in its fruition. Cold weather over the middle and northern sections of the corn belt has retarded growth and necessitated replanting. In Iowa there is more replanting than usual, and early-maturing seed is being used.

Germination of corn generally has been good.

Auto Theft Insurance Rates Cut.

Albert Conway, State Superintendent of Insurance, announced yesterday that he had received the cooperation of the fire insurance companies represented by the National Automobile Underwriters Association in effecting a reduction in the passenger automobile theft rates. The reductions range from 35 to 15 per cent, according to the district, and the present reduction, according to Mr. Conway, coming after the large decrease made last year reflects a decrease in the likelihood of cars being stolen.

ARGENTINE EXPORTS OF GRAIN DECLINE

PESO AT NEW LOW LEVEL

European Restrictions on Frozen Beef Cause Continued Decrease in Shipments.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, June 22.—The exchange value of the Argentine peso reached a new low level last week, when dollars were quoted at 119.55, the highest dollar quotation since the caja de conversion opened some years ago after its close in wartime. The position of the peso was aggravated by heavy buying of bills for dividend remittances by foreign-owned corporations in Brazil and Uruguay as well as Argentine companies.

Grain shipments continue far below the usual movement at this time of year, exports of wheat, corn, flaxseed and oats this year being 3,400,063 tons less than in the corresponding period of last year, with consequent unfavorable effects on ocean shipping, railroad earnings, exchange quotations and business in general.

Wheat exports last week were 2,445,000 bushels, compared with 2,733,000 in the previous week and 4,915,000 in the corresponding week of last year. The total to date is 57,113,000 bushels, compared with 140,116,000 in the same period a year ago.

Exports of corn last week were 2,363,000 bushels, 1,686,000 the previous week and 6,718,000 in the corresponding week of 1929. The total to date is 53,887,000 bushels, compared with 81,800,000 a year ago.

Flaxseed exports last week were 447,600 bushels, 761,200 the previous week and 1,045,000 a year ago. The total to date is 29,021,000, against 46,156,000 in the corresponding period of 1929.

European restrictions against Argentine frozen beef are causing continued decline of exports, although chilled beef to Great Britain is still moving satisfactorily. Frozen beef exports to the Continent last week totaled 7,700 quarters, compared with 24,000 the previous week. The average monthly export of frozen beef this year is 96,000 quarters, compared with 200,000 quarters two years ago.

The wool market continues dull on account of light offerings of superior quality. Stock on hand in central produce markets totals 891 tons, compared with 3,460 tons the same date last year.

Weather conditions throughout the cereal belt are favorable and the outlook for the next harvest continues promising. The charter market is weak. Seven charters were arranged during the week, totaling 43,000 tons. Ten shillings for grain loadings above Rosario compared with 12 shillings two weeks ago. One steamer was chartered for New York from San Lorenzo at $3.25.

STORMS HIT GEORGIA CROPS

Heavy Damage Is Done by Wind and Hail—Fruit Belt Unscathed.

MACON, Ga., June 22 (AP).—Heavy but unestimated damage to crops by near-tornadoes and hail that swept Southern and Eastern Georgia late yesterday was revealed in a check up today.

Only the peach crop was entirely unaffected. The storm missing the fruit belt.

ACCIDENT DEATHS DECLINE.

State Total Last Month Was 156 to Five-Year Average of 169.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 22.—Industrial accidents claimed the lives of 156 New York State workmen during May, according to announcement by Industrial Commissioner Frances Perkins. The total is low in comparison with the May average for 1926-30, which was 169.

For the fourth consecutive month vehicles led in the causes of death. Of thirty-four deaths attributed to vehicles of all kinds twenty were caused by motor cars. Seven of these cars were in collisions and four struck men who were walking or working about the streets. Four men fell from cars and were killed.

Thirty deaths resulted from falls and twenty-six from handling objects.

Four cases of infection during May, the Industrial Commissioner said, were typical. A woman at work wrapping barberry plants accidentally ran a thorn through her thumb. A clerk stuck a pen-point into his finger. A press operator was struck by a splinter from the metal on which he was working. A concrete worker scratched his hand on a nail. In each case the wounds became infected, with fatal results.

TELLS OF MARINE ACADEMY'S WORK

GO ON A CRUISE EVERY YEAR

Two Courses, Deck and Engineering—Cadets Must Be Rugged and Resolute.

The New York State Merchant Marine Academy, under the jurisdiction of the State Education Department, is engaged in the work of training young men for the Merchant Marine service. Last year the name of the academy was changed from that of New York State Nautical School, which it had held since its establishment in 1874.

The school claims the distinction of being the oldest institution of its kind in the United States. Its purposes are set forth in a recent bulletin, as follows:

"To educate and train the young men enrolled therein to be deck officers and engineer officers on ships of our merchant marine on the same principle that young men are trained at Annapolis to be officers in the United States Navy. The greater proportion of the large merchant ships entering and leaving the port of New York are officered by our graduates, from captain or chief engineer down to the junior officers on deck or in the engine room.

"Young men between the ages of 17 and 20 inclusive, residing in New York State, who are of good moral character and who have completed satisfactorily two years of high school, are eligible for entrance to the academy provided they can pass the physical examination. The two years of high school work must include one year of algebra. As the number of applications for entrance is in excess of the number that can be admitted in each new class, a competitive examination is held throughout the State and resulting marks are combined with the mark assigned for adaptability and physical fitness. The new classes enter Oct. 1 and Feb. 1 of each year. At present the new classes are limited to thirty-six cadets, of whom twenty-four are deck cadets and twelve engineer cadets.

"The course in the academy is two years, two classes entering each year, one on Oct. 1 and the other Feb. 1. Each year is divided into two terms, the academic term of two semesters from Oct. 1 to May 31, and the practical term from June 1 to Sept. 30. During the academic term the training ship Newport is moored to its Winter base and academic instruction is given. During the practical term the training ship makes a foreign cruise, usually to European ports, and practical instruction in ship handling, navigation and engineering is given. The cadets live on board ship during the entire course and perform all work in the upkeep, maintenance and operation of the ship. Two classes are graduated each year, one on Sept. 30 and one on Jan. 31."

Courses of instruction are given in two branches, deck and engineering. Deck cadets learn navigation, seamanship, ship construction and stability, cargo stowage, maritime laws, mathematics and ships' hygiene; engineering cadets learn marine boilers and engines and their auxiliary machinery, gas engines, electricity, mathematics and ships' hygiene.

The deck cadets are taught the operation of sextants, sails and steering gear while their engineer brothers are at the business of firing boilers, running the engines and maintaining the machinery. Following graduation they go before the U. S. Board of Steamboat Inspectors for licenses as third officers and third assistant engineers, positions paying from $140 to $155 monthly.

From this the ambitious rise to the rank of captain or chief engineer, at the monthly stipend of as much as $600 plus. It is possible to attain this rank within four years.

During the sea term from June 1 to Sept. 1 each year the Training Ship Newport makes a foreign cruise. This year's cruise, starting June 18, was through the Mediterranean. Gibraltar, Villefranche, Leghorn, Algiers and Ponta Delgada were among the ports of call.

The school information bulletin adds that "only young men of a rugged physique and resolute spirit are desirable. Cadets are required to sleep in hammocks and serve at table."

ERIN'S MANY BACHELORS.

Free State Has Highest Percentage in the World.

According to the statistics of the Irish Free State census, recently issued, "the proportion of unmarried people in the Irish Free State is greater at all ages than that of any other country." There is also, it is stated, a tendency for marriages to take place, particularly between bachelors and spinsters, late in life. The following table gives the percentage of males unmarried at the ages indicated:

Age.	Percentage Unmarried.

The next highest known percentage of males unmarried at 25-30 years is that of Sweden (64), while the corresponding figure for England and Wales is 45, and that for the United States 35 per cent. The percentage of spinsters in the Free State is also very high, as the following table shows:

Age.	Percentage Unmarried.
30-35	.42
35-40	.32

In England and Wales the percentage of females unmarried between 25 and 35 years of age is 41, and in the United States 23.

An analysis of the Irish returns indicates that one out of every four women who remain in the Free State never marries, but that the married women there have far more children than do the married women of other countries. For example, Free State women under 45 rear 85 per cent more children than do their sisters in England and Wales.

Swimming in Japanese Schools.

Although swimming is being introduced today more generally in the schools of Japan, it was not until 1914 that the first pool was built by the Ibaraki Middle School in Osaka Prefecture. The pool was built by the teachers and students. Tsuto Matsumoto, who supervised the building, is looked upon as one of the leaders of aquatic sports in Japan. Here were trained Takaishi and Irie, who created new world records with the back stroke in 1928. There are still few training facilities open to Japanese swimmers. Aquatic sports are controlled by the Japanese Federation of Aquatic Sports, which sponsors a national swimming championship for men and women once a year in cities such as Tokyo, Osaka and Kyoto.

INJURED EMPLOYE WINS IN HIGH COURT

Judges Decide He Was Still Working for Railroad When Hurt on Way Home.

A judicial construction of the Federal Employers Liability act has been made by the Court of Appeals on the question of the liability of a railroad company to an employe who was injured after working hours and after riding home on one of the defendant's trains, by falling through a bridge as he stepped from the rear car. The court held, in the case of Benjamin F. Hendricks against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad that the failure of the company to provide safe and convenient means of egress for its employes from trains rendered it liable for resulting injuries, and reversed a judgment for the railroad.

The opinion of Judge O'Brien, stating that the majority of the Appellate Division, Second Department, had held that the defendant did not fail in its duty to protect the plaintiff, and that at the time of his injury he had deviated from his employment, said:

"After the close of working hours plaintiff was given free transportation by defendant to the station nearest his home. The train consisted of seven or eight cars. He occupied the last seat in the car next to the rear. From conflicting evidence the jury could find that this car was crowded. It stopped on a trestle some distance south of the station. The station platform was located on the right side of the train north of the car occupied by plaintiff and separated from it by two main line tracks. Exit from the rear of plaintiff's car was obstructed on the right by a steel girder which contributed to the support of the trestle. The forward end of the car extended a few feet north of and free from this obstruction.

"Plaintiff, testifying that he feared that the train would start before he could traverse the length of the car and emerge from the forward end and that he discovered that his exit from the rear end on the right was blocked by the girder, descended from the rear end on the left, alighted upon planks forming part of the trestle's deck and breaking through them fell to the street and sustained serious injuries.

"Defendant was bound to provide a way of exit from the car which as matter of fact its employes would be able safely to use. If, as the jury must be presumed to have found, the station platform could be reached by plaintiff only at his risk of remaining on a train which might start before he could alight from the forward end, and even then necessarily by crossing two other tracks, such a way could not be said as matter of law to conform with the full measure of duty which defendant owed. An obligation is imposed to arrange some mode of egress reasonably safe and not unreasonably inconvenient. Access to the street by way of the station from plaintiff's car will not be held as matter of law to have been either safe or reasonably convenient. The trestle proved as matter of fact to be dangerous. No third way existed.

"The question of fact cannot be excluded from the case whether under the circumstances defendant was negligent in its maintenance of a structure in such a state as to enable it reasonably to foresee danger to those passengers and employes who, the jury could find, not infrequently used it for want of a better passage. The evidence warrants the finding that plaintiff assumed no risk known to him nor one so obvious that he should have been aware of it, and that his use of the trestle as a connecting passage to the street would have been safe except for the presence of defective planks. Plaintiff having assumed no known risk, and defendant having negligently maintained its structure, he is entitled under this statute, whether negligent or otherwise, to recover in some amount by way of apportionment of damage, unless his means of exit constitutes a deviation from his employment.

"He had not severed his employment with defendant. He was yet on his employer's premises, the relation of master and servant continued to exist, and he was still engaged in discharging a duty of his employment."

Ducks Travel Far.

A male pintail duck, banded at the Bear River Marshes, Utah, on Sept. 10, 1929, and a female, banded on the same day at Dawson, N. D., 500 miles to the northeast, were both killed on the same day by the same man at the same place—Toluca, Mexico. This interesting coincidence recently came to the attention of the United States Biological Survey, which directs bird-banding studies in this country as a means of obtaining information regarding the flights and life histories of native birds.

BUILDING CODE REVISION.

About Three-fourths of Proposed Changes for City Now Completed.

Revision of this city's building code is now about three-quarters completed and John Lowry, builder, chairman of the Merchants' Association's committee on building code revision, expects that all the proposed changes will be ready for official approval in the Fall and effective early next year, Allen E. Beals says in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports. An item concerning structural steel loads and stresses, classified as urgent, was approved by the Mayor and Board of Aldermen last March and is now a law.

"The remaining provisions regarding structural steel and iron, loads, foundations, wood construction and protection of the public and workmen are ready for final coordination and editing," according to Colonel George H. McCaffrey, director of research for the association, as quoted by Mr. Beals. "The sections on reinforced concrete and protection of adjoining property are being reviewed to include the constructive suggestions received from members of the advisory committee.

"So far 137 changes have been made in the draft reports submitted to the committee in December. Additional important changes are expected in the reinforced concrete section, with particular reference to composite columns and two-way slab systems. The tentative reports on fire resistive construction and plumbing were sent to the 250 members of the committee last week. The reports on masonry and heating and ventilating are expected to be ready for the committee before July 1. Of the five remaining reports those on elevators and sprinkler systems are in draft form and those on the administrative sections, classifications and restrictions and means of egress are practically completed.

"After all these reports have been reviewed by the advisory committee and their comments and suggestions acted upon the whole code will be coordinated, edited and made public in ample time for general review before submission to the Mayor."

SALES EXECUTIVES,

SALESMEN.

Read This Ad—Every Word.

Quick Money for the Summer Months.

THIS IS VERY UNUSUAL.

We must have a number of well-dressed executive salesmen at once and we are willing to pay big for a few men who can fill our requirements.

From last Sunday's ad we employed about ten men—not enough to handle this rush business.

We were invited to New York to duplicate the famous Sea Breeze Club of Santa Monica, Cal., which is now in its fourth year of successful operation. Our campaign lasted all last Spring and we signed up nearly 3,000 memberships and we promised to build a club at West Long Beach that would not only duplicate our famous California club, but would even be better—more up-to-date in appointments and more gorgeous in equipment.

This Club is now finished and was opened Decoration Day, and in 3 days nearly 5,000 people visited the Club and were amazed at its beauty of architecture and decorations—located on its own private Atlantic Beach frontage—all this for the enjoyment of a selected group of members.

NOW—we are handling hundreds upon hundreds of people visiting the Club daily—sent by our enthusiastic members. We want men, after they have proved their sales ability in the field, to meet these people—escort them through the Club as representatives of the membership committee—and take applications until our roster is filled. We will not only pay you a handsome commission—but to all who qualify, we will give you a Life Membership in this and the California Club.

AND

YOU WILL MEET

Harry Richman and Texas Guinan and many other stage and screen stars on our great Gala night of the 26th.

Can use at least twenty men. Quick money—pleasant and dignified work. Please report at 10:30 sharp.

MAPS FIGHT TO KEEP FREE LIGHTERAGE

New York Ready for Hearing on Thursday on New Jersey Move to Abolish Present Rule.

WARD TO ACT FOR STATE

Hilly to Represent City and Other Counsel to Appear for Trade and Shipping Interests.

New York interests which will be represented when the Interstate Commerce Commission opens the New Jersey lighterage case on Thursday in Newark have completed their case and are prepared to fight the efforts of the New Jersey interests to abolish free lighterage of freight in New York Harbor.

Attorney General Hamilton Ward will represent New York State, assisted by Special Assistant Attorney General Hiram C. Todd and Assistant Attorney General C. D. Williams. Arthur J. W. Hilly, Corporation Counsel, will represent New York City, with his assistant, John F. Victory.

Mr. Ward in a statement yesterday outlined the defense which will be offered after the New Jersey interests, represented by John J. Hicky of Washington, formerly associated with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Deputy Attorney General Raymond Tiffany of New Jersey, have concluded their case.

At present freight rates from points more than 100 miles west of New York City are uniform for the entire zone, which includes New York City and many communities of Northern New Jersey. The complaint of New Jersey is that adequate allowance for the cost of transshipping freight consigned to New York from the railroad terminal yards on the Jersey side of the Hudson is not made by this rate basis.

"New Jersey contends," said Mr. Ward, "that because the terminal yards of most of the railroads coming into the metropolitan district are in New Jersey, it has an actual advantage over New York, which should be reflected in a lower rate. New York's answers to this contention are numerous. Perhaps the most important one is that New York City and Northern New Jersey communities constitute a single, homogeneous social and economic unit, and that to split such a unit into different rate districts would be totally at variance with the historical and present basis of rate structure in this country and would disrupt the port to the cost of all its powers.

"New York also expects to show," continued Mr. Ward, "that the cost of making deliveries by switching into various New Jersey communities from New Jersey terminals frequently is more than the cost of making a carfloat delivery to various parts of New York City. New York also will show that the shipping charges to all parts of the metropolitan district are the same and presumably always will be the same.

"New York further expects to show its enormous investments in the Barge Canal, which is heavily utilized by New Jersey and which, together with its predecessor, the Erie Canal, contributed much to the development of the New Jersey portion of the metropolitan district," concluded Mr. Ward.

Chairman Frank McManamy of the Interstate Commerce Commission will preside at the hearing at the Newark Chamber of Commerce, 20 Brantford Place. The action is brought nominally against the trunk line railroads entering New Jersey, the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Erie and the Lehigh Valley railroad companies, which have combined and engaged Thomas P. Healy of Washington as counsel.

The New York Chamber of Commerce will be represented by Parker McCollester, the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce by William N. Dyckman, Sigourney Olney and Theodore H. Burgess; the National Sugar Refining Company by John F. Finerty, the Bush Terminal by Harper A. Holt and the New York Dock Company by Charles E. Cotterill.

Various New Jersey interests combined fourteen years ago in an action to obtain a rate preference which was known as the New York Harbor case. The Interstate Commerce Commission dismissed the action after lengthy sessions, and one result of the action was the organization of the Port of New York Authority. The present action is sponsored by the New Jersey Board of Commerce and Navigation.

ROOSEVELT ENDORSES INLAND FREIGHT DEPOT

Praises Port Authority for Efforts to Further Welfare of City and State.

Governor Roosevelt has written Commissioner Howard S. Cullman, chairman of the Port of New York Authority committee which recently brought to completion its plans for the establishment of the city's first union inland freight terminal, approving the work of the commission and terming it a "great accomplishment." The public, he said, does not appreciate the importance of the terminal, but the prestige of the Port Authority has been greatly enhanced by its efforts. His letter is as follows:

"This is the first opportunity that I have had to read over the minutes of the Port Authority for the last two or three meetings, and I wish to send the commissioners promptly a message of congratulation on the steps now taken to finance and build the first inland terminal. This is a great accomplishment. It does not attract so much attention as the progress of the Hudson River Bridge because the general public does not visualize the importance of such steps to the life of the Port of New York.

"You yourselves, of course, are aware of the fact that the statutory comprehensive plan was designed to achieve economies in the operation of transportation facilities within any part of the district. Those who have criticized you in the past for not making more rapid progress I am sure did not appreciate the obstacles that were in the way.

"Ten competing railroads had to be brought into agreement. The enterprise had to be made self-sustaining and the cost of operation had to be less for the shipper. Traffic congestion in the streets had to be reduced. These are problems involving technique of engineering, of traffic control, of railroad operation, which the average layman does not appreciate. I congratulate you most heartily.

"The tact, patience, the knowledge that you have displayed have enhanced the Port Authority's prestige generally. Its credit is already established. I feel confident that this first major step in the effectuation of the statutory plan is but the forerunner of many others. As the Governor of the State is a sort of ex officio member of the commission, I feel that you should know that your efforts have my cordial endorsement."

JEWISH CAMPS DRAW 10,000

Federation Gives $105,831 to Assist Twenty-seven Recreation Centres.

Twenty-seven Summer camps and homes are conducted by institutions affiliated with the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, and 10,000 individuals will attend these camps during the present season, according to an announcement made yesterday by Solomon Lowenstein, executive director of the federation.

Dr. Lowenstein said that seventeen of the twenty-seven camps and homes receive financial allotments toward the expense of their work from the federation. These allotments for the present year will aggregate $105,831, an increase of more than $10,000 over last year's total for this purpose of $95,394.

JURIST DEFENDS THE DEATH PENALTY

Judge Kavanagh of Chicago Sees Capital Punishment Almost Dropped Here.

ADVISED BRITISH LEADERS

Returns From London Declaring the Rate of Homicides Is Fixed by Fear of Executions.

Judge Marcus Kavanagh of the Supreme Court of Chicago, who went abroad a month ago at the invitation of the British Parliament to advise a special committee of the House of Commons on criminal penalties, especially with regard to capital punishment, returned yesterday on the Anchor liner Caledonia.

He said he had told the Parliamentary committee that he considered England still needed capital punishment and added that he saw little possibility at present of its abolition in Great Britain.

Although, generally speaking, Judge Kavanagh is in favor of the death penalty for murder, he said there were some countries and States where it is not necessary as a deterrent to crime. The Scandinavian countries do not require it, he maintained, because of their sparse settlements, the homogeneous population and the general law-abiding spirit of the people.

In the United States, the jurist continued, North and South Dakota, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont do not need capital punishment. On the other hand, Michigan, which has no capital punishment, needs it badly and so does Kansas.

Referring to the high homicide rate in the large cities of the United States, Judge Kavanagh said, "We need to educate not only the people but the judges and juries as well, to a sentiment which will approve of a criminal being made to pay the penalty. The judges who are most popular in the United States are those who are the most lenient. When we awaken to respect of law, and have juries and officials who will not look first for an excuse for the criminal, then we may talk about the wholesale abolition of capital punishment."

Says Execution Halts Homicides.

Judge Kavanagh, who has been on the bench for thirty-two years, said that he had found capital punishment a decided deterrent to homicides. When the number of executions goes up, he said, the homicide rate goes down. In 1920 Chicago had 385 homicides, but with fourteen executions that year the number fell to 190 the following year.

The low number of executions in New York and Chicago, he asserted, almost amounts to the abolition of the death penalty. He pointed out that as nearly as he could remember the figures there were only five or six executions in this city to 428 homicides, while in Chicago there were 421 homicides and four executions.

Contrasting the conditions in communities where certain capital punishment follows murder, Judge Kavanagh said that while 485 homicides were committed in two years in Detroit, there was not one in Windsor, Ont., right across the river from Detroit.

Judge Kavanagh said that he had asked an eminent English justice, Sir Travers Humphreys, why England's homicide rate was so low. The latter replied: "When we bring a criminal to trial, and the jury finds him guilty, every one in the court, judge, jurors and spectators, wants and demands to see him punished, and so does every citizen in the land."

"There is a fundamental difference between this attitude and ours," Judge Kavanagh said, "which accounts for the difference in respect for the law between England and the United States.

Low Homicide Rate in London.

"Last year there were only twenty-one homicides reported in London," the judge continued. "Of these, three victims were newborn children, killed by deserted mothers who received prison terms; seven who committed homicides promptly committed suicide; four were proved insane, six murderers were executed, and one imprisoned for life."

England has wiped out predatory murder, Judge Kavanagh said, by strictly enforcing the death penalty.

The killing of Alfred Lingle, reporter for The Chicago Tribune, the judge added, was the kind of high-handed act that the situation in Chicago has been waiting for. Only an act of this sort, which brings home to the citizens that their own sons or brothers might be victims of such gang killings, can stir the people of the city to the dire necessity of fighting crime.

Judge Kavanagh, who was accompanied by his wife, said that he expected to leave for Chicago today.

"Bill of Rights Against Noise" Tells How to Seek Relief

A "Citizens' Bill of Rights Against Noise," disclosing just what relief from annoying and unreasonable noise the residents of the city are entitled to under the law, was made public yesterday by the Noise Abatement Commission. Declaring that Summer time has brought as much suffering from the unmuffled noises that come through the opened windows as it has brought from the heat, Edward F. Brown, director of the commission, explained that the bill of rights was the commission's contribution toward alleviating this condition.

There are eight clauses in the bill. The first two deal with radios, pointing out that loud-speakers in front of shops are forbidden, and that neighbors may be restrained from excessive noise of this character by a complaint to the Health Department. The clatter of ash collection should be brought to the attention of the Sanitation Department, if made by city collectors, or the Health Department, if by private collectors.

The policeman on the beat is the proper one to bring relief from unnecessarily noisy milkmen, doormen's whistles, tooting of automobile borns and loud conversation at all-night taxi stands.

RIVAL OHIO PACKETS PREPARE FOR RACE

CAPTAIN GREENE SCORNFUL

"We Don't Need Any Fancy Work on the Tom Greene," He Says of Contest Set for Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, June 22.—The river packet, Betsy Ann, and her rival, the Tom Greene, will meet Saturday for the third time in a race for speed supremacy of the upper Ohio River.

In 1928 and 1929 the Tom Greene triumphed in the revivals of the classic of racing river packets. This year Captain Frederick Way Jr. of the Betsy Ann will try to bring his craft over the finish line ahead and thus obtain possession of the gilded deer antlers which signify supremacy.

These famous antlers are now nailed firmly on the front of the wheelhouse of the Tom Greene and the Tom Greene men are quite confident there will be no change in their position.

"Those antlers belong on the Betsy Ann and that's where they are going," Captain Way declared, however.

Old river men are keenly interested in the mysterious improvements which have been made during the past few weeks on the Betsy Ann by Captain Way. He has had workmen busy altering the engines to obtain more power.

In the past the two packets have been practically even in speed. In 1928, the first time the two clashed, the Tom Greene won by better "steamboatin'." This is a very elastic word in river men's vocabulary and means anything from manoeuvering ability to knowledge of currents, chutes, short cuts and river depths.

The race last year ended in what many considered a dead heat, but a majority of the judges decided in favor of the Tom Greene, and the antlers were not moved.

This year will probably be Captain Way's last bid for victory and he is staking everything on it. Scores of workmen have been swarming over his boat down at Madison, Ind., and he and his pilots have gone carefully over every foot of the course repeatedly.

"We should have been awarded the decision last year," Captain Way observed, "but we are going to win so positively this time that there will be no doubt about it."

"The Tom Greene always has been and always will be the fastest sternwheeler on the rivers," young Captain Tom R. Greene said by way of answer. "We don't need any fancy work done or preparations to beat that Betsy Ann. We'll just step out and beat her again like we have twice."

This year's chapter of the feud will be a twenty-two-mile race from a standing start at Fernbank Dam up the Ohio past Cincinnati to Coney Island. It will start at 2 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time, and will be broadcast over WLW. The winner will receive the Commodore George F. Schott Trophy, but the real prize is the symbolical gilded antlers.

SEES SALMON A PREVENTIVE

Health Service Says Canned Variety Prevents Pellagra.

An announcement by the United States Public Health Service, which should be of interest to the Southern States that are concerned with the pellagra problem, touched upon the "pellagra action of canned salmon." The American Red Cross prints the statement as follows:

"In connection with studies relating to the pellagra preventive properties of various food substances the United States Public Health Service has recently announced that canned salmon (Alaska chum) contains the pellagra preventive factor. By reason of its potency in preventing pellagra and its availability in the preserved state, salmon may be considered a fair substitute for meat in the area of pellagra endemicity where meat is not readily available.

"The demonstration of the pellagra preventive value of canned salmon furnished further evidence of the soundness of the working hypothesis that black tongue in dogs is the analogue of pellegra in man."

SEEKS RAIL CROSSING BAN.

Hearing to Plan Removal at Mount Kisco, Montrose, Hawthorne.

Public hearings on three proposed railroad grade-crossing eliminations in Westchester County are scheduled for next Friday, Howard Barnes, deputy engineer of Westchester, announced yesterday.

One crossing is at Montrose station on the main line of the New York Central Railroad, where a boy was killed two days ago. The second crossing is in Main Street, Mount Kisco. The village property owners affected by the crossing have engaged Lincoln Bush, engineer, to draw a new plan which will cause less property damage. The third crossing is at Hawthorne on the Harlem division of the New York Central.

SOUTHERN PARKWAY OPENED TO TRAFFIC

COMPLETED TO WANTAGH

Park Commission Also Announces Opening of Old Taylor Mansion as a Tea Room.

The Southern State Parkway, carrying through non-commercial traffic from the city line on Central Avenue, north of Valley Stream, and along the south shore of Long Island to within six miles of the Atlantic Ocean, was opened to Wantagh yesterday by the Long Island State Park Commission. The route is without traffic lights or direct cross traffic.

Work on the last stretch of a mile and three-quarters was rushed so the commission might open the parkway for the growing Summer traffic. It will be accepted formally by the commission when the last touches have been added. The road has a forty-foot concrete pavement.

The commission also announced that it had accepted from the contractors the two-and-a-half-mile stretch just west of the newly opened parkway. Beginning east of the Park Avenue bridge, this stretch runs to a point east of the Bellmore bridge.

Construction now is going on, the announcement added, on a mile-and-a-half stretch running easterly from Wantagh Avenue toward Belmont State Park, including two new bridges which will take Wantagh Avenue and Seamen's Neck Road over the intersecting parts of the Southern State Parkway.

All the roadway work in the State parkways is under the joint auspices of the commission and the Division of Highways of the State Department of Public Works.

It was announced also that the old Taylor mansion, for many years the home of the late Moses Taylor, prominent banker and millionaire in the New York of two generations ago, was opened as a tea room and restaurant yesterday by the park commission.

The mansion, standing in the heart of the 1,600-acre Heckscher State Park near East Islip, L. I., was one of the first palatial Summer homes on the south shore of Long Island. It was here that Taylor lived the last years of his life.

Since it took over the Taylor estate, the park commission has entirely cleaned and repaired the house, which had fallen into decay. The game sanctuary, abounding in pheasants and deer, has been retained and many persons are attracted to the old millionaire's shooting preserve. Hunting is forbidden.

WANTS CHILDREN EXAMINED

Wynne to Urge Doctors to Set a Special Hour for Them.

A weekly children's hour will be advocated to the physicians of the city through the five county medical societies this week by Health Commissioner Wynne. The plan is for every doctor to set aside part of one day for examining well children. The plan has the double purpose of advancing preventive medicine and of turning persons of moderate means from the clinics to the private physicians.

As projected by Dr. Wynne, the doctors will receive cards to be sent to patients, explaining the scope of the proposed children's hour work and giving the hours and fee to be charged. Parents who bring their children to the doctor will be advised as to feeding, general care and hygiene, while the child will be examined, vaccinated and inoculated against preventable diseases.

The Health Department, in turn, will ask parents who subscribe to the service of a cooperating physician to let the department know of the fact, and to advise the department as to the fee charged. A file of physicians who adopt the plan will thus be built up at the department and subsequently, when inquiries are addressed to the department by parents, the names of three physicians in their immediate neighborhood will be sent to them.
